(From a Staff Correspondent.) DEER MOINES, April 7.—(Special Telegram.)—When earth gave way at the top of a cistern where he was working yesterday afternoon, Oliver P. Jellison fell into the icy water. He was rescued after a half hour's labor. His right knee was injured in the fall. There was four feet of water in the fifteen-foot cistern.

Many Candidates File.

James B. Weaver of Des Moines, candidate for the republican nomination for representative from Polk county, filed his nomination papers with the secretary of state today. A lively contest over representative is promised in Warren county with two republican candidates out for the nomination. Ben Kern of Norwalk, a member of one of the pioneer families of that county, has recently announced his candidacy. H. M. Holliday of Indianapolis, proprietor of the Midland Chautauque bureau, is also out for the nomination. Congressman Horace M. Townser of the Eighth district filed his nomination papers yesterday. State Senator Leslie E. Francis of Spirit Lake also filed today.

Cottonseed Meal Short.

According to the announcement made by the state food and dairy department today examinations of samples of cottonseed meal have been made from sixty-five cars and all have been found short in protein from 20 to 25 per cent. A rebate for purchasers will be demanded by the department, as the loss per car to the purchaser, it is claimed, amounts to about $25. A report will be made to the food and drug bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Pottawattamie Gets Big Slice.

The semi-annual distribution of the automobile fund is about to be made to the counties of the state by the state treasurer. The total amount to be distributed is $1,135,338, which is larger than collected the entire year of 1915. It was collected at the rate of $20 per township. Pottawattamie county and Kosciusko county are the largest counties in the state, each having twenty-eight townships and each received $15,840. Five per cent of the fund goes to the state, 5 per cent to the Highway commission and 90 per cent to the counties.

Heads Trail Parents.

Ben Dudi and his wife, Mary Dudi, believed to be the father and mother of the 6-week-old child found Monday afternoon on the city dump apparently having been strangled to death, are being hunted by the police. Police say they have them located in Chicago and that they will be arrested soon.

Bank Tax Case Argued.

The question of whether or not bank stock can be assessed to stockholders in Iowa is being fought out in the supreme court in the appeal case brought by the First National bank of Council Bluffs against the city of Council Bluffs. The city assessed the stock to the stockholders at $100 per share. The bank objected on the ground that the law authorizing the assessment was unconstitutional, and on appeal to the district court the bank lost. The assessment was held to be valid. An appeal was then taken to the supreme court. Many bankers of the state are interested in the case. The previous law authorizing the assessment of bank stock was declared unconstitutional because it provided that national bank stock should be assessed to stockholders, and stock in state and savings banks should be assessed to the bank. Oral arguments were made before the court yesterday by Addison G. Kettle, attorney for the bank, and J. W. Schneider, city attorney of Council Bluffs, and H. L. Robertson, arguing for the city.

Mysterious Will Case Up.

The Taylor county case involving the estate of the late A. J. Litterer, a wealthy land owner, which has been in the courts for several years, was in the supreme court again today, when oral arguments were heard on the question of a new trial. The case is entitled Olive Daniles against Phoebe Butler and Ernest Lewis. Lewis is in the possession of much of the land and claims to be the adopted son of Mr. Litterer. His claims have been contested in previous trials, but the supreme court ruled in his favor in November, 1914. The district court granted the heirs a new trial and Lewis has now appealed this ruling to the higher court.

Mysterious wills have figured in the trial in Taylor county. One of them was found in a pickle jar buried on the old Litterer farm. Both sides in the case claim fraud.

Organize Dairy Show.

Another big dairy show in which Iowa dairymen will take a prominent part was planned for at a meeting held at Kansas City yesterday, when the southwest Iowa Dairy association was formed. A show is to be held at Kansas City September 14 to 23. W. B. Barner, state dairy commissioner, was elected one of the directors of the show. At the meeting yesterday Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas were represented. Over $10,000 was subscribed toward financing the affair, of which the Kansas City commercial club gave $1,000. The dairy men do not want the beef men to have any of the advantage of them and are planning the big dairy show as an offset to the Kansas City fair, put on by the beef men later in the season.

Nash for Counsman, Even Though He Has Boosted His Taxes

Louis Nash of the Burgess-Nash company, leaving last night on an extended business trip, declares that he wishes he could postpone the trip. "There is just one thing I'd like to stay here and do during the next ten days, and that is to help elect Harry G. Counsman to the office of clerk of district court," Mr. Nash exclaimed. "Counsman is one of the most efficient and honest public officials I ever knew, and I'd like to see him get the job he wants. His word is as good as his bond, and when he says he will accept remuneration other than the legal salary, he will keep the promise. "That may sound funny, coming from one as disinterested in politics as I am, but I feel that Counsman is one man taxpayers absolutely need in public office and that's why I'm for him strong."

Court Holds for The Bee in the Oil Burner Damage Case

By Judge Redick sustaining the demurrer, The Bee won out in the suit brought by the Nebraska Oil Burner company, claiming $50,000 damages because of a publication referring generally to the use of oil burners to work to the satisfaction of the purchasers. The article did not in any way mention the plaintiff company, but it tried to convince the court that it was the particular company referred to in connection with the burners. "It has been the policy of the courts of Nebraska," said Stanley Rosewater, "to give in this state a real freedom of the press. The article referred to is not one-sided, but states the allegations made by various people in regard to the operations of oil burners generally. The press should be privileged to give the public general information in matters of public interest. Few things are more vital to the people than the question of fuel." The court based its ruling principally on the fact that the meaning attributed by the plaintiff's attempted innuendo, could not be so read into it.
