By MELLIFICIA. Wednesday, October 27, 1915.

All this autumn the discussion of styles has been kept up. Should skirts be short, or very short? Was the hour glass figure to come in again? Were hoops to be thrust upon femininity once more? Pantellette costumed figures were exhibited in the shop windows before our very eyes, and conjectures were rife as to what belle or matron would have the daring to first appear with nether garments peeping beneath her skirts.

Of course, it was the styles of grown-ups which were discussed, because, much as the mother enjoyed the selection of the infantile wardrobe, she never looked upon it in any way as a problem. Baby's styles were just simply darling as they were, no one would have them changed for the world—the dearest, sweetest, conventional frocks of snowy mull, the lace embowered basinet, everything the whitest, the daintiest, the simplest.

But it now looks as if there is going to be a change. It is the doctor, and not the costumer, who counts where baby is considered. If baby has vanity, it means nothing—baby's influence is all too indirect to weigh.

Last week in Philadelphia the great scientists and medical authorities on optical matters meet in convention—and this is where styles may be affected thereby.

"If you care for the health of the youngster," said Prof. Woll of Columbia university, "don't let white be on him nor about him. White is the worst color for babies; it is ruinous. White dresses, white-trimmed beds and white carriages are destroying the eyes of our children."

And they all seemed to agree with Dr. Woll in that convention of great savants.

It is positively ghastly to think of it, but the wise ones say the baby must be dressed in tan, or light brown, or greenish gray. It is depressing to think of what baby's styles will be, even worse than eugenics.

Piper-Mulvihill Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Anastasia Mulvihill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mulvihill, to Mr. Thomas F. Piper of Philadelphia, son of Mrs. George Piper of New York City, was solemnized Tuesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at St. Peter's church. Rev. Father McCarthy, assisted by Father Quinlan and Father Dowd, officiated.

Only members of the families of bride and bridegroom, with a few intimate friends, were present.

The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Mrs. Elaine Young.

The bride wore her going-away gown of Russian blue velvet, trimmed with gray fox fur, and carried white chrysanthemums. A black velvet hat with white aigrettes completed the costume.

The bridesmaid, Miss May Mulvihill, sister to the bride, wore a mulberry cloth costume with laces for trimming, black velvet hat and carried American Beauty roses.

The bridesroom was attended by Mr. John J. Mulvihill, Jr., brother to the bride. The church and home decorations were in white chrysanthemums and palms.

Mr. and Mrs. Piper left last evening for New York City, later to visit Atlantic City. After December 1 Mr. and Mrs. Piper will be at home in Philadelphia.

CHILD ITCHED AND SCRATCHED
Until Scale Came Off Eruption On Limbs. Gone in Two Weeks.
HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT
$4.00
The first I noticed of the trouble was a few small pimples that came out on my child's legs and gradually grew larger until they were as large as a dime. They began to spread and look very bad. It was a sore eruption and had a thick scale on it. The pimples had water in them and they seemed to smart. They itched and she would scratch at them until the scale came off. This helped them to spread worse. I had heard of Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I bought it to try them. It was not much longer than a couple of weeks before the eruption was gone and she was healed." TO SEND GOSPEL TEAMS INTO STATE

Extra Money Raised During Sunday Campaign Not an Accident, Says Rev. Titus Lowe.

EXECUTIVE BOARD IS TO QUIT

The executive committee of the Omaha Evangelistic association which had the "Billy" Sunday campaign in charge will resign within a short time, it was stated by Rev. Titus Lowe, chairman.

"We have carried the burden of the movement so far," he said, "and it is time that others were assuming the work of carrying on the campaign and following up the results obtained and extending them to the surrounding country."

"The surplus in the fund raised for expenses of the campaign is not an accident. It was planned for and will be used in the extension work expenses. If we are to get the greatest amount of good out of this campaign we must continue to work and work hard, and this requires money. If a gospel team of ten men, for instance, is sent to Havlock or Schuyler or some other town it is very likely that the collection taken would not be enough to pay their expenses. The deficit will then come out of the surplus in the campaign expense fund. There will also be printing and postage bills."

The suggestion of Rev. J. W. Welch, advance organizer for Mr. Sunday, that all the trail letters be received into the various churches on one big Sunday, preferably the first Sunday after "Billy's" departure, will not be carried out. Each pastor will be permitted to receive new members wherever he wishes.

This is largely because different denominations have different methods of receiving members and of preparing members for reception. The Methodists, for example, receive members on probation and the pastor then instructs them in Methodist doctrine, church history, etc., preparatory to receiving them into full membership.

It is suggested that the continuation committee appointed at the meeting of the executive committee last Monday will probably be in charge of the post-campaign work. This committee consists of E. E. Thomas, chairman; W. E. Poshner, Dr. J. B. Leichtenwalner, Rev. T. R. House and F. D. Wead.

MANY IOWA TEACHERS COMING TO CONVENTION

Between 600 and 700 teachers from the schools of western Iowa are this year expected to attend the Nebraska State Teachers' association convention in Omaha November 1. Some 500 attended last year.

The Iowa state teachers' convention is held in Des Moines on the same dates as the Nebraska in Omaha, but the last few years it has been customary for the teachers of western Iowa to attend here and be allowed the same credit wherever they attend. Many of the principals and superintendents in the western part of Iowa have already written the bureau of publicity that the entire corps of teachers will be present at the Nebraska association convention.

Assassins are always cowards. The anonymous scribbler, man or woman who sends an unsigned postal card or letter of abuse, is a coward. We have received a good many. If it would only relieve them of malice and spleen, the end might justify the means. We have tried to do our duty. We knew we would have to pay the penalty. We have no feeling of bitterness. We hope they will soon get it out of their systems. We are willing to forget and let bygones be bygones.

Hummel Strives to Save Life of City's Most Stately Tree

Commissioner Hummel of the park department is interested just now in trying to save the life of the largest tree in Omaha. This mighty sentinel is a cottonwood known as "Big Ben," located at the public spring near the east entrance of Elmwood park. The tree is nearly seven feet in diameter at the base and reaches a height of 125 feet.

When leaves of summer adorn its wide-spreading branches it casts a cooling shade over a spring outlet where many passersby stop to slake their thirst. Two years ago lightning struck the tree near the ground and tore a deep gash. Borers entered this opening and their ravages threaten the life of the tree.

Mr. Hummel is administering heroic treatment and expects to save the tree for future usefulness.

Cup Cakes

1/2 Cup Butter
2 Eggs
2 Teaspoons Baking Powder
Pinch of Cinnamon or Nutmeg

2 Cups Sugar
3/4 Cup Flour
1/2 Cup Cottage Cheese
Evaporated Milk diluted with equal part of water

Cream the sugar and butter. Add milk. Add eggs well beaten. Thoroughly mix flour, baking powder, cinnamon or nutmeg. Add to the mixture of butter, sugar, milk and eggs. Place in individual tins, or in muffin tins and bake in moderate oven.

Whether for cup cakes, or other baking, you cannot have milk that is so good. Thousands of housewives declare the best results are obtained from Cottage Evaporated Milk, because it is so pure and rich, and uniformly so. That's because it is just the best of milk from the finest herds in the richest dairy section of America—with part of the water removed scientifically, nothing added. You will surely like it better than the varying quality of milk your milkman supplies. American Milk Company, Chicago.
