Discrits.

Discrits effects of German torpedo operations were much more apparent in the wheat trade than was the influence of rains in Trans and Oklahoma, where drouths has of late have been a anious handleap to the development of the wheat cores. The rains brought about a downturn in prices here at the start? but the market soon railled despite schices of some improvement of field conditions in Missouri. For the mast part the arength shown on the upturn was due to assistant that northwest seeding would be late and the acreage decreased reports were also current, however, that foreigners were buying fature deliveries here and at Winnipes.

Mharpest breaks in the price of wheat followed the announcement of a second vessel from the United States baying losen destroyed by a submarine. This time the market showed little or no power to recover, and the final transactions were at virtually the lowest level of the day. A wave of selling in the corn trade added materially to the embarrasgment of the wheat bulls as the session came to an end.

the wheat bulk as the session came to the end.

Heavy liquiditing sales by holders carried corn decidedly down grade. Big stocks here and the absence of an adequate outlet seemed to have grown to break. Liberal sales of corn to manufacturers of alchol had only a temporary bulksh affect. Oats displayed sympathy with the action of corn. The trading in oats was almost wholly of a local character.

Quality was generally good, and as there was a fair demand all through for desirable hogs a good share of the supply had been cleaned up before 11 o clock. The light and poor mixed grades, how ever, found the usual clicky market, and while quite a few soil along with better hogs early at somewhat stronger prices, most of the under-weights offered attracted little attention until toward the finish.

The general market was, thanks to the early advance, a little higher. Bulk sold at 19,1559-40, and several loads of the best heavies reached 19.5, a nickel above yesterday's top. The average shipper is unable to realize how much stuff sctually sells below the bulk, owing to the fact that late closes make it impossible to quote the sales.
