MISS HELENE PAINTER, leading soprano of the Charlottenburg Opera house in Berlin, equally famed in Vienna, Paris and London, is an Omaha girl, and once considered the most popular girl here in the younger set. The question asks itself: Is Nell Painter, as she was known here, typical of the smart Omaha girl?

Miss Painter, driven from Europe by the great war, is now playing in "The House of Hits," as the Cort theater is called. It goes without saying that New York is raving over her singing, her dancing, her beauty, her charm, her smile. In a feature story which appeared in a recent New York Daily, this Omaha girl declared that she was:

Very undomestic.
In love with being in love.
Fond of motorcycling.
Enamored of classic dancing.
Wild about horses and dancing.
"I am in love with being in love," said our prima donna. "I might say I am perpetually in love with some one—but that would sound scandalous. So let's say that I'm forever in love with the thought that I am in love."

Knowing Nell Painter from her babyhood, all this has set me to wondering if she is typical of our town; or was it through foreign influence that she learned to be undomestic and became capable to analyze love as a mere mental condition?

Are there many other Omaha maidens of the same tastes and beliefs?

MRS. MILLARD HEAD VISITING NURSES

Mrs. L. L. Kountze, Vice President, and Clara Thomas is Re-Elected as Secretary.

MRS. ROGERS HONORARY HEAD
Mrs. Barton Millard will head the Visiting Nurse association for the coming year. Mrs. Luther L. Kountze, the retiring president, assumes the vice presidency; Miss Clara Thomas is re-elected secretary, and Miss Alice Buchanan treasurer. These officers were elected yesterday morning at the city hall. Mrs. Herbert Rogers is honorary president of the association. Mrs. Millard was not present, having left early in the week for California.

The following directors were re-elected: Meadames V. B. Caldwell, Dr. Mattie Arthur, G. L. Bradley, T. R. Ward, R. W. Connell and Thomas Kilpatrick.
The new directors are: Meadames G. W. Jagersman, H. O. Edwards, J. H. Harris, C. E. Scary of South Side and Mrs. C. W. Russell.
Mrs. W. R. Adams was elected chairman of the relief committee, a new committee.

Many More Calls Made.
The board of directors were most enthusiastic over the reports of the last year, the most successful in the history of the organization. The number of nurses was nearly doubled over the previous year and 4,000 more calls were made. The association now has nine nurses and last year made 12,377 visits to 2,481 patients.
Mrs. Kountze, the retiring president, recommended that the work among tuberculosis patients be given particular attention. This is one of the most expensive and exhaustive works, but one that is most needed, according to Mrs. Kountze.
The board expressed its gratitude to Victor Rosewater, editor of The Bee, for the assistance given by The Bee Milk and Ice Fund.
Other departments of work include the dispensary, school nursing and the baby stations.

Supervised Play Will Lessen Crime, Says Miss Magee
Addressing an audience of twelve members of the Economic League Tuesday evening, Nellie Magee of the City Mission contended that supervised play develops character of children and lessens crime.
"The use of the child's leisure time should be carefully considered. All play and no useful work is as bad as all work and no play," was a thought presented.
Miss Magee urged that the youngsters be given work which will interest them, develop their talents and be an incentive for further effort. Open air activities were emphasized.

Court House Grounds Soon to be Lighted
After weeks of "watchful waiting" the four granite columns to support the electrolamps on the court house grounds have arrived from Vermont and have been delivered at the court house grounds. The bronze parts were finished sometime ago and are stored in the court house basement. It is now expected that the lamps will be completed and in place in another week or ten days.

Buy a Marriage License, but Balks on Wedding Bells
"I want a marriage license, but I don't want to be married," was in effect what Clifford Ayers of Logan, Ia., said in Cupid's corner at the court house.
Ayers, who is 21 years of age, and Miss Leslie Harmon, 23, also of Logan, appeared before Herbert Stubbendorf, Cupid's agent, and signified their desire to be married. The obliging agent issued the license, accepted it in payment for it and summoned Justice of the Peace Britt. They were ushered into a waiting room. The justice arrived.
"Join hands," he said.
"Wait a minute," said Ayers. "I'm not sure I want to be married. In fact, I know I do not."
The bride was astounded, but she did not say what she thought. The justice was in the same condition.
"Well, let's go," said Ayers.
"Take the marriage license, anyway," said Cupid's agent. "You bought it."
Ayers took it. What he did with it has not yet been told.

Rotary Executive Speaks at Meeting of the Omaha Club

"Business men with ideals are the ones who amount to the most and do the greatest good," declared John Knutson of Sioux City, governor of the Tenth district of Rotary clubs, before the Omaha Rotary club at the Henshaw at noon.

"Folks may laugh at the business man with ideals, and say that he is up in the air and won't get anywhere. But in the long run, ideals of ethics and right relations are best; having ideals in business is the only practical system, and the business men with ideals like the Rotarians have are the ones who will accomplish the most."

Mr. Knutson happened to be in the city on a trip, so attended the weekly luncheon meeting of the local Rotarians and made a brief talk. He is governor of the Rotary club of Nebraska, Iowa, North and South Dakota.
Officers of the Nebraska Humane society were special guests of the club and made addresses concerning the activities of their organization.

"A team driver who beats his horses is a coward," said Vice President Theodore Ringwall of the society. He appealed to the Rotarians to give their moral support to the Humane society in its work of protecting dumb beasts from abuse. Secretary Ben Stanley and Treasurer H. E. Mann of the society also spoke briefly. Colonel F. C. Healey presided.

STILL NO CLUE TO SMITH'S MURDERER

Mrs. A. Lally, Only Person to See Holdup Unmasked, Says She Could Not Identify Him

BANDIT MAY HAVE LEFT CITY
The police in their search for the murderer of W. H. Smith are apparently no nearer their goal than they have been since the crime was committed. Mrs. A. Lally, 411 North Twenty-fifth street, who saw the man suspected of the crime, unmasked, on the evening of October 14, was called to headquarters to look over the suspects.

It was on the front porch of her home that Miss Marie Holland and William Brennan were confronted by a lone bandit answering the description the police have on hand. Hearing a stranger on the porch Mrs. Lally switched on the electric porch light and went to the door. With curses and threats upon her life, the unmasked bandit compelled her at the point of a revolver to go back inside. When asked this morning by a Bee reporter if she could identify the man if he were arrested she emphatically asserted, "I could not. I told the police that I got a glimpse of the man, but in the excitement of the moment his features and characteristics of dress and manner were not impressed on my mind."

Little Chance for Identification.
As Mrs. Lally is the only one so far known to the authorities who has seen the man unmasked, the chance of a positive identification by any of his victims is a slim one indeed.
Mrs. Lally looked at a picture in the room's gallery which E. J. Malone, one of the guards at the House of Correction, declared looked something like the man. She was unable to either affirm or deny that it was the man who threatened her.

May Have Left Town.
Captain Maloney is of the belief that the man left town directly after shooting Smith, and that the chances for his apprehension are few indeed. Nevertheless, the detective department and the force are running down every hint of evidence that might lead to success, and will continue to do so.
Apparently the omission of the recent event has frightened the criminal element into temporary inactivity at least.

The long string of holdups, sneak jobs, pocket-picking, burglaries and thefts of all descriptions which has been bulletined at headquarters for the last two months has all but ceased.
Suspect Released.
Several of the suspects arrested immediately after the Smith murder have been released, and several more have been arrested.
Officers Cunningham and Burnham brought in a man from North Sixteenth street, whom several of the House party assert is of the same build and general appearance of the bandit that held them up. This fellow is of the height and weight, according to these folk, and will be subjected to strict examination. He is a man of police record.

Need More Police.
Captain Maloney is strongly in favor of increasing the number of detectives and patrolmen, and the establishment of an emergency squad of four men to be on hand at night, ready to respond to any hurry call. "The detective department should have an emergency car of its own, and the emergency cars should be equipped with searchlights as in other cities the size of Omaha.
In answering a burglar call this light can be turned full on the house in question, and more than doubles the chance of getting the man if he is still in the place."
