WOMEN KEYED UP FOR ART LECTURE

After the Thrills of Last Week by Dr. Powys Society is All Expectancy.

DR. HAMLIN IS HERE NOW

By MELLIFICIA—January 26. The star for the rest of the week seems to be Prof. A. D. F. Hamlin of Columbia University, who is lecturing before the Fine Arts society. Last week it was Dr. Powys, with the stimulus of his promised return.

After all the delightful and thrilling starts and semi shocks that learned doctors from Oxford gave Omaha society, the matrons this week were keyed up with expectation for what the intellectual light that our own Columbia university would send to them. Dr. Hamlin was presented yesterday afternoon to a smart gathering at a luncheon at the Fontenelle, where Mrs. J. E. Summers was hostess in his honor to the courtesies committee of the Fine Arts society.

"But he didn't startle us at all," said a matron of keen tongue and keener perception. "Indeed, he was quite restful after Dr. Powys—a nice little, well-behaved gentleman, who dined with polite, but marked regard to his plate. A little more of that perfectly adorably roughish Powys and we shall all be spoiled. Everything seems a neutral tint after he is gone."

"The de'il o' the lad that takes the hearts o' womenfolk," says an old Scot proverb—and true it would seem, even to college professors.

Distinguished Divine.

One of the busiest and most rushed guests of the latter part of the week will be Rev. Dr. Samuel McCord Crothers of Cambridge, Mass., who is expected to arrive tomorrow by Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Russell to be their house guest during his stay in Omaha. Dr. Crothers is the pastor of the First Parish church in Cambridge and visits here in the interests of the Unitarian society. A dinner is planned for tomorrow evening and luncheon at the Commercial club for Saturday afternoon. In Dr. Crothers' honor, other affairs are in planning between which our New England guest will find time to deliver six lectures and one sermon during his four days' stay amongst us.

Centurion Club Affair.

The Centurion club will give a "hard times dancing party" Thursday evening, at Centurion hall. Many original costumes and stunts have been planned for the affair.

For Prof. Hamlin.

Mrs. J. E. Summers gave a delightful luncheon yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Fontenelle when she asked the members of the courtesies committee of the Fine Arts society to meet Prof. A. D. F. Hamlin, who lectures before the society this week. Those present were: Prof. A. D. F. Hamlin.

Mezames—J. E. Summers, Charles Orfutt, Joseph Barker, A. L. Reed, Louis Bradford, E. W. Dixon, Misses—Jessie Millard, Lida Wilson.

Moller-McCauley Wedding.

Miss Mary McCauley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McCauley, was married Wednesday morning at St. Peter's church at 9 o'clock, to Mr. Charles Moller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moller, Rev. Father Neeligan officiating. The bridegroom was Miss Cecil McCauley, sister of the bride. Mr. Paul Moller, cousin to the groom, was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Frank Brink and Joseph Ecker. Mrs. Elaine Young played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The bride wore a gown of ivory liberty satin and tulle, skirt bouffant effect, short, with tight bodice of satin, trimmed with pearls and long tulle sleeves. The veil was of tulle and cap fashion, held by lilies of the valley. A shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley was carried. Miss Cecil McCauley wore a gown of peach colored tulle. Wedding breakfast to the family followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Moller have gone east on their honeymoon and after February 25th will be at home in Omaha.

Mrs. Welpton's Reception.

One of the largest receptions of the season is given this afternoon by Mrs. Douglas Welpton at her home from 3 to 5 o'clock. Over 200 acceptances have been received to the affair. The living rooms are decorated in a pink with a rose scheme in marked evidence, emphasized by the fragile green tracery of asparagus ferns. Lamp globes enveloped in pink rose shades enhance the effect.

The color scheme of the dining room is apricot with Mrs. Ward roses.

Mrs. Welpton's sister, Mrs. Harvey Griffin, helps receive. The hostess' gown is of electric blue, veiled in net of the same shade slightly draped over the hips. The skirt is trimmed in deep fluted pattern in silver, and silver bodice and silver slippers complete the costume. Mrs. Griffin is gowned in pink tulle over pink satin, skirt very full and draped, and trimmed in pink satin roses and rhinestone buckles.

Assisting in the living rooms and the dining room are:

Mezames—Charles A. Hull, Y. F. Poppleton, Herbert Wheeler, Ben Howe, George Turner, Olive Eldridge, Misses—Alice Duval, Mabel Allen, Louise White, Daphne Peters, Gladys Peters, Amy Gilmore.

For Distinguished Guest.

The affair of today for Prof. Hamlin is a luncheon at the University club, to which Mrs. Lloyd Osborne has asked a number of her Omaha friends to meet the Columbia lecturer of this week before the Fine Arts society. Prof. Hamlin's visit to Omaha has a special interest to Mrs. Osborne, because her two brothers are graduates of the Columbia College of Architecture and studied two years each under Prof. Hamlin. The decorations of today's luncheon are spring flowers.

Personal Mention.

Miss Mary Coll, dancing instructor, leaves Saturday evening for New York to learn the very latest modes in skating, as well as dancing. Mrs. A. C. Hull will leave Sunday afternoon for Lincoln to visit her mother.

Mr. Harry L. Cummings, who has been quite ill for the last two weeks with grippe, is now recovering.

Fashion Hint

By LA RACONTEUSE.

For sport wear the tendency toward color combinations promises to be popular. This is especially noticeable where a sport coat of glazed kid is worn. Usually the skirt is shown in a contrasting color, either in plain or striped effect. This particularly jaunty outfit consists of white glazed kid belted coat and black and white striped velvet skirt. White kid boots and black-white kid hat carry the color combination throughout the costume.

On the Calendar.

Among the givers of dinners tomorrow evening preceding the Subscription club dance at Turpin's academy, will be the Wilsons, the O. C. Redicks and the Will Hamiltons.

WIFE BREAKS HER PROMISE TO REWED

And Now Husband Wants the Divorce Decree Set Aside for That Reason.

DID NOT CONTEST THE DIVORCE

A strange story of a husband's second wooing of his wife, a few days before granting of a divorce decree, and of a broken promise to marry, is told to the district court by Delbert F. Whitney in an application to have the decree set aside. Whitney has August. He did not resist her suit, but he is asking the court to give him back his wife on the ground that she has failed to keep a promise to marry him again if he would give her the satisfaction of telling her friends she had secured the decree.

An affidavit by A. L. Sutton, Whitney's attorney, says that the promise was made in his presence and that he would not have allowed Mrs. Whitney to get a divorce by default, had she not made the "arrangement" to her.

Divorce in Accommodation.

Mrs. Whitney said she wanted "to make good with her friends," whom she had told she intended to get a divorce, according to Sutton's affidavit, and she was allowed to secure the decree as an "accommodation" to her.

After Mrs. Whitney filed for divorce she became reconciled to her husband, according to the attorney's affidavit, as a result of his second wooing. The promise to marry again is alleged to have followed.

Whitney alleges that he has always treated his wife properly and that she had no cause to desire to divorce him.

Fifty Suits for Divorce Stricken from the Docket

Fifty divorce cases are among 105 old suits pending for years on equity dockets which District Judges Redick and Sears have dismissed because plaintiffs have failed to prosecute them.

Practically all the divorce suits dismissed represent reconciliations, according to court officials, the plaintiffs having taken back their recalcitrant spouses, but holding the pending suits over them as a guaranty of good behavior.

Many of the cases dismissed have been pending three to four years. Lawyers representing plaintiffs were given opportunity to show cause why they should remain on the docket, and several cases were saved by a showing of reasons for delay.

Lists of old cases also have been presented by the clerk for dismissal to the judges presiding over law courts.

Groodt and City Passenger Agent Bonorden of the Great Western have returned to Omaha from a family meeting at Des Moines, attended by 200 of the company agents of the western and northern divisions. One day was devoted to addresses by the head officials of the road and these talks were followed by a general discussion of points raised. In addition there was a banquet, a theater party and a smoker.

Advance Suggestions for the February Hostess

Valentine's day is the special holiday of the youth, and nowadays even small children feel that a February 14th without a party is as incomplete as Thanksgiving without a turkey, or Christmas without a tree.

A very enjoyable affair can be given at small expense, and with very little preparation. All that is necessary to the success of a party is originality. Given this, the omission of expensive decorations and elaborate souvenirs will not be noted, while a novel touch will lend to the simplest menu a distinction which will make the supper unforgettable.

The small hostess who gives an afternoon party may send some such invitation as:

A message just for you: So, Monday, if you'll come for it, I'll tell you what I'll do—I'll let you have your valentine. And have some supper, too. February the fourteenth. From 2 to 5:30. Margery Evans, 123 Kensington Street.

If the invitations are written on plain white note-paper, affix here and there a tiny, red, heart-shaped "sticker"; these can be purchased, 100 in a box, in any store that handles stationery and office supplies.

Before the guests arrive, place the piano across a corner, and have a child's fishing rod and tackle in readiness—a stick, cord and bent pin will suffice; then, as soon as all of the children are assembled, have them take turns casting the line into the pond back of the piano. As each child tries his luck, an older person strikes a chord on the keys—in the bass clef for the boys and the treble for the girls—this is to "call the fish." The children are told; but it is really a signal for the person hidden behind the piano, that he may know whether a boy or a girl has the line. Whenever the hook descends, this person puts it through a bit of folded paper, gives the line a jerk, and the fish is drawn forth. When each has had his turn, the fishermen are asked to open their "catch" and to do whatever the fishes tell them.

Each bit of paper instructs its possessor to look in a certain place; going there, he finds a slip which sends him to another part of the house, and so on, until he finally runs down his quarry. For example, the fish may say, "Go to the library and look between pages 96 and 97 of volume 8 of the Encyclopedia Britannica." There the child may find a slip reading, "Look under the card that is on the hall table." There he may be commanded to "Turn back the parlor rug at the corner nearest the fireplace;" and under the corner may be another command, or the prize rewarding his search. The most entertaining prizes are the comic, paper valentines, costing 1 cent each. Select those which are humorous without being unkind or extreme. Teen-age boys and girls will enjoy this fishing party quite as much as do their small brothers and sisters.

An easily prepared and very effective decoration for the table consists of a large heart-shaped centerpiece of broken evergreen twigs. Outline this with medium-sized candles, one for each guest; run red ribbons from the candles to the places arranged around the table; attach red paper hearts to the ribbon ends, and write on each heart the name of a guest; these are the place cards.

If there is a chandelier over the table, a "shower decoration" will be a novelty. Cut narrow red ribbon into various lengths, and fasten these to different parts of the chandelier; then pass a candy "motto" heart on each of the ends hanging down. Turn out the lights in the room just before the children are summoned; the effect will be wonderfully pretty.

The following menu is wholesome, and carries out the red color scheme: Cold sliced ham, French-fried potatoes, Pimento-cheese sandwiches, Currant-jelly sandwiches, Beet pickles and olives, Cherry jelly, Hot chocolate, Assorted candies.

In making the sandwiches, slice the bread very thin, and as each is made, cut it into the shape of a heart, with a fancy cookie-cutter. (If you are unable to buy such a cutter, take an empty can—a large baking-powder can will do—and with a pair of pinchers bend it into the desired shape for one inch from the edge.) Cut the beet pickles into the same form, using a smaller cutter. In making the pimento cheese, use heart-shaped molds if possible; place on a mound of whipped cream on top of it, surrounded with a cherry. This jelly is just as attractive as the ice cream, which the children always expect. The cakes should be small individual ones. Cover them thick on all sides with a white frosting, and decorate with tiny, red, heart-shaped cinnamon drops. (If only round cinnamon drops can be obtained, arrange them on the cakes in the form of a heart.) When supper is over it will be time for small guests to go home. If the party is an evening affair for the older boys and girls, the final hour may be very enjoyably spent singing songs with which all are familiar—Florence Oliver in Mother's Magazine.

THROWS OUT MEAL OF POOR FAMILY

South Side Woman Hurls Away Potatoes Provided by Police Officers.

OMAHA FOLKS TO THE FRONT

Added insult on the part of Mrs. O. Bailey, owner of the home in which destitute and sickly family of Mrs. Rose Smith, 2807 Madison street, live, has aroused the ire of local police officers. It is said that after Detective Allen and Officer Benny Danbaum left the home Tuesday morning after giving explicit orders that storm windows and other outer effects taken from the house be replaced by Mrs. Bailey, the latter went into the home and taking a frying pan of potatoes from the stove, threw them out of the window. Mrs. Bailey wanted to get possession of the house for her mother.

As the local officers purchased and furnished the supplies with which Mrs. Smith was preparing a meal local officers feel more indignant. Mrs. Bailey in the meantime refused to even furnish the gasoline in which the officers purchased the gasoline to start the fire.

Help for the Family.

Help came in abundance Tuesday evening and today. T. J. Donahue, police officer of Omaha, telephoned down to Captain Vanous and told the latter to have all supplies necessary bought and charged to him. Mrs. Charlie Grotte, also of Omaha, telephoned the captain asking what was needed at the home. Associated Charities investigated, and it is improbable that the little family will lack for want of food to eat. Yesterday morning before the windows had been taken from the home Ben, 17-year-old son of Mrs. Smith, obtained work at a local packing plant. He entered on a hard labor job on an empty stomach.

Harmony Keynote of Jewelry Store

The Ryan Jewelry company is moving to its new location in the Ross building today. Several innovations in arrangement and fixtures have been adapted to this new store that will make it one of the model retail jewelry concerns of the country.

The Ryans are the first jewelers to adopt "period" fixtures in the United States, according to the manufacturers. Everything is done in "Adam period" style with mahogany woodwork and a gray color scheme throughout. The indirect or diffused lighting system is also new to Omaha stores. The arched ceiling is done in Caen stone, which is a German product on the order of that used by the ancients in building some of the famous structures of history. Everything in the store will be harmonious, from the strings that hold the price tags to the massive safe in the vault.
