How to Protect Pedestrians During Building Operations

City Commissioners Jardine and Hummel, Structural Engineer Brown of the city building department and contractors erecting buildings at Fifteenth and Sixteenth and Farnam streets yesterday agreed that seven-foot covered passageways for pedestrians passing these structures would serve the best interests of the public.

This matter was brought to the attention of the city council by business men directly south and east of the Ross building at Sixteenth and Farnam streets, their contentions being that the closing of the sidewalks seriously affects their business. They further contended that the contractors are not observing the building ordinances.

These passageways will be placed just outside of the curb lines. Engineer Brown and the contractors convinced the city commissioners that as a safety-first proposition it would be unwise to place the walks inside the curb line, because of the possible dangers of falling material.

"Our building laws give the city building department discretionary powers in a matter of this kind. It is obvious that when a heavy piece of material falls it is more likely to fall inside than outside of the sidewalk line," asserted Mr. Brown.

Expressing himself further on the situation, he said: "I would not be a party to allowing these covered walks inside of the sidewalk line. Human life is of more value than the convenience of a few business interests that may suffer slightly because of building improvements. It is a matter which requires consideration of the possible dangers. Accidents will happen in spite of the most careful building methods. Again, it must be considered that it is almost impossible to erect a covered walk strong enough to withstand the impact of, for instance, a piece of material weighing 500 pounds, falling 100 feet.

Meat Eating Makes Bad Kidneys

Heavy meat meals are all right for athletes, for people who work hard out of doors and for dogs, but for the average person, such a diet is apt to load the blood with uric acid and to injure the kidneys. Bad backs, lame ankles, back, blue, nervous spells, dizziness, heart fluttering, rheumatic pains, and bladder troubles indicate weak kidneys, and foretell danger of dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease. Don't neglect this condition. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have given relief to thousands.

Omaha Proof—Henry George Baker, barber, 1036 S. Tenth St., says: "I never took any medicine until an attack of backache set in. It pained me so much that I rolled and tossed all night, unable to sleep on account of the torture. Doan's Kidney Pills lessened the pain at once and finally removed it. I believe they are the best kidney medicine to be had."
