LIKE in the suffrage campaign days of year before last, local votes-for-women enthusiasts are aroused over the presence of the international, as well as national suffrage president, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, in Council Bluffs. A delegation of 150 suffragists will go across the river tonight to attend the large mass meeting at the Auditorium, which Mrs. Catt will address and at the luncheon Monday at the Grand hotel there will be present Mrs. W. E. Barkley of Lincoln, Nebraska suffrage president; Mesdames Draper Smith, H. C. Sumney, Z. T. Lindsey, D. G. Craighead, George W. Covell and C. F. Copper, all of whom are assisting in the Iowa campaign.

Since Mrs. Catt was voted by far the best speaker who addressed the Chicago biennial of the General Federation of Women's clubs, clubwomen in general are looking forward to hearing the suffrage leader. Mrs. Catt is a former Iowa woman and so is especially interested in the Iowa campaign.

Mrs. Barkley will remain in Omaha to preside at the state board meeting to be held at the Young Men's Christian association Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The national conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution opens in Washington tomorrow. Mrs. Charles H. Aull, Nebraska state regent, left Monday to attend the conference, and Mrs. Edgar Allan also departed last week to represent Omaha chapter at the meeting.

The second district meeting of the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs is scheduled for Tuesday at Valley. The Omaha Woman's club sends seven delegates, including Mesdames E. M. Syfert, the president; E. E. Stanfield, F. J. Burnett, L. M. Lord, F. W. Caranichael, E. B. Hanson and M. I. Crigh.

For the end of the week, Arbor day plans are of paramount interest. The conservation committee of the Woman's club, under the direction of Mrs. William Berry, is arranging to celebrate this day together with the Shakespearean forty-first anniversary. It will be managed by planting a tree in honor of Shakespeare on the Central High school campus Saturday morning if the Board of Education offers no objections at its meeting Monday evening, and by holding a joint Arbor day and Shakespearean program at the Young Women's Christian association in the afternoon.

A permanent home for the Woman's club, for many years the dream of active club members, is in a fair way to be realized if plans of the committee which are at work, but which they are not ready to divulge at present, are realized.

"THE Main Chance, by Meredith Nicholson, with illustrations by Helen Eastman." "The Port of Missing Men or The Illusion of a Thousand Candles," by Meredith Nicholson, illustrated by Helen Eastman.

A newly bound volume with this inscription therein, if it ever comes to be realized, will epitomize the realization of the dearest dream of Miss Helen Eastman, a young Omaha art student who is now pursuing her studies at the Art Institute in Chicago. Miss Eastman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August T. Eastman and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Eastman.

For to illustrate the books of her distinguished friend, Mr. Nicholson, who is a part of kinship as well since he married Eugenia Kountze, sister of the Omaha Kountzes, is the fairest dream of her young life. And not only she but Mr. Nicholson has also entered heartily into the scheme and many a contract has been drawn up between the budding young artist and the successful novelist whose name is being so prominently mentioned in connection with the appointment of assistant secretary of war to Newton Baker.

Miss Eastman is a Brownell Hall graduate and has spent the last two years at the Art Institute, showing this rather than an eastern finishing school to prefer her for the social whirl. Indeed, she is most serious in her desire to fit herself for her vocation which is to be commercial illustrating and to climax her efforts, the illustration of books. Her first work along the lines of commercial advertising and poster work has been marked by great success. The First National bank, with which her father and uncle are connected, has adopted one of her designs to advertise the bank. It is a huge display and is stationed near Twenty-ninth and Farnam streets.

A Damon and Pythias-like friendship exists between Miss Eastman and Miss Mary Mognath, daughter of the G. W. Mognath and a debutante of the last season. Although she has forsaken the social world at present in favor of her art, Miss Eastman came on from Chicago for Miss Mognath's debut, furnishing a pretty bit of sentiment in connection with the coming-out party.

PASSION week is passed, and very fittingly was it kept, especially the fore part when over 100 matrons went into retreat, keeping perfect silence at the Sacred Heart convent for four days. Thursday came a sudden brightening with the advent of grand opera and the Russian imperial ballet. Other years we have heard, during the penitential season, a nice distinction drawn between sacred and profane music. Judging from the personages filling the boxes at the Auditorium last Thursday and Friday afternoon and evening, all music is sacred this Lent whether it be "Nut Cracker Ballet," "La Boheme," or "Madame Butterfly." Then, too, there's "L'Amore del Tre Re" with its Te Deum to add perplexity to the question.

Speaking, however, of sacred music, Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be given this afternoon at 5 o'clock at St. Barnabas' Episcopal church by the choir and the West sisters' stringed orchestra, with Miss Madge West first violin. The soloists will be Mr. George McIntyre, baritone, and Mr. Justin McCarl, tenor.

A very bright promise of the spring has been the forming of the "Aloha Tango class," which had been scheduled to meet weekly with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Reed at their country home, "Aloha." The class will now meet Saturday evening at Turpin's hall as "Aloha" will be closed for some time to festivities out of deference to the passing away of Mrs. Reed's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Balch.

Another Lenten event of today will be the meeting of the Research club at 3 o'clock at St. Berchman's academy with a lecture, "The Three Mystics," to an audience exclusively of women.

Holy week ensuing does not promise much in the way of exclusively social affairs and the page of Good Friday on the calendar stands one sheet of scratched out affairs. Two popular guests are expected the middle of the week, but the future hostesses will promise nothing until after Easter.

Tuesday will be an active day with the two circles of the Franco-Belgian Relief society meeting in all-day session, and the second annual banquet of "The Friends of Art," in the banquet room of the Fontenelle. In connection with the banquet over a half score of pictures will be on exhibition in the banquet room and the society will vote, choosing one or more pictures to be purchased. The speaker of the evening will be Mr. George Frances Browne, a landscape painter of note and a student traveler who has rambled and wandered far and wide over the globe on commissions of artistic intent. Mr. Browne's late experience as chief factor in charge of the United States exhibit of paintings at the San Francisco exposition naturally gives an added interest in his visit to Omaha, where he served as one of the judges at the Northwestern exhibit at the public library, a duty put upon him by the unanimous vote of all the exhibiting artists.

The New York Philharmonic orchestra comes Wednesday evening with Miss Frances Nash soloist, another big event in the local musical world and something that will bring out a full showing of society in the boxes and in line parties.

Attending to the popularity of the new officers of the club elected Monday is the fact that two of them also were elected to head departments. Mrs. Mary I. Crigh, the new vice president, was in fact re-elected to head the current topics department and Mrs. A. I. Fernald, second vice president, was Wednesday chosen leader of the literature department. Mrs. C. L. Hempel, the new treasurer, has for five years been secretary and treasurer of the ladies' auxiliary to the Master Highway Men's association, which meets this year in Cleveland, O.

Almost immediately after Easter this season will come the opening of the outdoor season although the formality will very likely be postponed as usual until the end of May. The preparations at the clubs for an active season have been going on for some time, and the members look forward with eagerness to the joys of summertime, when life in the open is preferable.
