Fat lamb trade started in fair season, with nearly everything moving on about a steady basis. One price, $5.65, bought the bulk of the offerings, although some of the best went almost straight at this figure. Tops are still nominally quoted as high as $8.75.

The feeder demand was considerably larger than the supply again today, and feeding lambs sold right from the start at fully 10513c higher prices, with some of the more optimistic traders quoting them even more than that in spots. One five-car string that carried a fleshy top brought $5.65, which is as high as anything has sold on feeding orders this season, and several bands of the more desirable sort went at $5.608.60. This is the highest spot in the feedes trade for several weeks.
