

Experienced and Well Qualified Teachers Make Up Omaha's Musicians

having a fine time, not only listening to a single note, and only stopping their chatter when he has finished to be him to continue, while he wonders if he has been such a damper on the crowd that the merriment could only be untrammelled when he was not of it.

To others of one's acquaintance the sight of him does not suggest a human being whom they are glad to meet again, but rather a sort of animated music machine, and in the same breath in which they give him an effusive greeting they say: "Come right over here and play something for me," and their interest in him passes as soon as they have accomplished their purpose, while the poor violin after the first few times remembers and lays it up against them accordingly.

But these small inconveniences of knowing how are greatly overbalanced by the pleasure to be had from musical intercourse with others who understand and enjoy. Music is a book that furnishes most delightful reading to those who can open and read it, but which is closed, not so much to those who cannot read, but rather to those who cannot qualify as appreciative listeners, those who have ears, but cannot hear.

Joseph F. Woolery.

Among the younger violinists of the city who are opening studios there are few who have won a better reputation and popularity in Omaha during the last few years than Joseph F. Woolery Jr.

For several years he has been in the same time has had the management of the musical instrument department at Hayden Brothers, but now resigns his commercial work in order to devote his entire time to the study and teaching of music.

Mr. Woolery began his study of the violin when a child of 9 years, having as teacher Mrs. M. L. Parvotz, formerly of this city. After ten years with her he continued his study in the Conservatory of Music in Drake university at Des Moines under the instruction of Miss Georgine van Anken, a pupil of Carl Fuchs, the renowned Hungarian violinist.

While at Des Moines Mr. Woolery was violin soloist for the University of Des Moines, playing Sundays to audiences of 1,200 to 1,500 people. He also frequently played accompaniment for Dean Holmes Cooper, the famous lyric tenor.

For the last few years he has studied with Mr. Henry Cox of this city, who is a member of the Omaha Symphony Study orchestra.

Mr. Woolery has opened a studio at his residence, 3421 Spaulding street.

Brownell Hall Down Town Studio.
The department of music of Brownell Hall announces the opening of a downtown studio for piano and violin at 518 McCague building, Fifteenth and Dodge streets. This new departure is for the purpose of giving an opportunity to those not enrolled in Brownell Hall of receiving instruction in piano or violin from the members of the faculty, who have heretofore taught exclusively at the main school.

A strong faculty of artists has been assembled, and all instruction will be given their personal direction, no work being done by assistants. Every effort will be made towards the highest musical and artistic development of each student. Pupils may enter at any time.

Mrs. Emily Weeks Dromgool was for some years a student in the New England conservatory in Boston and has studied under George Proctor, Harold von Mevius and Harold Bauer. She came to Omaha from New York, where she was actively engaged in studio work. Mrs. Dromgool has appeared as soloist with several orchestras and with the Olive Head string quartet.

Miss Estelle Anderson returned last year from Brussels, where she was a pupil for three years of Oskar Back of the Brussels-royal conservatory. Her previous work was done in this country under Herbert Butler and Adolph Welling of the American conservatory, Chicago. She is an experienced teacher, having been at the head of the violin department of Northside conservatory, Northside college, Sioux City, Ia., for two years. While in Brussels Miss Anderson had the honor of being for two years correspondent of the Musical Courier of New York.

Miss Sophie Nostriz-Nalmaska came from Vienna last fall. There she studied for several years with Mrs. Marie-Liizaniowska who was Leschetizky's favorite assistant for the last eight years, and this year is making her first American tour as pianist and composer. Miss Nalmaska is Mrs. Nettie Leschetizky's assistant and bears a letter from her stating that she will accept any pupil which Mrs. Nalmaska and her husband take them to Leschetizky, in Vienna, for lessons if they so desire.

Colvin Piano School.
After a period of six years study in Berlin and other continental cities Mr. Colvin returned to Omaha and founded what is known as "The Colvin Piano School."

The faculty has been added to and the scope of activities broadened. The school is an exclusive piano school, incorporated under the laws of Nebraska.

Pianoforte and kindred branches of music are taught, comprehensive courses are offered. The faculty is prepared with a most liberal education to impart a superior knowledge of theoretical and applied music.

Mr. Colvin and teachers, in behalf of the school wish to extend to all friends and patrons the warmest welcome for the ensuing year.

Our recitals are absolutely free, and each one given by individual students.

For first semester the following activities are scheduled:
First public piano recital (student), to be given by Emily Phelps, age 15 years, on Thursday evening, October 21, at the Y. W. C. A. auditorium.

Second public recital (student), to be given by Evelyn Voss, age 12 years, on Thursday evening, November 4, at the Y. W. C. A. auditorium.

Walter Wheatley's European Career.
A native of Missouri, Walter Wheatley, the operatic tenor, followed the popular dictum of the present and saw America first. After several tours of the United States and Canada in concert and opera, Mr. Wheatley, on the advice of the late lamented Miss Nordica, sailed for Europe. One year from the date he sailed he made his debut as Turid in "Cavalleria Rusticana," in London, being associated on that occasion by world famous artists. He has since held the record of all the principal singers of singing 101 performances of twenty-two different operas in the world.

During the seven years abroad Mr. Wheatley sang at the Opera Comique, Paris; the Scala, Milan, and the Teatro del Corso, Bologna, Italy, at which latter place he sang the season of 1912-13, after which he was re-engaged to sing at Covent Garden, during which he consented to sing at the Century Opera House, New York, where he holds the record of all the principal singers of singing 101 performances of twenty-two different operas in the world.

During all his public career, Mr. Wheatley has been besieged with pupils, who, during the two following seasons at his method. Among them can be named some well known English concert singers. In conversation with The Bee representative Mr. Wheatley made the statement that he considered the west the coming field for the better class of artists and looks forward to a great musical future for Omaha. He is backing his opinion by taking up his residence here.

Jessie Florence Conaway.
Miss Jessie Florence Conaway, teacher of artistic speech and song culture, spent her summer vacation in New York City, where she studied voice with prominent foreign and New York artists and did dramatic work with Madam Pitar Moran, the distinguished French-Spanish actress and pantomimist, who has attained a world-wide reputation and has received favorable comment from hundreds of America's foremost people, among them the distinguished actress, "Pilar Moran is the greatest living exponent of the silent drama."

Frank Mach.
Frank Mach, solo violinist and instructor, studied a course with Prof. Jan Marak of the famous Prague conservatory of music, where Kubelik and other world renowned violinists studied. He made wonderful progress, receiving an excellent recommendation from his instructor.

Mr. Mach comes from a noted musical family, his mother, the single, Hedrich Smetana, is named the world over as one of Europe's greatest composers. He made many musical friends while at Prague, and also had the pleasure of playing with Jaroslav Kocian, a world famous violinist, at a mid-season concert on board the ship Le Bretagne.

Mr. Mach has gained the reputation in musical circles as a genius of wonderful abilities, getting together an enormous class of promising pupils, through his honesty and perseverance. Many of his pupils are making a brilliant success, wherever they perform, displaying rare technical and interpretive abilities.

Mr. Mach has stayed here through his determination of making good in his home town, receiving offers from different conservatories, which he rejected. His aim is to make Omaha a violin center. Through the reports that are coming in he is succeeding. All of his pupils leaving the city and studying under celebrated teachers are receiving much comment on their artistic foundation. In a letter from Miss Margaret Johnson, who had moved to Chicago, she writes: "Mr. Maurice Goldblatt was very pleased with my work from you. He said again: 'You may give your last teacher my compliments.'"

Mr. Mach has many such flattering letters.

Voice Specialists.
Lena Ellsworth Dale, soprano and teacher of singing, announces the opening of her vocal studio at 1316 C. Avenue, at the corner of 13th and C. Avenue. This is Mrs. Dale's tenth studio opening. She has had as previous teachers, who will speak in praise of her, the following: Mrs. L. A. Lind, Conservatory of Music, Indiana; Graduated from the University of Chicago, Conservatory of Music, Indiana; and after having acted as assistant teacher to her father since her fourteenth year, she went to Chicago and continued her study under competent voice teachers for several years. In the Chicago studios, Mrs. Dale had exceptional opportunity for studying different methods of singing and the finer points of artistic interpretation. (Mrs. Dale was the first teacher of the first Presbyterian and Temple Israel five seasons.)

Miss Nellie F. Green.
Miss Nellie Green opened her dancing school September 21 at Prairie Park, near the city. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Green. Her first public appearance was at the age of 5 years, when she danced both a solo dance and also in the ballet in "Tales of Mother Goose," a fairy play given in South Side. Miss Green last winter assigned the French dancing school in Fremont, Neb., and is recognized as a teacher of talent. She is a pupil of Mr. Chambers of Omaha. Miss Green will have adult classes and assembly on Tuesday evening for those wishing to learn the new dances. She will give children classes on Saturday afternoon. Telephone Harney 4633.

Miss Anna E. Glasgow.
Having taught voice culture and piano for the last sixteen years, Miss Anna E. Glasgow again opened her studio at 503 Karbach block. The success attained in the last year has decided Miss Glasgows to add another piano to her artistic and social work in Omaha and vicinity and has a large number of pupils in both voice and piano. Anyone contemplating culture and piano, anyone who wishes a musical education will profit by calling at her studio and getting a full understanding of her methods. Descriptive recitals will be given this coming year at her studio.

Miss Loretta De Lone.
Miss Loretta De Lone, recently solo harpist of several of the largest symphony orchestras and teacher of harp in many of the eastern colleges and schools, is now established in her studio, 26 Lyric building. During the coming season Miss De Lone will engage principally in recital, concert and teaching. She has proven that the harp is not a difficult instrument to learn and that results are attained quicker than on any other musical instrument. Harps can be rented for those who wish to study before purchasing an instrument. Those wishing such an advantage should apply early in the season. The New York Musical Observer says of Miss De Lone's harp playing that "it was the most musically intelligent article ever heard in New York." For particular address Miss Loretta De Lone, 26 Lyric building, Omaha. Telephone Douglas 5704.

Mrs. Frances Baetens.
Mrs. Frances Baetens comes from a family of musicians. Mrs. Baetens began her study of music at an early age under competent masters, and finished her musical education at Stern's conservatorium, Berlin, Germany, where she studied for four years. She was at one time a member of the piano and harmony at the Iowa College of Music, Iowa, and was director of the music department of the Omaha Woman's club for two years. Mrs. Baetens has had experience, tireless ambition and deep interest in her work have brought splendid results and placed her among the most widely known and successful piano teachers in and about Omaha, Neb., and Council Bluffs, Ia.

Mary F. Cooper.
The Mary F. Cooper dancing studio has achieved success through preparation, natural talent and having the interests of the dancing public at heart. The classes are held for the following: Monday, child's beginning class, society dancing, 4 p. m. Evenings open for two years. Tuesday, teachers' class, 4 p. m.; folk and ball room dancing. Evening, business woman's class, aesthetic folk and society dancing, Wednesday, beginners' class for children in artistic dancing, 4 p. m. Evenings open for private class for high school girls in artistic dancing, 4 p. m. Thursday, advanced class for children in artistic dancing, 4 p. m. Friday, private club ladies, artistic and society dancing (filled). Saturday, all children's classes of week meet at 10:30 for cotillon figures, ball room, et cetera and general social dancing, 10:30 until 12. Afternoon, private lessons of classes. Evening, high school club. Struill now, as classes are all limited and many nearly filled.

Effie Steen Kittelson.
Mrs. Kittelson is an indefatigable worker. The work of the studio includes the regular three-years' course for graduation in voice, recitation, physical training, pantomime and dramatic art.

Frank E. Strawn.
Frank E. Strawn, pianist, was born and reared in Omaha, and is quite well known here. He studied under Mr. Borglum from 1907 to 1912, inclusive, with Cecil Berryman, Miss Mack and Miss Parvotz, who have also gained much local renown. Mr. Strawn has given recitals at the Schollmer & Mueller auditorium and at the Borglum studio, and then went into orchestral work.

Signe Christensen.
Miss Signe Christensen is a pianist of decided talent and highly indorsed by the Liebling method of instruction. Her persistency and winning ways make every one appreciate her real worth. Regardless of the size of Miss Christensen's class she never neglects one, even to the smallest detail. She has presented several of her pupils in recitals and has been a feature of an unusual large class for the beginning of the season.

Walter B. Graham.
Mr. Walter B. Graham, the well-known pianist, who has received not only as a vocalist of first rank, but as a most successful teacher. His studio is in the Wead building and he gives recitals of voice, and he is giving his personal attention to those who consult him. Mr. Graham has studied much abroad, and has been the recipient of much praise and commendation from artists of highest rank. Jean De Reszke says of his voice:
