

"INJUNS" INVADE FEDERAL COURT

Louie Dick Roamed Over Omaha Long Before There Were Any Houses in Neighborhood.

AND HE CHEWES CHEWING GUM

Dusky women, with their glistening, straight, black hair parted in the middle and drawn smoothly back over their heads were much in evidence in the Federal building. One woman wandered stolidly about the building with her pappoose held on her back by means of a shawl and looking wonderingly at the strange sights from this vantage point.

The "braves" were there, too. Two old fellows refused to take the elevator when invited by some pale faces, but climbed patiently up the stairs to the fourth floor. Safety first!

The "Injuns" are here as witnesses before the grand jury now in session. Meet Captain "Louie" Dick. "Louie" wears a brown uniform and a Grand Army sombrero with a gold cord around it.

"Louie" speaks good English and has spent most of his life in keeping order among Uncle Sam's wards up on the reservation. He is a gaunt, weather-beaten man, grey-haired at the temples and with most of his teeth gone. Other than his age as a man of 40, though "Louie" has been sixty-four winters.

Here Before Houses. "I was in Omaha before any house here," said Captain Dick. "All timber, wild land, up. I kill buffalo here, sleep on the ground where big building is now."

"Louie's" father was James Dick and he departed for the happy hunting grounds at the ripe old age of 114 years. He was born the year after George Washington died, in 1800, and died November 2, 1914.

"My father saw Lewis and Clark dragging boat up the Missouri river," said "Louie."

"But gone are those happy days. 'Louie' now spends his time as a policeman, being chief of police at Macy, Neb., among the Omaha and Winnebago Indians.

To Live Hundred Fourteen Years. "I live 114 years, too," said "Louie." "I take good care myself."

"Don't you drink or smoke or chew?" he was asked. "I smoke," said "Louie." "Chew too, don't you?"

"Louie's" jaws were working vigorously, but he shook his head. A lump of chicle appeared between the remaining teeth. "Louie" almost smiled, but not quite.

"I chew chewing gum," he said. Ah, "Louie," how can we make a romance out of a "redskin" who chews chewing gum?

Tank Men Meeting in Secret and the Reporters Barred

The delegates to the convention of the National Association of Galvanized Tank Manufacturers do not like visitors in the room. They are in session at the Hotel Castle. There are only a dozen of them, so a visitor is immediately conspicuous when he enters.

"Clamp" down goes the lid on all speeches and all utterances as soon as a nondelegate steps into the room. When a newspaper man stepped into the room Monday, President Eaton stepped up to learn who he was and who he represented. Immediately he turned to the delegates and said:

"This is a newspaper man. I don't know whether we can let him stay or not."

Then things shut up so tight one could hear a pin drop until the representative of the press left the room. Tuesday morning came, and the convention was still in session. The price of material for the manufacture of galvanized tanks occupies some time in the discussions. The discussions again ceased when a newspaper man stepped into the room. Again a battery of eyes was loosed on the innocent reporter.

The man speaking ceased talking and took a seat. Another delegate, not knowing the reporter, got to his feet and began to speak, but was hushed with a "hut, hut," until Assistant Secretary Kelly had told the reporter that officers would be selected in the afternoon.

The secretary also ventured the information that the delegates would lunch at noon at the Castle hotel.

With this fund of information the modest reporter backed out of the room with the battery of silent eyes still on him. The world is shut out of the secret at this session.

Conscience Fund is Still Growing

The "conscience fund" at the Northwestern ticket office is growing. A $5 bill came in Tuesday's mail from some local man who is supposed to have "beat" the road out of a fare sometimes, and later suffered the pangs of conscience.

"Please give this to the Northwestern Railroad company," an accompanying note stated. "It belongs to them. Assistant Agent Nilsson added the $5 to a $10 bill received from a similar source two weeks ago.

"Somebody must have been attending 'Billy Sunday's meetings,'" he remarked.

BOOKLET SHOWS HOW ART SURROUNDS WORKMEN

Business men are no longer considered mere money grabbers, and no longer is business a greedy pursuit of sordid gain. The ethics of business now-a-days take into consideration how the money is gained and what is given in return for it.

The demands of present days commerce call for the highest, the noblest, the best that there is in man. So it is that big business concerns and great business men are giving more attention to the development of the artistic, sentimental and sublime elements in themselves and in their workers.

Evidence of this fact is shown in a beautiful advertising booklet recently issued by the Postum Cereal company. Though it can be referred to as "merely advertising," it is a real work of art. The object of the booklet is to show how the elements of art and refinement surround the workers who make the Postum products, and surely no one could glance through the little book without gaining a more kindly feeling for the late C. W. Post and his pure food products.

NIGHT HIGH MAY BE INSTALLED

School Board May Decide Next Week on the Advisability of the New Move.

NIGHT SCHOOLS ON MONDAY

Superintendent Graff of the public schools is gathering information upon which will depend whether the Board of Education at its regular meeting next week will authorize the establishment of a night high school in this city.

Indications are the superintendent will recommend this educational adjunct. The superintendent's recommendation will guide the School board in its action.

The teachers' committee of the Board of Education considered this matter at several sessions and decided to put the question up to Superintendent Graff. If the demand warrants the starting of the school, then it will be started. The scope of the proposed night high school will be confined to practical lines. Various commercial branches will be included.

Demand for the School. The superintendent has learned there are many young men and women who have entered business activities without high school education and who now realize the value of a stronger educational foundation. For the most part these people started to work through necessity rather than choice, and most would avail themselves of a night high school if the opportunity should be offered.

A few days ago a young man called at the superintendent's office and asked if a night high school would be started here. He explained that he attended his high school at Lincoln, but quit after a short attendance. He is now anxious to increase his knowledge. He said his father, who is foreign-born, wants to go to night school, but would have to start in the first grade.

The course of the new high school will not be fully determined until it is known how many would enter and what studies they would like to take.

Night schools for the grades will be opened next Monday evening in Kellom and Comenius schools under same conditions as previous years.

Two Men With One Gun Hold Up Clerk in Hotel; Get but $6

Two men and one revolver entered the Nebraska Lodging house, 137 Douglas street, at the witching hour of midnight last night, gave several stern commands to J. C. Downing, clerk, and departed with $6 taken from the till.

To make sure Mr. Downing would not disturb the peace while the intruders were inventorying the cash, a handkerchief was stuffed into his mouth.

Descriptions of the robbers were referred to the detective department at police headquarters.

YOUNG JOHN GIVEN BUNCH OF STOCK IN COLORADO CO.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has been presented by his father, John D. Rockefeller, sr., a sufficient block of the common stock of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company to give him controlling interest in the company, according to a story printed today by the Tribune.

The article says that the senior Rockefeller was pleased with his son's testimony before the Federal industrial relations commission several months ago in New York City, and shortly afterward gave him enough stock to carry control of the property in Colorado.

Makes Stubborn Coughs Vanish in a Hurry

Surprisingly Good Cough Syrup Easily and Cheaply Made at Home

If some one in your family has an obstinate cough or a bad throat or chest cold that has been hanging on and refuses to yield to treatment, get from any drug store 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex and make it into a pint of cough syrup, and watch that cough vanish.

Four the 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 54 cents and gives you a full pint—a family supply—of a most effective remedy, at a saving of $2. A day's use will usually overcome a hard cough. Easily prepared in 5 minutes—full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste. Children like it.

It's really remarkable how promptly and easily it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough.
