MARCH CIRCULATION, 56,628 Daily—Sunday 50,628

Dwight Williams, circulation manager of The Bee Publishing Company, being duly sworn, says that the average circulation for the month of March, 1916, was 56,628 daily and 50,628 Sunday.

Subscribers leaving the city temporarily should have The Bee mailed to them. Address will be changed as often as requested.

Looks like a republican year from whatever angle viewed.

A joy ride to the coal dealer in April constitutes an exhibition of outdoor sport without a springtime rival.

No, Gentle Reader, no one by the name of Rosewater is running for any office at issue in the coming primary.

Kansas City got its new Union Depot by keeping eternally at it and that is the only way Omaha can get it.

Spain has broken into the quizzing contest on submarine operations. Neutrality nowadays affords no assurance of safety.

Incidentally, remember that there are two police judgeships for Omaha to be filled this year instead of only one as formerly.

The literary person jailed in New York for using the mails to defraud achieves the proper mental shade to match the Blue Moon Magazine.

The Traffic club rallies a husky bunch of looters for the new depot. There is room for more. The greater the pull the sooner results will come.

The 30 per cent uplift in municipal taxes fails to banish the ghost of a deficit. That fearsome shade already haunts the inflated payrolls.

The prospects of restoring peace in Nebraska's democratic family are about as good as reconciling the reports of war bulletin editors. The latter is hopeless.

For the first time in thirteen years republicans swept the municipal field at Tulsa, Okl. Neither ancient nor modern hoodoo can withstand republican drives this year.

German and French reports on aeroplanes losses are hopelessly conflicting. Being wide apart in other essentials, agreement on a plane proposition is expecting too much.

The celebrated argument of the pot and the kettle is fairly outclassed by the mud batteries of Nebraska democratic leaders. The aim is good and the execution a mighty smear.

Mr. Bryan is fond of impugning the sincerity of other men. It is a bad and dangerous practice—World-Herald.

Then why does the World-Herald constantly indulge in this "bad and dangerous practice"?

If Omaha water users had the Cleveland rate of 6 cents a thousand gallons, instead of 18 cents, the saving would be worth reckoning; it would be something even if we had the 15-cent rate enjoyed by water users of Lincoln.

A crusade against overweighted poultry shipped into New York puts the dishonesty by implication on western shippers. The insinuation is baseless. The fact that New Yorkers paint the gills of ancient fish to make it saleable clearly shows that Gothamites require no outside assistance in sanding a fowl play.

Thirty Years Ago This Day in Omaha

Compiled from Bee Files. Mr. Alfred Conner of the general superintendent's office, Union Pacific, has returned from Lawrence, Kan., where he was married Wednesday to Miss Beulah Argue of that city.

Object Lesson for Both Sides.

From Mexico comes a tale to the effect that the peons have been impressed by the marksmanship of the American soldiers in a greater degree than through any other means.

On this side of the border we are finding out that the Greaser is not such a wretch as popular fancy has painted him. He is subject and responsive to the laws of existence, the same as the rest of us.

Just a Pertinent Reminder. A communication from a gentleman who has come to Nebraska from another state to ask us for a primary vote of endorsement for the nomination for vice president on the republican ticket, after giving the story of his life and stating his position on several pending issues, concludes, "If I become president, I will not be afraid to act."

Has Nebraska Too Much Money? Secretary Royse of the State Banking board sounds a warning to the board and the bankers of the state in connection with a condition that has been the subject of deep thought among bankers for quite a while.

Setting the Clock Ahead. The very methodical Germans, according to reliable report, are planning to set the clocks of the empire ahead one hour on May 1, in order to gain another hour of daylight.

Twice Told Tales. Dead, but Much Alive. An English officer who had been, through mistake, reported "killed in action" on his return from the front went to his bank to cash one of his checks.

Risky Kindness to Robbers

Don't invite a burglar into your house or your apartment when you are absent, and don't hand your money to a pickpocket on the street.

In an interview with Mr. Woods, gleaned by Anne Herndon, the commissioner places upon the women most of the blame for assisting predatory criminals.

Not long ago the house of an assistant to a prominent New York clergyman was robbed, and the burglar got in through the skylight. The minister then got in that way again. One night a few days ago, however, his wife went out and left the following note tacked to the door.

Not listen to the case of Mrs. C. Mrs. C. is the wife of successful New York business man, and she is greatly interested in curious jewelry.

While these are not essentially moral tales, Mr. Woods appends a few morals that may or may not apply to the examples given. They constitute ahead recommendations for protection against theft.

A Boost for Hughes.

OMAHA, April 7.—To the Editor of The Bee: There is a movement on foot by a certain element, principally in the eastern part of the United States, the object of which is to secure the nomination of a business man for president on the republican ticket.

Justice Hughes' name will not appear upon the ballot in Nebraska. There has been considerable agitation seeking to prevail upon republicans to write in his name.

How to Vote for Hughes.

OMAHA, Neb., April 7.—To the Editor of The Bee: I am in full sympathy with your "Write It In" Hughes campaign.

No Fee Grant Here.

OMAHA, April 7.—To the Editor of The Bee: I wish to state that if I am elected to serve as county treasurer, I will not only report all fees collected of whatsoever nature, but will give an honest and businesslike administration.

Thanks for the Thanks.

OMAHA, April 7.—To the Editor of The Bee: At the regular meeting of the Retail Publicity Buyers' Club, the secretary was instructed to write The Bee, thanking them for their assistance in making the "Week of Wonderful Windows" such a great success.

The Flag Involuble.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., April 7.—To the Editor of The Bee: The letter on the desecration of the flag signed G. E. H. is so manifestly written in pure ignorance that I venture to answer the question it propounds.

SUNNY GEMS.

China has returned to the monarchial form of government. But even so, Tenbyson would probably not say today: "Better fifty years of Europe than a cycle of Cathay."—Judge.

DEAR MR. KABIBBLE, MY SWEETHEART HAS RETURNED MY LOVE LETTERS—WHAT SHALL I DO?—EDDIE MAYER COPY THE BEST ONES AND GET ANOTHER GIRL!

What possessed those vulgar newly-rich people in your neighborhood to buy a "staircase"?

Suppose they found out it was the only way in which they could get up in the world?—Baltimore American.

Mrs. Kawler—Did you ever go to one of those astrologers? Mrs. Blunderby—No; but my daughter Kate is just crazy to have her periscope read.—Boston Transcript.

Presume you understand an auto thoroughly? Thoroughly. That is, I know when it won't run there is something the matter with it.—Detroit Free Press.

Business Caller (looking at photograph)—This is a picture of Mrs. Peckington, I suppose? Peckington—Yes; that's her when she is—getting her picture taken.—Philadelphia Press.

"Yes, I'm engaged to a nice, domestic girl." "Can she make cherry pie?" asked the other facetiously.

"I don't know about that. But, speaking of cherries, she can mix a tip-top cocktail."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Was her father violent when you asked him for her hand?" "Was he? Great guns! I thought he'd shake my hand off."—Town Topics.

AIN'T IT QUEER? Jesse G. Clark, in Judge. Say, on the level, ain't it queer?

The way a fellow's luck will run? I never met a girl in spring whose praise all summer I would sing.

Whose love I held exceeding dear Through all the year? I never loved a single one Who didn't mean, "I flirt for fun."

Yet lamp this fact: When Christmas cold Brings thoughts of gifts to cheer or cheer?

Religiously I have to rock The writing out of some sized cheque Or scattering of green or gold Where gauds are sold— For them Madge, Prue, Grace, Chloe, Pearl?

Inquire "Ain't I your little girl?" Oh, to the ways of womankind Will some one some day make me wise? Why should a maiden turn me down With saucy scowl or fussy frown?

"Thi Christmas comes? Why then not mind My rapture kind? There's greater mystery than lies Beneath the surface of her eyes!"
