AVOID WEDDINGS

Elopement of Miss Frances Hochstetler Causes Mellificia to Romance a Trifle.

AFRAID HABIT WILL SPREAD

By MELLIPICIA-April 20. Some time ago I told about one of the engaged girls who wanted to slope and be married in the south under a group of magnetia trees in full bloom. Girls often say such things, but they seldom would-not-have-a-wedding, without any threats or warnings, flitted across the state line with her flance and was mared the week before her engagement was to be announced. The remantic affair is particularly interesting, for the bride is Frances Hochstetler, last year's queen of Ak-Sar-Ben, and one of the most popular first year girls of her set. The hero this Greina Green romance is Fred

Mothers of the brides are supposed to be awfully put out when their daughters elope, but did one ever hear of a woman, even in her gray hairs, whose cheeks did not flush and her old eyes sparkle when she would tell how she ran away to get married?

Children have always been particularly proud of the fact that their parents cloped. Weddings of pronounced ritual and splendor may be talked about for nine days after, but it is the runaway. marriage that seems to gather glamor with the years and no Gretna Green bride can ever be quite commonplace afterward. Is it going to spread, this spirit of romance that struck Omaha yesterday? It will cut down the copy belonging to the society column-but think of all the fatigue and fuss and worry it will save the families of the brides?

JARDINE KNOCKED

City Commissioner Has Close Call When Beast Steps on His Chest -Head is Cut.

HE IS SAVED BY HIS CRUTCH

Walter S. Jardine, city commissioner, narrowly escaped serious injuries when a wild horse trampled on him in the horse barn at the South Side stock yards. He suffered a make good. But yesterday a girl-who- scalp wound and chest injury and was unconscious for several hours. The attending physician states indications are favorable,

Mr. Jardine went to the yards with City Engineer Bruce to look over some horses. As he supped out of a stall s horse dashed along the sisle, knocked him to the paved floor and stepped on his breast. His scalp was injured by striking the hard floor. Heveral stitches were required to close the wound. The fact that one of Mr. Jardine's crutches was across his breast when the horse stepped on him in all probability saved his life, according to the opinion of a physician. The crutch served as a brace The injured official managed to walk to the office of the horse barn, where he fainted. Several hours later he regained
