Car Shortage in Grain Circles Ends:

The grain car shortage is a thing of the past. It ended as suddenly as it nenced. Two weeks ago grain shippers were begging the railroads for cars in which to ship grain east and south, but now the situation has changed and the railroad officials are begging the grainmen for shipments. Just why this change has come about so quickly, nobody seems to understand. Omaha grain receipts and shipments have held up pretty litude of cars for business.

solution of the excess number of graincarrying cars at this time is due to the fact that during the last fifteen days great numbers of cars held along the Atantic coast ports, filled with freight whose pony stamped over these plains a for export, have been unloaded and released and are now getting back into in the big historical parade of Ak-Sarthe territory where they are owned. Omaha grain receipts today were fairly heavy, there being fifty-one cars of wheat, ninety-nine of corn and nine of cats on the market. The market was strong and higher, about everything offered being taken early in the session Wheat sold at 98 cents to $1.08%, an advance of from 1 to 2 cents over the prices of Wednesday. Corn sold at 46 to 68 cents, an advance of 1/2 cent. Oats brought 27 to 431/2 cents, 3/4 cent up.

Children Playing With Matches Cause Many Local Fires

Chief Salter's fifteenth annual report of the fire department, being the two ty-ninth report of the paid fire department, shows that during 1915 there were 1,131 alarms of fire received and that the total loss to buildings and contents Was $335,600.

Thirty-eight firemen and twenty-aix citizens were injured, ten of the latter dying from injuries at fires and one being killed by a fire truck.

Careless use of matches caused 108 fires. Of the days of the week, Monday was the bustest day for the firemen. Gasoline caused thirty-five fires and flues and chimneys caused Ill glarms.

Chief Salter recommends to the mayor and city council the purchase of 10,000 to 14,000 feet of new hose, standardized motor apparatus and uniform five-men hose companies throughout the system. During the year $16 alarms were sent in over the telephone. The Board of Trade building was the most serious fire of the year.

A modern fire alarm system is urged by the chief. The report shows there are 255 men in the twenty-one fire

Omaha School Girls Will Go to Lincoln Next Monday to Sing

Next Monday afternoon the Burlington will run a special train to Lincoln, carrying 165 Omaha school girls, who, during the evening will form part of the chorus that will sing at the National Music Mastera' convention. The Omaha contingent will be accompanied by Miss Amold and Miss Ensor, who have charge of the music in the Omaha schools. The young people will return to Omaha the same evening, leaving on a special train that will start from Lincoln after the will be an appearance of abundance

OLD WOMAN HUGS VILLA HUNTER ON BUSY STREET

A neat soldier boy, equipped with clanking spure and bristling with arms, out all over your scalp-Danderine is. was slowly walking down Sixteenth street, near Farnam Wednesday, killing time until the train which was to carry his company towards Mexico left.

Suddenly an old, motherly-looking woman, who had been following him for some distance, walked up and with a word, flung her arms about his neck. "God bless you, son!" she fervently exclaimed.

The soldier was astonished. "What's the matter, madam?" he saked. 'Oh, I'm so glad you boys are going to get that acoundrelly Villa. He killed my grandson three months ago-shot him down like a rat in a trap." "Well, we'll get him or get a piece of his household goods," laughed the soldier, as he started to walk on. "Here, wait," the old lady requested. After fumbling in a handbag for a few minutes she brought out a little Hible Take this with you, son, and may it be the talisman that shall guard you and keep you from danger." Her eyes were brimming with tears. The soldier walked on, and the little crowd that had been attracted by the old woman's strange conduct glowly dis

King Ak's Mighty Artisan Even Brings Chief Blackbird Back to Life for Big Pageant.

ROBS MUSEUM TO TURN TRICK see J. H. Dumont & Co., Keeline Bidg.

> Long years has Gus Renze wished to visit the ancient stamping ground of Chief Blackbird, the last reigning Divorces Divorces filed chief of the tribe of Omaha Indians. Recently he saw the famous Blackbird Hill in Thurston county, where the chief was first laid to rest.

The heart of the mighty artisan of King Ak-Sar-Ben galloped faster as he stood at the grave of the old chieftain. The clash of stone battleaxes sailed into his mind on the wings of reminiscences. The rolling sputter Twenty-fourth and St. Mary's avenue of the hoofs of many war ponies resounded in the imagination of the great Gus. Yea, even the savory scent of dog stew was wafted to his nostrils from imaginary fleshpots of

Still Not Satisfied.

Yet, after all, this thing of looking at grassy spot on a hill was not enough satisfy the studious mind of Renze. Britton of Fremont will speak on "Bird chieftain had long since been removed Songs" and Miss Trent will talk on from this spot, and that the skull even now rests in a museum in New York.

"Fine," said Gus. "I'll see that." So, recently while the mighty Renze was in the east boring around in the libraries and museums for material out of which to build his great historic parade for this coming fall, he slipped over Shipments Wanted to the museum were Blackbird's skull ests under a glass case.

"How are you, Chief," said Renze. "Hello Gus," said the skull. "Afn't you lonesome back here among the easterners?" Gus ventured. "Sure, kid, but my day is past. I understand you're the big Indian out there in Nebraska now."

No Dead Ones in Nebraska. "That's me," said Gus. "And I've come to get you for the parade. I've got to have you. You know, in Nebraska we well. Regardless of this, there is a mul- recognize no dead ones. We have no dead ones there. Take a fresh whiff of Railroad men assert that the possible pep and join the parade in the fall, will you, old top?"

"Bein' as it's you, Gus, by the living talons of my ancestors, I'll do it." So, then and there, Chief Blackbird, century or two ago, was booked to ride
