BOSTON WINS FOURTH CONTEST

Philadelphia Nationals Lose to Boston Red Sox for the Third Time Straight.

LEWIS' BAT AGAIN DANGEROUS

day Philadelphia had runners on second base, with only one out, and in neither case were they advanced as far as third. In the first Bancroft was left at the keystone sack, when Paskert and Cravath both struck out. In the second Luderus led off with a single, was sacrificed to second by Whitted and left there. The lack of driving power at the critical moment has been the deciding factor against the Philadelphia players. For tonight, while the score of games stands three to one against them the Phillies have scored seven runs to their opponents' eight.

Scenes in First.

Boston was lucky to score its first run today. Barry walked to begin the third inning. Cady laid down a bunt that ordinarily would have been an easy out, Chalmers, in the box for the Phillies, slipped as he went for the ball and could not recover himself until Cady was safe at first. Shore sacrificed Barry to third and Cady to second and the former scored a moment later when Hooper was credited with an infield hit, on a ball that Niehoff should have gotten.

It looked here as if the Sox were in a position to make enough runs in this one inning to decide the contest, but their attack failed. Scott popped up a foul and Speaker was out on an easy roller down the first base line.

The second and eventually the winning run came over in the sixth when Hoblitzel singled and raced home on Duffy Lewis' screaming double to the left field fence. Lewis had driven in the winning run yesterday and he was easily the hero of the crowd today. His defensive work in the field this afternoon was a little short of wonderful. He was credited with six putouts and each chance that came his way was a difficult one. Up against the fence one moment he was dashing toward the infield at another to snatch a ball from his shoe tops.

Chalmers Hurts Good Game.

George Chalmers, the third Philly pitcher to fall before the hefty hickory sticks of the American league champions, hurled a fair game of ball. He allowed only eight hits, Hoblitzel leaping on his slants for three of that number. Chalmers is a native of Scotland, but he came to this country at an early age and has taken to the national game with all the skill and cunning of an American boy. Today's game was the last in which the players share the receipts. A total of $144,890.50 awaits division among the members of the two teams. This is the share allowed under the National commission rules by which players' participation in the profits is limited to the first four games. The winning team will receive $58,225.00, or 40 per cent of the total. As twenty-three players of each team are eligible contestants in the series, the individual share will amount to $2,532.38 each if the division is equal.

Can Decide Themselves.

The players themselves are the authorities in deciding how the money shall be disposed of, and may reduce the allowance to utility men who have figured little in the activities of the league season or of the series by vote among themselves.

To the Losers will go

Twenty-three shares of $2,532.38, if the division is equal.

The players' profits this year are not equal to those of 1911 and 1912, the record crowds at the two games played on Braves' field failing to offset the restricted attendance at the Philadelphia park.

Figures for Four Games.

During these four games 123,000 persons have watched the play of the teams. They have paid $25,325.30 for their places. Of this sum the National commission will receive $2,532.38. Each club treasury will gain $4,225.38 from these games and will be further enriched, as will the commission's strong box, by the receipts at subsequent contests in which the players have no financial interest.

The crowd which witnessed the game today unexpectedly proved smaller than yesterday's record-breaking outpouring.

That today's figures did not eclipse those of yesterday, however, was not the fault of the Boston fans. Between 15,000 and 20,000 of them were turned away at the gates. Many tickets holders were caught in this way and were unable to make their way to the gates, which were closed long before the game started.

Crowd Becomes Dangerous.

The scene outside the park was at times a riotous confusion. The crush became so bad that it seemed dangerous to continue the sale of standing room tickets and it was due to this fact that the attendance for today fell several hundred short of yesterday.

The day was made for base ball, a brilliant October sun having in its rays

The warmth of early summer. Overcoats were cast aside and some of the fans sat in shirt sleeves.

There was little to thrill the spectators outside the circus catches by Duffy Lewis, so the fans amused themselves largely with music and songs. There were at least a half dozen brass bands in the big enclosure, surrounded by as many groups of organized rosters. As the home team was always in front, however, there was little for which to do any rooting.

Hurlers Do Not Star.

Neither Chalmers nor Shore shone with any great brilliance in the pitcher's box. Shore's game was not up to the standard he set when he first faced Alexander last Friday. His work was good enough to win, however, and in base ball analysis this leaves little to be said.

Tomorrow Manager Carrigan undoubtedly will send George Foster to the mound to oppose Alexander. Foster pitched a brilliant game in Philadelphia last Saturday, winning it with his own timely hitting and he is rather anxious for a fling at the Philadelphia star.

'Babe' Ruth, the big Boston left hander, has not yet had a chance in the series, however, and Carrigan may switch to him if the big fellow seems right.

Shore is Cheered.

Pitcher Shore, who lost his battle with Alexander in Philadelphia last Friday, was loudly cheered as he took the hurling mound to open the game. He delivered up a ball to Stock, lead-off man for the Philadelphia team. He then shot over two strikes and after another ball was called Stock ripped a hit down the left field foul line.

Duffy Lewis by hard sprinting fielded the ball quickly as Stock was digging out for second. Lewis made a fine throw to Scott and the Philadelphia runner was sniped as he rushed into the bag. The Boston outfielder was cheered for his neat piece of work.

Shore, in trying to keep the ball on the edge of the plate, gave Bancroft four bad ones and Benny walked. With two balls and two strikes on Paskert, Bancroft stroked to second for a steal. Cady made a good throw to Barry and the runner was clearly out, but in the mix-up at the bag the ex-Mackman dropped the ball, an excusable error, and Bancroft was safe.

Hurler Fools Cravath.

Paskert struck out and Shore completely fooled 'Gavvy' Cravath, who also fanned the air.

Chalmers then made his debut as a world's series pitcher and started out in fine style. He made short work of that the ball was not allowed, as Rigler indicated that Chalmers was not on the pitcher's slab when he apparently made a motion to throw to first. Evans sent both runners back.

Shore laid down a sacrifice and was out, Stock to Niehoff, Barry and Cady advancing. Hooper then pushed an ugly bouncer to the infield. Niehoff ran in on the ball and batted it down, but he was unable to check either of the runners. Barry scoring the Sox' initial run and Cady going to third.

Boston Rooters Glad.

It was a scratchy hit, but the Boston fans nevertheless were overjoyed to have their team break into the run column, for Chalmers was pitching a fine article of ball. Scott sent out a high foul fly that Whitted got by good sprinting and held Cady and Hooper on the bases. Speaker was called upon to bring home another run, but he offered Luderus an easy grounder and was out at first.

The Phillies got two men on bases in the fourth inning. After Luderus had flied out to Hooper, Whitted with three and two on him bounced a grounder to Scott and was thrown out. Both Luderus and Whitted had attempted to bunt Shore's first pitch and both resulted in little pop fouls out of the reach of the infielders and the Boston battery. Niehoff, who had not yet made a hit in the series, saw first base for the first time when Shore served him with four bad balls.

Burns put him on second with a single to right field. Again Chalmers came up in a pinch and ended the inning by shooting a scorching grounder to Scott, who snapped the ball to Gardner, forcing Niehoff at third. It was a very neat play.

Drives to Center.

Hoblitzel opened the Red Sox fourth inning auspiciously with a safe drive to center field. He advanced to second on Lewis' sacrifice, Chalmers to Niehoff, amid much cheering. There he was left, however, for Gardner was out on a long fly to Whitted and Barry's sky scraping fly settled into Paskert's hands.

Both pitchers were going in true championship form by this time. Each had yielded only three hits. Chalmers was the steeper, having given two bases on balls to Shore's four up to the end of the fourth inning. Shore after that did not allow any of the Quakers to walk.

Stock, first up for the Moran men in the fifth, flied out to Lewis, who made a pretty catch of the ball within a few inches of the ground. Shore pitched three bad balls to Bancroft. In waiting for the fourth, Benny had two strikes called on him and then flied out to Hooper. Paskert brought the frame to a close by flying out to Lewis.

In the Red Sox half, Cady started the fans to cheering again by hitting a single into center field. He got no further than the first station. Shore was a victim on strikes on three pitched balls.

Weather Helps Chalmers.

The warm afternoon undoubtedly helped Chalmers, but his elaborate wind-up caused him to lose the advantage of cutting the corners of the plate at times. Burns had to step about lively on several occasions in order to hold the ball and when the delivery was in or near the groove, the American league champions appeared to have less difficulty solving Chalmers' curves than they did those of Alexander and Mayer.

Shore's second appearance on the mound for the Red Sox was not marked by any great improvement over his initial facing of the Phillies last Friday. Although he figured tonight as a winning pitcher it was due more to the excellent defense at his back than to any phenomenal twisting of his arm. He fanned two more batters than in the opening contest of the series, he had two more hits charged against him and allowed the same number of bases on balls. The sphere did not respond with the sweep or break that was so noticeable last week and while he tightened up at critical moments, his pitching was less impressive than in the same he lost.

Defense Works Fine.

The defense at Shore's back, however, was of a far higher character than in the opening struggle, when the Red Sox were still unsteady and the breaks went against them. In the game today they played as if the glamour of the world's series had worn off and they were in the midst of an ordinary scheduled contest. Both the infield and outfield moved smoothly and swiftly, cutting off high twisting hits and when the occasion arose, showing the same keen playing judgment that marked their work during the closing months of the pennant season.

An example of this quick thinking and team play occurred in the seventh inning, when, with Chalmers on first as a result of his Texas leaguer, Stock smashed a hard bouncer to Scott at short, who scooped the ball up and relayed it to Barry at second for a force out. Barry then made a quick throw to Hoblitzel to catch the batter, but the ball slipped through Hoblitzel and rolled to the grandstand boxes, hitting the coach's box.

Manager Moran, who was coaching back of first base, sent Stock down to second on the play, but Hoblitzel sprinted after the ball and by a quick throw to Barry, who was waiting at second, caught Stock five feet in front of the sack.

Sacrifice Falls.

In marked contrast to this clever turn of what appeared to be a bad slip into a fast double play was one by the losing team in the third inning, in which the Red Sox scored their first run of the game. With Barry on first, due to a pass, Cady attempted to lay down a bunt. The ball, hit a trifle too hard, rolled to the right of the base and both Chalmers and Luderus tried to field it. Chalmers slipped just as he stopped and fell full length, covering the ball completely. Luderus was well into the diamond and when Chalmers finally secured the ball, Cady was sprinting for first, where the bag was unprotected and the attempted sacrifice went as a hit.

The ability to think and handle the ball quickly was demonstrated on several occasions by the Red Sox and was the deciding factor in the victory, although the winners by their hard and timely batting backed up the defensive work with an attack which has been notably lacking in the play of the Philadelphia club in the series to date. In this connection the Red Sox varied their tactics too early when on one occasion they switched their batting methods and caught the Phillies unprepared for the change.

Gets Three Hits.

In the eighth session, with Speaker on first and one out, Hoblitzel brought off a perfect hit-and-run play when a sacrifice hit was expected, driving the ball to right field, on which Speaker easily made third. This was not the only time that Hoblitzel came in for a round of applause, for he found his batting eye early in the game and accumulated three hits and scored one of the two runs of the day for the victors. Cady was the only other member of the team to secure more than one hit. Lewis added another to his string and still leads the club with seven hits in fourteen times at bat, giving him a batting average of .500. Barry is second with five hits in fifteen times at bat, while Speaker and Hooper are tied for third place with four hits each.

Among the National leaguers, Luderus, as the result of his three safe drives today, is in the lead with a total of five hits in fourteen trips to the plate. Bancroft still holds second place with three hits, although he did not increase his total today. Burns, Cravath and Stock are all grouped with two hits each.

The Red Sox as a team have made seven runs and thirty-two hits and the Phillies six runs and eighteen hits in the four games of the series.

'Right of the great lines of men and boys stretching out from the entrances to Braves' field was pleasing to the players. It was the last game in which they were to share in the proceeds. It was believed today's crowd would be equal to that of yesterday, which numbered 42,300 paid admissions. Figuring from such a basis for today's game, members of the team which wins the series will receive about $3,700 each. The losers' share individually will amount to about $2,500.

The lines of fans who made the first rush through the gates today were longer than those of yesterday. Hundreds of clerks and salesmen were early on the scene to get choice seats for their holiday outing.

First Inning.

Philadelphia-Stock singled past third, but was out, stretching his hit, Lewis to Scott. Bancroft walked. Bancroft went to second and would have been out had not Barry dropped the ball. Paskert fanned. Cravath hit on an outpouch and the crowd gave him the laugh. He struck out and Shore was given a lead cheer as he walked to the home bench. No run, one hit, one error.

Boston-Hooper struck out. Scott also fanned. Speaker walked. Speaker out, trying to steal, Burns to Niehoff. It was a pitchout and Speaker was easily sniped. No run, no hit, no error.

Second Inning.

Philadelphia-Luderus shot a single to right. Whitted sacrificed, Luderus going to second. Niehoff fouled out to Cady. Burns walked. Chalmers was a victim on strikes. No run, one hit, no errors.

Boston-Hoblitzel struck out. Chalmers threw out Lewis at first. Lewis was given a good hand on coming to bat. Gardner flied out to Paskert. Chalmers kept the ball around the Boston batters' knees all through the inning. He had lots of speed and good command. No run, no hits, no errors.

Third Inning.

Philadelphia-Gardner threw out Stock at first. Bancroft walked for the second time. Paskert fanned out. Cravath sent a long fly to Lewis. It would have been an easy home run on the Philadelphia club's home grounds. No run, no hit, no error.

Boston-Barry walked. Cady got an infield hit, Chalmers slipping while attempting to field the batter's bunt. Barry went to second. Chalmers made a balk and Umpire Evans, after consulting Rigler reversed himself, sent Barry back to second and went to third and Cady to second. Barry scored on an infield hit by Hooper which Niehoff was only able to knock down. Cady went to third on the play. Scott fouled out to Whitted. Cady being held at third and Hooper at first.

Speaker was out at first. Luderus unsatisfied. One run, two hits, no error.

Fourth Inning.

Philadelphia-Luderus flied out to Hooper. Scott tossed out. Whitted at first. The Philadelphia players were trying the bunting game to worry Shore, but their attempts at bunts went foul. Niehoff walked. Burns singled to right. Niehoff going to second. Scott took Chalmers' seeming hit and threw to Gardner, forcing Niehoff—a brilliant play. No run, one hit, no error.

Boston-Hoblitzel singled over second. Lewis sacrificed. Hoblitzel moving to second. Whitted took Gardner's long fly. Hoblitzel was held at second. Barry flied out to a Paskert. No run, one hit, no error.

Fifth Inning.

Philadelphia-Stock flied out to Lewis, who came in and took the ball from off the top of the grass. Bancroft flied out to Hooper. Paskert flied out to Lewis. No run, no hit, no error.

Boston-Lewis had to doff his cap when he came to the bench. Cady sent a single to center. Shore fanned. Cooper sent up a high fly to Paskert. Scott flied out to Paskert. No run, one hit, no error.

Sixth Inning.

Philadelphia-Cravath sent out a long fly to Speaker. Luderus singled to center. Whitted popped out to Cady. Niehoff flied out to Lewis. No run, one hit, no error.

Boston-Niehoff threw out Speaker at first, Niehoff coming in on the grass to take the ball. Hoblitzel pumped a single over Bancroft's head. Hoblitzel scored on Lewis' long two-bagger to the left field fence. Gardner flied out to Paskert. Chalmers threw out Barry at first. One run, two hits, no error.

Seventh Inning.

Philadelphia-The band played 'The Star Spangled Banner' and the crowd stood up, while the players took off their caps. Scott threw out Burns. Chalmers got a Texas leaguer to left. Stock forced Chalmers, Scott to Barry. Barry threw wildly to first, Hoblitzel retrieving the ball and threw out Stock, who ran to second on the overthrow. No run, one hit, no error.

Boston-Cady struck out. Shore fanned. Stock threw out Hooper at first. No run, no hit, no error.

Eighth Inning.

Philadelphia-Bancroft flied out to Lewis. Paskert popped out to Gardner. Cravath shot a long hit to center field which hopped over Speaker's head and the batter made three bases. Cravath scored on Luderus third single. Dugy ran for Luderus. Dugy stole second. Shore threw out Whitted at first. One run, two hits, no error.

Ninth Inning.

Philadelphia-Gardner threw out Niehoff. Burns up. Burns popped to Scott. Byrne batted for Chalmers and flied out to Lewis.
