

SUNDAY IN POLITICS IN SYRACUSE FIGHT

Evangelist Makes Caustic Remarks About Republicans in Midst of Hot Campaign.

FIERCE ATTACK ON DIVORCES

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 1.—(Special Telegram.)—Thirty-five thousand Syracuseans heard "Billy" Sunday preach at three services yesterday in the big tabernacle and for the next seven weeks the devil will have few friends in this city, to quote "Billy's" own words.

"Come on, ye forces of iniquity, I'm on the job," was the theme of the first sermon this morning to an audience of 15,000.

While a large part of this sermon was devoted to challenging his satanic majesty and his cohorts, "Billy" called upon all central New York to get into the fight as well.

"We're going to have one big time here," the evangelist declared. "I've no plans in advance, you never know how the devil is going to act. But mark my words, I'm on the job. And if you don't know what that means just write to Omaha."

"God's Grenadiers" was the subject of the afternoon's assault upon hell. Sunday dealt with the Holy Spirit army and with hypocrites in the church, while for his evening topic he had "The Sins of Society." In the latter sermon Sunday paid his respects to the divorce evil, drawing word pictures of certain Syracuse scandals recently before the public and also paying some attention to graft exposures of the local political campaign now at its height.

"I am a Roman Catholic—insofar as marriage is concerned," was one of his startling sentences. "Billy" made it plain that he didn't consider a divorced couple who re-marry worth "a tinker's damn."

His caustic remarks on the political situation made a deep impression on his audience and were far from complimentary to local Republicans.

The pastors of Lutheran churches throughout the city paid some little attention to Sunday in their morning sermons yesterday. All upheld the action of their congregations in refusing to participate in the Sunday campaign and attacked Sunday's demand that all churches close during his seven weeks' stay here.

Eat Less Meat and Take Salts if Kidneys Hurt

Says a tablespoonful of Salts flushes Kidneys, stopping Backache.

Meat forms Uric Acid, which excites Kidneys and Weakens Bladder.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders. Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Advertisement.

The House That Jack Built

Jack was a loyal Omahan. He knew that money kept at home—and at work—would not only benefit those to whom it was paid, but also himself. Thus he accompanied his neighbors on the highway to success.

The house that Jack built was constructed upon a foundation of business sagacity. No hap-hazard methods were followed—comfort, permanency and beauty were kept constantly in mind. The house that Jack built was constructed throughout by Omaha manufacturers—that was one of the requirements upon which Jack insisted. As a result, the cost was minimum, the comfort, permanency and beauty maximum.

This is how Jack built his house:

The Bankers Realty Investment Company was the first firm upon whom Jack called. He knew the success it had had with the many buildings of all classes that it had constructed. He knew that its financial responsibility, its experience, its reputation for square dealing, would guarantee him the best at the lowest consistent cost. And so the Bankers Realty Investment Company figured out the details. Jack found that this company was able to take from his mind the entire responsibility of preparing the plans, financing and superintending the work and by its methods, he was in a position to secure a much better home than he had previously considered possible, paying for it in a way that was extremely easy. He made but one request after choosing his plans, and that was that the material should be secured from Omaha manufacturers.

And Jack was wise in this respect. He knew that sales expenses on Omaha-Made Goods sold in Omaha were less than on goods shipped in. He knew that for the same money he could secure better quality, or the same quality for less money, by insisting on Omaha-Made Goods. He knew that he was protected from any chance of securing poor materials, because the Omaha manufacturers were home people, neighbors, and jealous of their reputation for business fairness.

The foundation of the house that Jack built was made of beautiful brick, manufactured by the Hydraulic Press Brick Company. By purchasing Omaha-Made press brick, Jack not only secured the very best quality at the lowest possible price, but he had the privilege of choosing the particular kind he wanted after a careful personal comparison. He with Omaha men—men whom he knew. When picking out the brick for the foundation, he also chose the harmonious shades necessary to make his fireplace one of beauty.

The beautiful doors in the house that Jack built were made by the Omaha Wood Working Company. As he now views his house, Jack realizes the wisdom of his choice. His doors are distinctive in design, beautiful in workmanship and harmonious with the other construction.

The stained glass windows over the fireplace and built-in buffet were manufactured by the Midland Paint & Glass Co. They add a distinctiveness to the house that would have been lacking had a less experienced company had charge of the work.

The heating problem has been well taken care of with a Nesbit Gas and Soot Consuming Warm Air Heater, manufactured by the Standard Furnace & Supply Co. The Nesbit cuts coal bills 25% to 50%, burns any kind of fuel and radiates only clean, pure, fresh, moist, healthful air. In the house that Jack built there is no danger of the heating system causing headaches or dry air ruining furniture.

The Omaha Electric Light & Power Company modernized the home in an electrical way, making preparation for current to operate the laundry in the basement, light the house and heat the various appliances with which all up-to-date houses are equipped.

The Omaha Gas Company piped the house, and now supplies it with Omaha-Made Gas, furnishing the cleanest, cheapest and most economical heat for cooking and for heating the water used throughout.

The windows are shaded with awnings manufactured by the Scott-Omaha Tent & Awning Company. The kiddies have a Scott-Omaha tent for a playhouse in the back yard.

The Omaha Concrete Stone Company did its share in beautifying the exterior by furnishing beautiful concrete flower boxes for the porches, cement electroliers at the entrance gate, porch posts and other useful and ornamental fixtures in concrete.

The house that Jack built combined comfort, beauty and permanency—the goals he sought. In a great degree his efforts were successful because he demanded goods made in Omaha.

Other goods may be quality products—but it costs more to sell them in Omaha than goods made by Omaha manufacturers. And then, money spent in Omaha remains here and is used for the upbuilding of our industries, benefiting each one of us.
