

LOVED MERCY AND WALKED WITH GOD

So Declares Rev. T. J. Mackay in Funeral Sermon for Thomas Kilpatrick.

BURIAL TO BE AT CLEVELAND

"What doth the Lord require of thee, O man, but to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God?"

These words from the Scriptures were chosen by Rev. T. J. Mackay as the text for his remarks at the funeral services for Thomas Kilpatrick.

"These words describe perfectly Mr. Kilpatrick," said the minister. "He did justice pre-eminently; he loved mercy ardently and he walked in the greatest humbleness with God."

"He believed in God with a deep devotion. And this belief overshadowed other things to him. He was a religious man in the truest and best sense of the word."

"I had the privilege of knowing him for twenty-five years and it was a privilege that I valued highly. He was one of the gentlest and most lovable men I ever knew or hope to know. I feel that a great and good soul has passed on, a man who will be missed by all who knew him."

Favorite Poems.

Dr. Mackay read a number of Mr. Kilpatrick's favorite poems, written by leading Unitarian clergymen and writers, by William Channing Gannett, John White Chadwick and Frederick Lucian Homer.

The funeral was very largely attended, not only by his intimate friends, but also by many of his employees, to whom his benefactions have been marked and whom he always greeted with true democracy, with a smile and a pleasant word whenever he met them.

The Pallbearers.

The pallbearers were Robert Cowell, W. H. Koenig, E. W. Kayser, W. F. Baxter, Ezra Millard, Clark Powell, A. H. Richardson and George McIntyre.

After the services the cortege proceeded to the railway station. The body will be taken on an evening train to Cleveland, O., where it will be interred beside that of his wife, in Lake View cemetery. Two of their children are also buried there.

Sixty-Piece Band to Play at Auditorium

The program submitted by the Omaha Musicians' union which will be presented at the Auditorium, Sunday afternoon, at the first popular Sunday afternoon concert was approved yesterday and consists of solos by Fred Phelps and Ed Hoffman.

The program was carefully selected by Ernest Nordin, who will be the conductor at the first concert. The arrangements for the series of Sunday afternoon concerts were made by a committee representing the musicians' union and Charles A. Franke, manager of the Auditorium.

The contract calls for sixty pieces in the band. The musicians will receive 40 per cent of the gross receipts and the Auditorium will receive 40 per cent.

New Equipment on The Southland Train

Ever quick to respond to the travel demands of the public, the Pennsylvania Lines, seeing the indications of increased travel to Florida this winter, have put entire new equipment on "The Southland," the through train from Chicago to Jacksonville, Fla.

This train consists of observation car, compartment sleeping cars, and coaches—all steel and runs solid from Chicago through Cincinnati, Knoxville and Atlanta, a new scenic route open this winter for through train service.

"The Southland is the last train leaving Chicago every night for Florida. The leaving time, 12:01 a. m., is convenient for many, but those desiring to retire easily may enter the sleepers any time after 9:30 o'clock.

The time of arrival at Jacksonville, 8:45 a. m., gives business men an early start for a full day and travelers ample time for all connections for the many winter havens in Florida.

BUILDING OWNERS OBJECT TO BIG STANDPIPE TAX

The charge of $60 per annum for each standpipe in the city which General Manager Howell of the Metropolitan Water district sought to impose on the building owners of the city has not been paid.

The Building Owners and Managers' association sought legal advice in the matter and was advised not to pay it pending further developments. The outgoing president of the association, Ernest Sweet, in his annual address, said: "The plain unfairness of this charge can be better appreciated when attention is directed to the fact that the up-to-date owner of the well-equipped and usually fireproof building would be penalized for installing apparatus with which fire may be quenched in their incipient stage, thereby lessening the danger of great conflagrations with their attendant losses, higher insurance rates, higher tax levies for additional fire-fighting apparatus, affecting the modest home owner as well as the owner of large buildings."

Thomas Kilpatrick: An Appreciation of His Active Life and Many Virtues

"A just man and true."

Some years ago in a distant city, I saw a plain granite monument with name and age inscribed thereon, together with date of death. At the bottom of the shaft cut in plain letters were the words, "A Just Man and true." At once there came before me the kindly face of the dearest friend I have ever known, and I thought how fitting that inscription, for the tomb stone of Thomas Kilpatrick.

Born in Scotland on August 29, 1841, he received his education in Campbelltown, in the home and under the direction of the pastor, whose name was Campbell. He learned the dry goods business in Glasgow with one of the old and prominent firms of those years, Fraser, McLaren & Co., A. T. Stewart & Co., perhaps the first great American dry goods house, to whose head was appointed the name of "Merchant Prince" sent a representative to Scotland yearly, to engage trained assistants for their institution, at that time in business in New York City. In 1869 or 1870, Thomas Kilpatrick was one of a group who left Glasgow to take employment with the House of Stewart. He did not remain in New York City long, but found a more lucrative and prominent position with Hogg, Brown & Taylor of Boston, Mass., using the war this was one of the most aggressive dry goods firms of the country. John Taylor the active member of the company, was famed for his keen judgment, wide knowledge and daring as a buyer. It was the custom of this house to select the best of their young men, aid them in finding a location and then give them a liberal credit, thus making feeders for their own business, and helping worthy young men to establish themselves. Many of the Scotch houses all over this country, notably in the east, sprung from this old and at one time famous concern.

John Taylor's brother, William, and Thomas Kilpatrick formed a partnership and opened two stores, one at Nashua and the other at Manchester, N. H. In the early seventies they found business growing and prosperous, and with a desire to gain a wider field for their activities, Mr. Kilpatrick went on a tour of investigation. The result of his trip was the founding of the business of Taylor, Kilpatrick & Co. just above the public square in the old Cushing building. These two men made a remarkable combination—Mr. Taylor, the shrewd buyer, and Mr. Kilpatrick, the genial, honorable, ideal merchant who made hosts of friends. Against the judgment of the prophets they established what was without doubt the most popular and reliable dry goods store in the city of Cleveland, O. They too, helped young men to establish business of their own, and many are the prosperous merchants who owe their start in life to that firm.

In 1885 Mr. Kilpatrick and the writer left Cleveland to open a retail house in Chicago. This was the store known as James H. Walker & Co. on Adams street and Wabash avenue, now for many years out of business. Mr. Kilpatrick sold his interest in January 1887 and in April of that year formed the corporation known as the Kilpatrick-Koch Dry Goods company, which bought and succeeded to the wholesale dry goods business of Tootle, Maul & Co. of this city. Mr. Kilpatrick had a great fondness for the retail business and when the N. B. Falconer stock was offered for sale in the fall of 1885 Mr. Kilpatrick bought it and the firm of Thomas Kilpatrick & Co. continued the business in the same location, succeeding also to the business of the Kilpatrick-

Koch Dry Goods company, which they later wound up.

Trained in the old school, he had no patience with shams or takes of any kind. In a close association extending over right hand did.

Earlier in his life he was a charming conversationalist and raconteur. An extensive reader and a much traveled man he was welcome everywhere. Interested keenly in all that went to the upbuilding and betterment of the community in which he lived, he might very easily have attained political prominence. His sensitive nature, however, made him averse to notoriety, and as a consequence he never could be prevailed upon to run for office. He was one of the directors of the Transmississippi exposition and a member of the Park board of this city. These were the only public positions ever held by him. In his early years he was a Presbyterian, but when he lived in Boston he became a Unitarian and was on intimate terms of friendship with all the great leaders of that body. The gentle Homer, who is somewhere on the Pacific coast, will grieve over the death of this, one of his best friends. Newton M. Mann was very close to him, and I am sure will feel his demise keenly.

Always just, with a great heart, he was loved by all his employees, indeed it was impossible to know him without acquiring an affection for him. About thirty years ago it was my privilege and pleasure to visit with him the land of his birth. We found many warm hearted friends of his youth. Some eight years ago while apparently vigorous he was stricken with a malady from which he sought relief at the famous health resorts of Europe. Indeed he sojourned for some time in Egypt near Cairo, where he went to be under the care and direction of a famous specialist. The marvelous vitality gained in the highest of his native country enabled him to battle with the disease all these years.

To the last his mind was clear and he was interested in the important things of life. Numerous as were his benefactions, and much as they meant to the recipient, his words of encouragement and counsel meant more. These were freely given to scores of young and old. Fulminations and flattery were distasteful to him in life, so I refrain from details, but many thirty-six years I can truthfully declare I never knew him to commit a dishonest act. Many were his benefactions, how numerous could not be recounted, for he rarely let his left hand know what his now living here and elsewhere will miss and mourn a faithful friend.

One by one the ties which bound him to life were severed. Less than eight weeks ago he lost his wife, the partner of his joys and sorrows for over forty years. Mention has been made previously of the terrible blow received by him when he lost his little boy, Charlie, and also his bereavement at parting with his eldest daughter in this city. Patiently accepting the burden of his own long illness, for years he has been ready to go. Indeed it was hard for him to understand why the robust and vigorous should be called and he himself left. Oh, dear friend, your going makes it less difficult for us, too, to cross the dark river. We will miss you so much, and yet we would not wish you back. For you no more pain, or sorrow, or parting. We like to believe that there has been a happy meeting on that other shore, and that wife and children were present when the greeting came—"Come unto Me, thou weary one, and I will give thee rest." For thee, O now a silent soul, my brother, take at My hands this garland and farewell. Thin be the leaf, and chill the wintry smile, And chill the tears, with a fal n' m' ther, ROBERT COWELL.

COSTS THREE-FIFTY TO SPIT ON STREET CAR FLOOR

It cost Herman Anderson of Harcourt, La., cattleman, just $3.50 to spit on the floor of a street car and find out that he couldn't "get away with it." He made his acquaintance with the anti-spitting ordinance, after selling some stock on the South Side market and becoming spirituously inspired. Police Judge Foster assessed the charges for the lesson, after the street car conductor had told Anderson a few things.

Peruna—the Home Remedy

They know it improves the irregular appetite, aids the weakened digestion, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, relieves the coughs and colds, and corrects all catarrhal conditions wherever located. Forty-four years of reliability have established it as the Ever-Ready-to-Take household remedy.

That's why so many speak well of it. We have hundreds of testimonials like this:

Mr. James F. Sommit, 106 E. Eighth St., Muscatine, Iowa, writes: Peruna has cured me. For years I was practically an invalid. I was induced to try it, and found very quickly that it was helping me. I am now well and happy. We have a baby boy, which we believe is the direct consequence of my improved health. I had never before cured me should never have had him. I thank God for Peruna. I hope my testimonial will be of benefit to other women who are children simply because they are in a wretched physical condition. I will answer any letter from a woman anxious to know more about my case. I recommended Peruna to a friend whose daughter had a very severe case of bronchitis. The doctors did not seem to do her any good. She used Peruna and is now well and strong. My husband's health is so much improved by Peruna that he would not be without it in the house.

Forget All Prejudices

Let the facts convince you. THE PERUNA CO., COLUMBUS, O. Those who prefer may have Peruna in tablet form.
