

NEW ADDITION TO DUNDEE ON MARKET

Hundred Thousand Dollars Spent on Improvements and for Making Home Sites Attractive.

EIGHT NEW HOUSES STARTED

At a cost of $100,000 another large tract of Dundee ground has been platted and developed, about one-third of which has already been put on the market. The tract lies between Dodge and Howard, and between Forty-eighth and Fifty-second streets.

It contains sixty-seven and one-half acres, which has been platted into 235 city lots. Eight new houses are already under construction on the one-third of the tract that has already been put on the market.

Underground Improvements. Every detail of development ready for building was attended to. Much of the money expended on this improvement was expended on underground improvements.

Five hundred maple trees have been set out. The whole addition has been sown with grass seed and rye, so that the entire landscape at this time of the fall makes a beautiful, sunny sloping green appearance.

Cornfield Year Ago. A trifle over a year ago, this great area was a tangle of cornfields, and sunflower patches. It was then that George & Co. obtained the ground, and put the graders to work.

Woman Grabbed by Throat; Police Are Making a Cleanup

Mrs. May Mangum of 827 South Twentieth street reported to the police that while she was passing the Young Women's Christian association building Friday evening a man grabbed her by the throat. The stranger leaped from a hiding place.

The woman told the police she managed to break away from her assailant and ran to the rear of 1119 Jackson street, screaming as she ran.

The man, she related, followed her from Thirteenth and Jackson streets. The police have a description of the man. Detectives Dunn, Kennedy, Murphy, Rooney, Brinkman and Lebay raided a rendezvous at Thirteenth and Douglas streets early this morning and arrested J. J. Rogers and eleven associates.

The man is being held for investigation. Rogers is charged with carrying concealed weapons.

William Englehart of Creston, Neb., identified Rogers as being one of the two men who stopped him at Fourteenth and Farnam streets and abused him with vile names.

This raid is said to be the first of a general "cleanup" being made by the police.

Philippine Veteran Victim of Slugger

Frank May walked into police headquarters Friday night with his head swathed in bandages, with the announcement that he had been assaulted. He was declaring what he was going to do to the fellow who he caught him, when something in Frank's voice attracted the attention of Officer Ollie Farrand. Ollie took a better look at the man and discovered that he had been a member of the regiment with which Farrand served in the Philippines. May was given lodging for the night.

Ute Wick, who was found beaten and unconscious at Fourteenth and Davenport streets Friday night, refused to talk of the assault. He was released, as his wounds were not serious.

PASSENGER STATION PUT UP QUICKLY AT NORTH PLATTE

Although the Union Pacific passenger station at North Platte was completely destroyed by fire early Wednesday evening, a temporary structure, more than 100 feet long, equipped with offices, waiting baggage and express rooms will be ready for occupancy Sunday.

While the North Platte depot was burning and when it became apparent the structure would be totally destroyed, Union Pacific officials began to order shipment of material for the new building and ordered workmen to the scene.

RESOLUTIONS FOR DECEASED

Real Estate Exchange Offers Resolutions to Memories of Four Late Members.

EULOGIES OF LIVES PRESENTED

Four recently deceased members of the Omaha Real Estate exchange were remembered with resolutions and eulogies at a special memorial service at the Omaha Real Estate exchange last Wednesday. J. L. Robbins presented the resolution for the late Alfred C. Kennedy.

Following are the resolutions as adopted: Alfred C. Kennedy. The Omaha Real Estate exchange desires to place upon record a tribute of its members to Alfred C. Kennedy, recently called away from the scenes of earth.

It was given to Mr. Kennedy to spend his lifetime in Omaha, a city he devotedly loved and believed in, and which he served in various public and official capacities. Highly respected and trusted, he was frequently called upon to fill positions of public trust and confidence.

De Ver Sholes. To the memory of De Ver Sholes, who recently was called so suddenly from the scenes of his earthly career, the Omaha Real Estate exchange desires to express its deepest respect and appreciation.

With an energy and intensity of purpose possessed by few men, he has gone up and down among us for a quarter of a century, and finally slipped away from our midst without an enemy or an unkindly word following him. Faithful to his clients, honest and conscientious in all his business dealings, he leaves to his son, who succeeds him, a good name, which is better than great riches, to his daughter, the memory of a devoted father, and to her who in weakness and suffering mourns the loss of life's companion, the cherished memories of a kindly, thoughtful and loyal husband.

Thomas H. McCague. The death of Thomas H. McCague, removed from among us one of the most courageous, intrepid and far-seeing men of our vocation. Handicapped for many years by disease which tended to sap and undermine his energy, he nevertheless held steadily on his way, his tremendous will power, and great faith in the projects in hand overcoming weaknesses and obstacles in a remarkable way.

George N. Hicks. Let us pause today for a little and give respect, and considerate thought to one who had much to do with the shaping of our city's destinies a quarter of a century ago. To many of the younger generation of real estate men, George N. Hicks may not have been well known. But to those of us who are finishing a generation passed in the front line of Omaha's upbuilding, the announcement of Mr. Hicks' death came with a shock. It was another loosening of one of the old ties that bind some of us to the past.

as we met him here and there upon the street. Much more must those of his home and family circle be lost without him. To them, the Omaha Real Estate exchange offers this word of consolation and comfort, feeling as this may seem to those who mourn.

He Wants State to Look After Child

August Tricher, a restaurant employe, living at 56 South Nineteenth street, surprised Judge Leslie in juvenile court by requesting that his 6-year-old son, Julius, be placed in a reformatory.

The judge and juvenile officers refused the request, which in turn surprised Tricher. He said he thought he could have the state care for his child if he merely made the request.

Julius has a habit of running away from home, Probation Officers A. W. Miller says, and the latter declares he will try to find out why Julius is so inclined.

EXPERT TESTIMONY AS TO AIRGUNS IN KIDS' COURT

Probation Officer Carver in juvenile court gave expert testimony as to the destructive quality of three air guns, after he had discharged them toward the ceiling. The guns were got loaded, but Judge Leslie listened to the discharge and then agreed with Carver that the guns were bad things for small boys to shoot at case school windows.

He ordered the guns confiscated and released Peter Porcello and Lawrence Canali, with their parents, 516 North Fifteenth street, agreed to pay for the broken windows and prevent the lads from breaking any more.

Youthful Prisoner Loses in Argument

"They've got to treat me right at the Detention home, or I won't stay there," suddenly declared Walter Whyte, 13, in juvenile court.

"Well, if that's the way you feel about it, we will put you where you will have to stay, whether you like it or not," replied Judge Leslie.

The judge ordered that Walter and his boy companion, Vito Pascale, should be locked up in the county jail instead of being kept at Riverview home.

Probation Officer A. W. Miller brought the boys back from Kansas, where it is alleged, they had gone with a stolen auto.

MONDAY LAST NIGHT TO ENROLL IN NIGHT SCHOOL. Superintendent Craft of the public schools announced that next Monday evening will be the last opportunity for enrollment to classes of the Omaha Evening High school being conducted at Central High school and the High school of Commerce. The membership now totals nearly 1,000.
