Mayor Dahlman put the vote and announced the license was granted, whereupon Commissioner Hummel, who voted no, insisted that a regular roll call be read by the clerk, as the commissioner wished his vote against the license to be a matter of record. The roll call vote gave four votes for the license, Commissioners Kugel and Hummel voting no and Commissioner Jardine declining to vote. Take Issue with Mayor.

This situation brought a statement from the mayor, who said he thought the council had adopted the policy that all the cimmissioners would vote as a unit on saloon licenses. Commissioners Kugel and Hummel took issue with the mayor and announced they would vote their individual convictions.

Commissioner Butler thereupon offered a resolution, that thereafter all excise meetings be held in the open and that executive sessions be no more. The resolution went through.

Saloon Man Laughs at Kugel. A statement by Commissioner Kugel was: "I know that certain saloon men have violated the law during this year, but I can not always prove it to you, You will have to take my word for it. My moral squad brings reports of violations, but the evidence is not of such nature as to hold in court, but we now the violations existed. In this Powal case they were so bold as to solicit usiness on Sundays on the walk. I don't want to tell you how to vote, but I am going to vote against this and some other applications I am holding, A saloon man called at my office the other day and laughed at me when I told him he would have to obey the law this year or his license would not be renewed. I

And Commissioner Butler also spoke: "I don't know about this particular appliwho have been violating the liquor laws key game on a large scale, but not so and are getting away with it."

Commissioner Jardine expressed the belief that the council should support each lize the turkey trade; they have the other on recommendations. He made this habit of doing things very well out statement to Anton Powal: "We are go- there-but at present the center of the ing to have prohibition in this state if industry remains in the southern United you saloon men do not behave.

The gist of the situation is that Comvoted no on their applications for 1916 licenses he will feel that it will be up to the other commissioners to support him or assume the responsibility if such licenses are granted.

Expert on Gobblers Tells How Simple it is When You Really Know How.

SOME SIGNS OF TENDERNESS

"The purchase of a Christmas turkey ought not to be the gamble that it TELLS KUGEL TO GET ON JOB sometimes is. The selection of a tender, toothsome bird, old enough to be well The habit of considering liquor flavored but young enough to be palal:cense applications in open sessions, table, is really a very simple operation-once you know how."

The speaker was a man who probaddicted, resulted in an exchange of ture. A lengthy title, which might easily pointed 'remarks when the council ably knows more about turkeys, their breeding and their selection than any one in the United States-Harry M. The ruction was started when the one in the United States-Harrey M. application of Anton Powal for a investigation of the bureau of animal license at 201 South Ninth street was be shortened into "Uncle Sam's Turkey

"The best turkey for home consumption," continued this man, who has had received a complaint from Mayor the country, "is one about a year old. Dahlman, who reported that officials if it is too young the meat will taste 'flat'; if it is too old the labor of massome of their employes had been a general thing a hen turkey is better ercised to insure tenderness by feeling of the flesh and lifting up the wing to see whether the skin breaks easily. The older a bird the tougher the skin.

The Point of a Turkey. "Then, too, the pospective buyer should see that the turkey is well fleshed across the loins or thighs. The average buyer looks at the breast of a turkey and lets it go at that. The thighs are a much better criterion. If the bird is well fleshed there, it is almost a certainty that it will prove abundantly supplied with meat on the breast, and the contrary is not always the rule. Consideration of these two points-age and the degree of flesh-will insure to the purihaser the maximum of return for the money invested, and will make the principal part of the Christmas dinner a feast for an epicure.

There is one more point that I ought to emphasize: Do not select too small a turkey for the number of persons you expect to feed. If you don't care to cook a very large turkey, fearing that it may be old and tough, invest in two small ones-but, by all means, have enough and to spare. That is, in some respects, the ost important of all the points to be observed in the purchasing of the holi-day fowl."

In answer to an inquiry as to the prospects for the Christmas crop of turkeys this year, Mr. Lamon said: "The outlook was never better. Reports from all sections of the country indicate that this will be a banner winter for the American national bird. Thanksgiving showed that turkeys were abundant and, in most sections of the United States, comparatively cheap. The price will naturally rise a few cents before Christmas-the result of the inexorable law of supply and demand-but, at that, I do not think that it will come near the high mark set in other years.

Texas in the Lead. 'In the first place, there is a larger crop of turkeys from Texas this year than last. Texas is the best state in the union when it comes to turkey raising. A good many of the birds also come from Missouri, Tennessee and Kentucky. cant (Powal), but I know about others California, too, is breaking into the tur-

"The annual turkey drive is well on its missioner Kugel wants to place himself way by this time, the crest of the first in the position of advising the council of wave having been reached a week before certain saloon men who have violated Thanksgiving. The second influx reaches liquor laws this year, and after he has its high-water mark shortly before Christmas, and the time then recedes until, shortly after February 1, turkeys become scarcer and scarcer

Many persons, whose sole acquaintance with the national bird consists of consuming it at the table, are unaware of the fact that there are many kinds and varieties of turkey, not all of then, suited for home consumption. The bronze Women in Auto turkey is the most popular, and therefore the one that is most in demand in the eastern markets. Texas raises great numbers of these birds, and there are from these turkey centers that the New York and Boston markets are principally supplied, the transportation charges rendering it inexpedient to import birds from the Texas or California market.

Great Turkey Parades. "Texas, particularly, has been unceasing in its efforts to break into the exclusive turkey trade of the big cities, and everything possible has been done foster the raising of these birds in the Lone Star state. The turkeys are sold in large quantities, thousands at a time, right on their feet, and the 'trots' are becoming more and more occasions for rivalry between breeders, and, therefore, assist greatly in the propagation of the better species. America is the premier turkey country of the world, and it is only fitting that everything possible should be done by us to bring "The growing of turkeys appears to have improved as a result of a determined effort on the part of producers of hibition' stock to demonstrate that it is more profitable to use pure breeding stock of days gone by. Other states may claim the title of 'cradle of liberty' and the birthplace of presidents,' but to Rhode Island befor it was Rhode Island that fostered the breeding of these birds at a time when other states were paying them scant at-

A Profit-Producing Bird.

"Too few poultry producers realize that the turkey stands at the very top of the list of profit-producing birds. The fact that turkeys will, from the time they are six weeks old until winter sets in, gain the greater part of their living from bugs, grasshoppers and waste grain that they pick up in their wandering over the range, assures their existence through this period at little or no cost to the grower. In other words, they may be termed self-sustaining foragers, desiring only sufficient range in order to fatten and grow strong.

"Comparatively few persons, particumethods in general use. The most popularly among the city-bred, are familiar with the methods employed in killing a turkey. On farms where turkey raising withdraw his troops. has become a fine art there are two tication will probably be too hard. This severs the arteries and outs into the brain, causing insensibility and a free flow of blood from the mouth. "The other plan is to break the neck by a quick terk or twist backward. When the neck is completely disjointed the head is pulled away so as to form an open space in the neck, where the blood may settle. This plan as been but little followed, though the claim has been made that when so killed fowls keep longer. because there is no opening by which air can get into the body, as there is when the sea of Marmora. they are stuck in the roof of the mouth. tice it on the larger fewls requires considerable dexterity.

Then, of course, there is the old-fash ioned method of beheading the bird with an axe or hatchet, which has been in use for many years and is still the rule on farms that are not quite up to date.

"But, after all, it is the turkey itself that matters most. Select a comparatively young bird, within the one-year limit, well fleshed, tender as to skin and wishbone, cook it well, stuff it to taste, and there will be little left to wish for after your Christmas dinner."

"The efficiency of any drug" says Dr. C.P.
Robbins, "is known to us by the results we obtain from its use. If we are able to control pain and disease by means of any preparation, we certainly are warranted in its use. One of the principal symptoms of all diseases is pain, and this is what the patient most often applies to us for, i. e. something to relieve his pain. If we can arrest this promptly, the patient is most liable to trust in us for the other remedies which will effect a permanent cure. One remedy which I have used largely in my practice is Antikamnia Tablets. Many and varied are their uses. I have put them to the test on many occasions, and have never been disappointed. I found them especially valuable for headaches of maiarial origin, where quinine was being taken. They appear to prevent the bad after-effects of the quinine. Antikamnia Tablets are also excellent for the headaches from improper digestion; also for headaches of a neuralgic origin, and especially for women subject to pains at certain times. Two Anti-kamnia Tablets give prompt relief, and in a short time the patient is able to go about as unai." These tablets may be obtained as all druggists, Aak for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for headaches, neuralgia and all pains.
