The Old Age lads had twenty-one splits in the three games which shows how badly the breaks went against them. The game tomorrow will be no exception for the social, service and official circles of the national will be represented at the Polo grounds from the chief executive of the United States down through the diplomatic, naval and military corps to the midshipman and lieutenant just graduated from Annapolis or West Point. President Wilson will attend in addition to a host of admirals, generals, senators. congressmen, governmental department; heads, cabinet officials and representatives of foreign governments.

Based upon the advance sale of tickets and the allotments made to the compet ing academies, it is estimated that fully 45,000 apectators will fill every available seat in the permanent and temporary stands of the Giants' base ball bark, which has been turned into a foot ball stadium for the occasion. Months ago the initial applications for seats began to arrive at the offices of the New York National League Base Ball club and long before the world's series was finished the few thousand seats for sale by the club had been over subscribed. Today the rare set of seats in the hands of a speculator commands startling figures and sales are made at many times the face value of the coupons.

Teams Evenly Matched. The records of the entire series to date shows that during a period of more than twenty-five years, the two academies have been evenly matched. Each institution has won and lost nine games while the contest of 1905, played at Prince ton, resulted in a 6 to 6 tie. All the other matches have been played at Philadelphia or New York. In total points scored the army leads with 202 to the navy's 139. The soldiers also hold the honors of the largest score, West Point having defeated the sailors 40 to 5 in 1908. To offset this the middles have whitewashed the army on six occasions, while the cadets have accomplished this feat against the navy
