CONCRETE GRAIN STORAGE AT PETERS MILL, OMAHA.

LOADING CHUTE AT PETERS MILL, OMAHA,

Missouri river.

NANY important improvements have been made at the big alfalfa feed plant of the M. C. Peters Mill Co. in Omaha the past year. Some of these will be found in the accompanying pictures.

The grain storage capacity has been more than doubled with six very large new concrete storage tanks which are modern in every respect and conceded to be the finest grain storage tanks in the middle west.

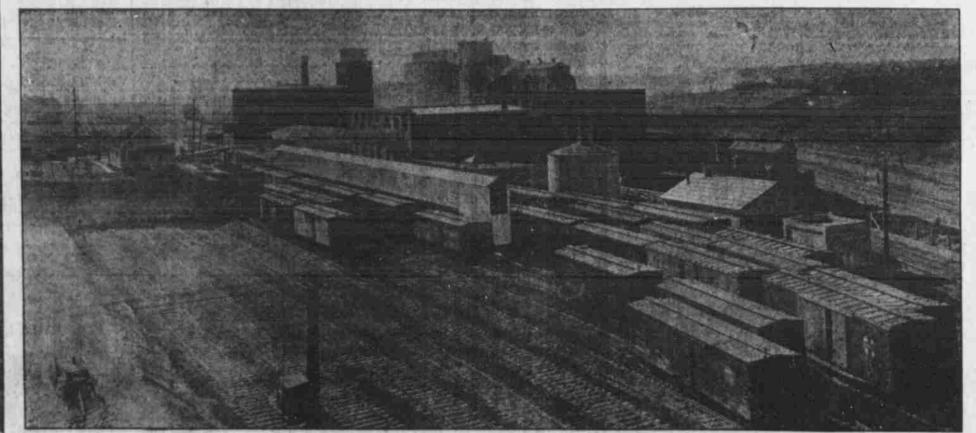

Additional tracks have been added to take care of the fast growing business and this feature now comprises a total of fifteen tracks, capable of holding a very great number of cars.

One of the most important additions is a special loading chute. Cars can be loaded on each side of same and this feature, in addition to other facilities for that purpose, makes it possible to load at least twenty The storage capacity for the molasses is being increased by another large steel molasses tank.
