Nebraska COUNCIL MAY LIMIT NUMBER OF SAOONS

Supreme Court Reverses Douglas District Court in Case of Minneapolis Brewery.

FLEGE MUST STAY IN PRISON

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—When the city council of Omaha, sitting as an executive board, refused to issue a wholesale liquor license to the Minneapolis Brewing company, it acted within its lawful discretion, the Nebraska supreme court held this morning.

A mandamus was obtained by the company in the Douglas county district court, ordering City Clerk T. J. Flynn and the city council to grant the license. This order the high court reverses and directs the license shall be revoked and cancelled.

The decision establishes the principle, that an executive board may limit the number of licenses granted. The Omaha board placed a limit on the number of licenses and thereafter refused a license to the Minneapolis Brewing company.

While the supreme court asserts that the action of an executive board is subject to judicial review, it declares the burden of proof is upon the applicant to show that there has been an abuse of discretion.

France Gets New Trial. Salvatore Franco, the Italian laborer, convicted in Furnas county for the murder of Turco, a fellow countryman, at the Superior court, will be given a new trial. On account of the fact that Franco was examined by the penitentiary insanity commission, two days after his arrival at the prison under sentence of fifteen years and was found insane, the court believes that the jury that tried him did not have all of the facts on which to base a verdict.

The defense had pleaded insanity on the theory that Turco struck him a blow on the head that derailed his mental faculties. Franco is now at the Lincoln state hospital for insane.

Flege Convicted on Stand. Three trials ensued for Wilhelm Flege, the court decides in overruling his motion for another hearing. Flege is now in the penitentiary, serving his term of one to ten years for manslaughter, the crime being the killing of his sister. Two convictions were reversed by the appellate tribunal, but the last time, it affirmed the verdict of the jury. Flege will be subject to appeal at the end of his first year in prison.

Nebraska York's First Fall Festival is Success

FORK, Neb., Oct. 2.—(Special.)—York's fall festival closed yesterday afternoon. While the weather was not ideal for the first two or three days, there was a large crowd, and attendance the last day.

The display of farm products, fruit, poultry and all kinds of needle work filled the large tabernacle. The display was pronounced as good as any of the kind at the state fair. Seven townships made displays: Broadshaw, Waco, New York, Lockridge, Baker, Hays, Leroy and West Blue. Herman Klone had the biggest apple on exhibition. It weighed one pound and three ounces and measured fifteen inches in circumference.

The stock display was beyond expectations. While this is the first attempt at an agricultural display, it will not be the last. An effort will be made before the fall of 1916 to make a room to care for all kinds of agricultural products as well as stock.

The school parade by students of the various districts in the afternoon was one of the features. There were thirty-seven districts represented.

Travelers' Chaplain Lauds Membership. HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 2.—(Special Telegram.)—Taking for his subject a public letter recently published in The Bee's Letter Book, referring to the traveling men as immoral, Rev. A. A. Brooks of the Hastings Methodist church, national chaplain of the Travelers' Protective association, defended the drummers as a class in an address at a banquet last night in honor of the state Travelers' Protective association officers.

The part of the letter that aroused the chaplain's indignation especially was: "Corral the majority of traveling men and what have you got? I know; so do you, gentle reader. Taken as a whole the stand about 95 per cent pure sinners, unadulterated, too."

Mr. Brooks declared that during his association with traveling men at the Travelers' Protective association at Omaha, he failed to hear one foul story, never observed one delegate intoxicated and never saw, in all his experience, a convention handled in a more businesslike manner. He stated that he had attended national conventions of democrats and republicans.

Nebraska LABOR AGENCY LAW IS NOT DISTURBED

Supreme Court Refuses to Pass on Validity Until Remedies at Law Used.

THIS PRINCIPLE IS LAID DOWN

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—Without entering into the merits of the Nebraska law governing labor agencies under the supervision of the state labor commissioner, the Nebraska supreme court has refused to interfere at this time with the enforcement of the act. The validity of the act, says the supreme court, is a question of law that can be determined in the regular way when a prosecution is brought.

The Western Reference and Bond association and other Omaha concerns brought a test suit in Lancaster county to enjoin the governor and labor commissioner from enforcing the act. The court declined to allow the injunction. The statute requires every employment agency to take out a state license costing $50, except teachers' agencies, which pay $5. Agencies are required to keep accurate register of applicants and fees.

Chief Justice Morrissey, in writing an opinion, lays down the rule that no injunction will be granted unless the applicant is without remedy at law.

Picking Out New Site. Commissioners Kennedy, Gerdes and Holcomb of the State Board of Control have gone to Beatrice to locate a site for a new school for the feeble-minded, contracts for the construction of which have been let for $55,000. The legislature appropriated $40,000 for the building.

Repose Sells Bank. Secretary Hoese of the State Banking board has sold his controlling interest in the State bank of Table Rock, which he acquired a few months ago, to John R. Pierson of Springfield, formerly of Tecumseh.

Resolved, That we, the German synod of Nebraska, in convention assembled, condemn the manufacture for exportation to the various nations of Europe of arms and munitions and arms as unchristian and inhuman; as American citizens and as we declare ourselves most emphatically against this shameful trade.

Resolved, That we protest also against the granting of the loan of $50,000,000 to the warring nations of Europe as an unnatural act and as dangerous to the peace of our country.

The synod closes with services tomorrow morning, afternoon and evening, holy communion being celebrated by the united pastors during the morning service.

Tramp Sings When in Operating Room. Monsieur Ludie de Tramp, age 30, having the appearance of a hobbit and possessing wit, a la Mark Twain, staggered into a garage on Ivy street, near Edgewood, this morning shortly after midnight, and frightened several employees by announcing he had swallowed poison and was dying.

As the man fell unconscious to the floor the Grady ambulance was called. When the physicians sought to use the stomach pump, the man regained consciousness and pleaded with them to let him die, says the Atlanta Constitution.

Removal of the poison, which proved to be arised thymol, was like giving the patient laughing gas, for he sat bolt upright on the operating table and sang in a strong, clear voice, "My Old Kentucky Home," and strains of other old familiar melodies. The doctors, astounded at this performance, stood back and allowed the patient they had snatched from the grave to enjoy himself.

"I'm from the grand old state of Kentucky," said Ludie, when asked for his address. He said his name was Monsieur Ludie de Tramp, and that he had lived up to his name—traveled the world over.

Asked where he was stopping, he said: "I haven't stopped yet. I tried to stay put and you guys queered my game."

Grave Digger Falls Dead Into Trench He Dug for Another

Old Albert Hill, the "laughing grave-digger" at Odd Fellows' cemetery, has dug his last grave. And when it was finished and he was slicking it up for receipt of the coffin that goes into it he raised his shovel overhead, muttered goodby to his helper and fell back into the grave of his own making—dead.

His time-old prediction almost came true, for he always had said he would dig his own grave.

Albert Hill, with his 60 years bearing only lightly upon his genial spirit, went about his business whistling and singing. That's why they called him the "laughing grave-digger." He lived at 208 Napa street, was a veteran of the civil war and a member of the Odd Fellows.

After luncheon he returned to the grave being opened for the funeral of Eva Greenback, 140 North Twenty-ninth street, who died on Wednesday. William Upjohn, who helps him, was throwing the earth back from the edges of the opening and Albert was making the interior of the hole presentable. Finishing, he came to the surface and stood motionless for a moment. Then he raised his shovel arm up in the air and said to Upjohn:

"Goodby, Bill. Something's wrong with me. I think I'm going to die." And he turned and fell down into the open trench.

Upjohn went down with him, and he says Albert died in his arms—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Returns to Wife After an Absence of Fifteen Years. A romance of the Enoch Arden type, bridging a gap of fifteen years, with separation, remarriage and lost affection as obstacles, has just found its "happy ending" in San Francisco.

Fifteen years ago Herbert Winner of this city and his wife were divorced. He disappeared.

Mrs. Winner, thinking him dead, married C. Lundberg, also of San Francisco. Mr. Lundberg died a year ago.

Some months later Mrs. Lundberg's father, happening to be in St. Helena, was amazed to meet Herbert Winner on the street. The wanderer inquired about his one-time wife and three daughters, and finally decided to return to San Francisco.

One of Mrs. Lundberg's daughters is Mrs. M. B. Higuera, whose daughter, by the way, is Vivian Higuera, the "California Making company baby," in the shower of gold contests, and she, as well as the other daughters, did what they could to revive the old love between their parents.

The result was that a few days ago Mr. Winner and Mrs. Lundberg were remarried under the ritual of the Seventh-Day Adventists, in which religion Mrs. Lundberg is an earnest worker.

"They seem to love each other more than ever," said Mr. Higuera, who discussed the romance, "and each seems sorry for the mistakes that separated them years ago."—New York World.

Kite Frightens Nag and Man is Killed. Thrown headlong against the curb when a runaway horse attached to his undertaker wagon collided with a coal cart at Twenty-second and Pitwater streets, John J. White, 50 years old, broke his neck and died on the way to the Polyclinic hospital. The accident happened only one square away from Mr. White's home.

Mr. White was returning to his home. As he turned into Pitwater street from Twenty-fourth, a kite flown by some boys frightened the horse. The animal bolted, and before the undertaker could control it started on a mad dash along Pitwater street.

At Twenty-second and Pitwater streets a wagon of the Hancock Coal company was backed against the curb. White attempted to steer the frightened animal clear, but his wagon struck the cart with a crash. He was thrown from the seat and struck headlong against the curb. One of the first to reach the spot was Edward J. White, a son of the undertaker. He had seen the crash, but did not know that it was his father's wagon. A passing delivery wagon was pressed into service as an ambulance hospital. He was dead when that institution was reached. His neck was broken and his skull fractured.—Philadelphia Record.

Couldn't Blame It. The hotel was not a very good one and the traveling men knew it. Nevertheless they were obliged to go there when they came late at night to the little town. In the night with you had one of them was dimly conscious that something was wrong. Suddenly he realized that the table came from a leaking gas jet.

"Wake up, Bill!" he shouted, shaking his friend violently. "The gas is escaping!"

"Well," growled Bill, "can you blame it?"—Ladies' Home Journal.
