Financial Secretary Baskerville
Leaves on Trip to the East.
Charles E. Baskerville, financial secretary of Bellevue college, has left for a trip through the east which will include the leading money centers. He is now in Chicago and expects to spend about five weeks more in Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Boston and New York.
Mr. Baskerville plans to beat the record he established last year, when he raised $5,000 and to secure $75,000 this year. This sum would defray the running expenses of the college for three years and thus give him opportunity to work on the endowment fund of $200,000. Twenty-five thousand dollars of this fund was raised last year, $10,000 having been contributed before.
The Presbyterian college board has agreed to give $10,000, $10,000 of which depends upon the college's raising the first $10,000 of the endowment, and $5,000 of which is contingent upon the second $10,000. Thus one-quarter of the fund is already assured.
Since Mr. Baskerville assumed control of the finances of Bellevue, the Nebraska constituency, instead of furnishing only 15 per cent of the college's income, has more than trebled, both in the number of donors and in the amounts given. The total number of donors has increased from 60 to 1,500. The $25,000 raised by the financial secretary last year was the largest amount raised in any one year at Bellevue since the founding of the school in 1880. This sum consisted of $20,000 contributed to the endowment fund, $12,000 collected for current expenses, $12,000 contributed to complete the gymnasium and $9,000 in legacies.

WITH SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

University of Nebraska Will Have Annual Home-Coming November 20.
"Old Grad," alumni of the university since the first class in the '70s, are coming back for the homecoming game with Iowa on Nebraska field, November 20. The brilliant record of the foot ball team under the leadership of Coach Stehm in the last five years is sufficient assurance that the game will be worth going miles to see. But the game is not all of the entertainment that has been provided for the former students.
An all university "mixer" will be held in the gymnasium, after the game. The "mixer" is in second year an institution at the university, but it has proven one of the most popular and most democratic innovations. An evening of good fun, dancing, games, movies, rubbing elbows with the other students—all at the cost of a quarter—is the idea of the "mixer." More than 1,000 students flocked to the last one.
Both the large and small gymnasiums will be used for the homecoming "mixer." The large floor on the east end will be used for dancing. In the chapel there will be games, dramatic sketches and moving pictures. No other university parties are scheduled for this night, and the "mixer" will be the means of celebration for the victory, or consolation.
The fraternities are making plans for the entertainment of their alumni members and there will be a number of parties and dances Friday evening. The Komenky Klub will give a homecoming play, and the University Dramatic club will present "Believe Me, Xantippe," one of the most successful New York comedies of last season.
The preliminary debate for the selection of the team that will meet the University of Kansas December 10 on the question of increasing the armament of the United States, will be held next Wednesday evening.
The refusal of the cadet officers to give up their annual formal dancing party indicates that the university has not become wholly democratic as yet. The formal, with their flowers and cabs, have usually meant an expenditure of at least $5 for each of the men students who attended.
Thirty-five students of the engineering college left Lincoln Thursday evening for the annual inspection trip, which was taken to Kansas City this year. The embryo engineers were the guests of the Kansas City Commercial club Friday and visited a number of the larger municipal plants and biggest buildings, studying engineering problems that were presented in the construction of each. From Kansas City the students went to Lawrence, Kan., where they saw the foot ball clash between Nebraska and Kansas universities Saturday afternoon.
R. L. Ewing, former secretary of the University Young Men's Christian association, who has been serving in the English prison camps since July, returned to Lincoln Sunday morning to spend a week with the Young Men's Christian association.
Headings College Notes.
Among the faculty leaders at chapel last week were Prof. Anderson, Miss Carpenter and Prof. Hanson. On Thursday Miss Carver, of the Hamilton force, addressed a large crowd of Young Women's Christian association workers on "Is He Able?"
The annual banquet of the Kappa Tau Phi Literary society was held Saturday evening at the hotel. Sixty persons were in attendance. Vice President Ira Moss called the assembly to order. The following responded to toasts: Mr. Robinson, "Quorum"; Miss Tompkins; Mr. Stratton, "Amendment"; Carl Pratt, "Rescind"; and Mr. Galt, "Adjournment."
Doane College Notes.
Hugh Butler entertained twenty-five members of the Alpha Omega fraternity at his home in Crete at a 6 o'clock dinner. The public relations of the Doane college consisted of music, which will be held in the chapel building soon after Thanksgiving.
Bishop Thien of Lincoln will deliver an address on the opening number of the Doane college lecture course in the chapel building December 2.
The rehearsal of the "Saint Ursula" cantata by Deane, which will be given in the spring by the two glee clubs and the Crete Choral society, will begin the latter part of this month.
The two glee clubs of Doane college have been making remarkable progress under the direction of Prof. Allen and his assistants and a number of programs will be given during the winter months.
President W. O. Allen of Doane will return home from his eastern trip the first of this week. During the last six weeks he has been making an active campaign for the election of the president of the college in the New England states.
The annual foot ball banquet of the Doane Athletic association will be held December 3 in the Congregational church social room. All the "D" men who won honors in the past years of college athletics will be invited to attend and a number of the graduate stars have been elected to the program for speeches. It is expected that 150 plates will be laid on the table for the banquet.
York College Notes.
The German club was reorganized last week.
A new class in expression will be organized next quarter.
Prof. Misner has secured engagements to govern the towns for the college opera, "Pinafore."
The faculty volleyball team is getting into "shape" for some games with the business men of the city.
Rev. L. F. Johns, the new college pastor, was a visitor at chapel on Thursday morning. Superintendent Stoner of the city schools also visited recently.
College work is resuming its wonted state since the Lowry meetings at the University of Great interest was taken in these meetings by both faculty and students and large results were secured.
Grand Island College.
Dr. R. W. Woodruff, a member of the class of 1902, was recently chosen to membership on the board of trustees.
At the chapel exercises last Tuesday morning Dr. F. F. Hitchcock, superintendent of the missionary interests of the Baptist denomination, gave an inspiring address to the students.
Rev. E. H. Jackson, of the class of 1905, was chosen to preach the sermon at the next annual meeting of the state convention to be held in Fremont.
Last Thursday afternoon Miss Helen Cavanaugh of Chicago, addressed the young women in the college chapel on matters relating to their religious life and their religious duties.
Rev. Earl D. Simms, formerly a missionary in China, and an eye witness of the Boxer uprising, delivered an address at the chapel Thursday evening, depicting the thrilling experiences of those times.
At the laymen's banquet, held last week in the college dining room, nearly 100 ministers and laymen were present. Addresses were made by Editor C. D. Gary, D. D., of the Chicago Standard; Bruce Kinney of Topeka and Hon. R. M. Hroudfitt of Iowa.
Dr. A. Leavitt has closed his office as field secretary of the college. Six months ago he was allowed a leave of absence by the university superintendent of the Society for the Friends of which

Old-Timers Settle Some of the Great Affairs of the Nation
"I am for preparedness. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Shutting the garage door after the gasoline jirriksha has been stolen does not promote digestion. Clamping a quietus on what is going to happen is what I call preparedness," was the comment of the Careful Observer when he met the Oldest Inhabitant.
"Who was the man who said, 'In time of peace prepare for peace?' asked the man who came in the days of steamboats.
"I think it was Colonel John Maher of Lincoln and Texas who uttered that pacifist palaver," replied the sapient one.
"Who said I want to know is, How would you put a quietus on what is going to happen? Don't believe in the inevitable? Don't you believe that certain events will happen in spite of preparedness and prescience?"
"Of course, there is a factor of certainty in such affairs as taxes, shortage of the ice crop, New Year resolutions, the man who says, 'I told you so,' the woman who declares, 'I have nothing to wear,' the person who sits next to you at the play and explains the plot, the base churl who grins when you are hatred in a gale, corns that hurt in the night, and rainy weekdays. I am just suggesting what is in my mind. There are a few other certainties upon which the expectancy of life may be based."
Does Not Get Excited.
"Proceed, pal; your fol-de-rol interests, but more not excite me. Please pass some dose of your propaganda of preparedness."
"You should be chided for your malapertness. I was trying to induct into the recesses of your skull the very ordinary fact that certain human experiences are as fixed as the stars, and that no preparedness can forestall them. Do you get me, Julius? My major premise, however, is that most of our ills, aches, pains, griefs and troubles are due to lack of preparedness. It is as simple as swatting a flea. Human unpreparedness is the besetting sin of the nation. We do not think that the rainy day will come. We forget that the roof leaker the last time it rained."
"You are inclined to believe that to be forewarned is to be forearmed, but I think that you are rather severe in your arraignment of the nation."
>Your hearing is improving."
"I coincide with you to a limited degree, yet I maintain you are something of an idealist. It is all right to be prepared, but you do not account for human fallibility."
"But I contend that the so-called fallibility of human nature can be overcome by preparedness. Votes for preparedness! If preparedness is good for a nation, it is good for the individual. It is good for what ails you. It is the great good of its present phase of commercialism and usefulness. Try my panacea of preparedness and you will feel like a new man."
"Then you maintain that preparedness minimizes reparation."
"Just so."
"Well, I guess you are right, as usual."
Major League Ball Exhibitions Barred On the Pacific Coast
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Major league ball clubs no longer will be welcomed in cities of the Pacific Coast league as participants in exhibition games as "barstumping" base ball officials was placed on the taboo list late last night when the league directors at their annual meeting voted to close the gates of all league parks against exhibition games whether of local or foreign talent.
Such contests were termed by President Allen T. Baum as menaces to the life of the "goose that lays the golden egg," as they detracted from interest in the game. He said the cause of yesterday's action was the fact that Manager Charles A. Comiskey not only brought his Chicago White Sox to the coast, but also divided his players into two teams, neither fully representative of the best material he had.
The league also put itself on record as opposing the playing of winter base ball by players under contract or reservation on the ground that the practice was detrimental to summer playing ability. No action was taken on the salary limit question.
The San Francisco club lost a decision yesterday at the hands of the National Board of Arbitration. It was learned today, which ruled that San Francisco must pay $50 to Ogdin for Third Baseman Bobby Jones, Ogdin's claim that Jones was taken over by the Soals before Ogdin lost its territorial rights in the Union association, being supported by the board.
Stomach Troubles.
Persons who have stomach trouble are apt to become discouraged. They will see by following that their chances of recovery are excellent. A. K. Williams, independence, Va., tells of a remarkable cure that was effected in that locality. One of his customers was so badly afflicted with stomach trouble that he was sent to a hospital, but received little benefit and came home to die. Mr. Williams suggested that he try Chamberlain's Tablets, which he did, and today he is a well man and weighs 150 pounds. Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

Cincinnati Reds' Owners Not Dealing With Federal League
CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 14.—A rumor that the officers of the Cincinnati base ball club were negotiating "with the Federal league people for the sale of the club or with a view of them having capital in it" was denied in a statement followed by President August Herrmann following a meeting of the stockholders of the club here today.
The statement also said that the stockholders decided to increase the stock to $12,500 to $100,000, and that almost all of this was immediately subscribed to.
The president's report to the stockholders shows that while weather conditions for the last year were the worst in the history of the club, the loss in operating during the season was only $5,000.
Both Julius Fleischmann and Max Fleischmann, who have been in the directorate of the club since a year ago, resigned today and Louis C. Widrig of Newport, Ky., and Louis Werk were elected in their places. The statement of Mr. Herrmann in connection with these resignations said:

Modernizing the Business of Building
The Science of Building Construction has, as its cradle beginning, the efforts of primitive man to provide a shelter from the elements, in caves hewn out of rock, or mud huts solidified by friendly winds and sun.
From the cave and mud-hut dwellers day, to this, is indeed a far cry; for during the intervening ages man's needs have multiplied, and with his growing needs, the science of building, enriched by the architecture of the many periods, has made wonderful progress from the primitive, to its present phase of commercialism and usefulness.
While it would be exceedingly interesting for us to trace for you the thoughts of men as they progressed through the ages, as these thoughts are reflected in the architecture of the various periods, it would prove of little practical value to either of us, except to show that the stream of modern building thought runs in an entirely different direction than ever before.
Now-a-days when people are about to build, they consider usefulness and economy first, and art second, for the reason that a large number of economic conditions compel them to do so; notable among which are: the increase in the world's population, the facilities for rapid inter-communication and travel, the expansion of commerce, the growth of cities, the rise of capital, the birth of new industries, the needs of labor, and the increasing tendencies of men to congregate and live and to seek pleasure within the radius of a few municipal miles.
These conditions, and intensive population in particular, are continually driving up land values, and the higher the land values become, the more complicated becomes the problems of providing the kind of building improvements that will satisfactorily return a sufficient income on the money invested in the land.
This brings us, face to face with the very first and very most important consideration of every prospective builder, namely the subject of "Economy" in building construction; and since the economy of building construction is dependant upon the efficiency of the building methods employed you will readily understand that the many complicated problems of the modern day builder must be considered as a whole, rather than in parts.
It is a significant fact that, despite the modern tendency to centralize great industries, that not until recent years has there been any effectual attempt made to establish in building construction some semblance of organized control.
Chief among the many reasons for this condition, is that the Building Construction Business, taken as a whole, calls for the services of men in eight or more professions, for the workmanship of forty-six or more trades and for the selection and purchase of hundreds of various materials, products and devices.
In spite of the fact that the building professions and trades, and building material people all, have more or less allied interests, they are, nevertheless, too diverse to be welded into a whole; on the other hand if they are allowed to operate independently, each individual is liable to perform his individual part of the work without appreciating its relation to the whole.
It is due, largely, to this fact that many of those engaged in the building construction business, are today attempting to find some method of overcoming the seeming lack of ability on the part of the various building professions and trades to produce the kind of co-operative effort on the part of all, that is so necessary for efficiency and economy.
Not only do those engaged in the building business demand it—but there is a constantly growing and insistent demand among the buyers of building service for better and more business-like methods, that will eliminate the inefficiency and uncertainty of the older day system.
As a result of this demand on the part of the prospective building owner, and the complaint of many who are already building owners who have suffered gross injustices at the hands of the old time system; and as a result of efforts, here and there, on the part of those engaged in the business of building to overcome the faults complained of, there have sprung up in different parts of the country during the last few years institutions who are applying modern business methods to the building business.
These methods are the product of organizations, especially equipped to handle as many lines of work, as can be handled, efficiently, direct. They are called "Modern Building Organizations."
We call our Modern Building Method—"THE SINGLE CONTRACT METHOD."
Employing this method we have every confidence of our ability to satisfactorily fill your needs; even though they be of the most difficult character.
When you are contemplating the erection of a building of any kind or size, whether a home, church, school or business building we will be pleased to have you make a thorough investigation of our Single Contract Building Method, and even though your investigation be for the purpose of comparing our method, with any that others have to offer, you will receive the same courteous treatment and careful consideration as our most favored customer could expect, for the reason, that we realize, that it is only in this way that a customer can be made to appreciate what our Modern Building Organization can be made to do for him.

CORNELL WINS DESPITE EARLY LEAD OF FOES
ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 14.—With the score 11 to 7 against them in the second period, Cornell came back at Washington and Lee yesterday, when the final whistle blew, led the plucky Virginians, by 40 to 21. The game, although loosely played by Cornell in the first period, was full of thrills.
Cool, Cornell's center, was banished for rough playing and Cornell was penalized for half the distance of the field for this. Captain Barrett of Cornell and John Barrett of Washington and Lee, were the stars. The Red and White captain scored thirty-four points of Cornell's total.
CALVIN DEMAREST, ONE TIME CUE STAR, INSANE
ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 14.—Calvin Demarest, one time national amateur champion at billiards, was adjudged insane yesterday and removed to the state asylum at Elgin. Demarest was brought to a sanitarium here some months ago after trying to kill his wife and commit suicide in Chicago.
STURGIS WINS HILLS TITLE FROM LEAD CITY
STURGIS, S. D., Nov. 14.—(Special Telegram).—Sturgis high school foot ball team yesterday defeated Lead City High school team, 12 to 6, in a close and exciting battle. Every inch of ground was stubbornly fought for. This victory wins the Black Hills championship for Sturgis and places them in line for state championship.

NEW POPULAR SONG
Odd Ballad Said to Contain Many Pretty Strains.
Among the latest popular songs in New York is a peculiar affair, called "Could the Dreams of a Dreamer Come True," which is quite a craze with the fair sex.
The music, written in only one octave, has various odd harmonies which form a rather pretty effect when sung. Following is a part of the chorus clipped from a copy just received:
Could the dreams of a dreamer come true,
Sweetheart mine, there'd be plenty for you and for me;
There'd be mountains of gold, there'd be treasures untold,
You'd be rol-er of land and of sea, for the Copyright, 1914, Joe Stone.
The chief cause of the song's popularity is that its text, while rather romantic in idea, contains no suggestive thought, but a sort of refined theme that appeals to women.
Advance copies of the song have been received in some of the Omaha 15-cent stores.—Advertisement.
