

MANY WILL SHARE IN ROBBER REWARD

Union Pacific's Offer for Information About Bandit Framed in Broad Terms.

LITELY TO RESORT TO COURTS

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 30.—(Special.)—Interest in the case of William L. Carlisle, the confessed robber of passengers on three Union Pacific limited trains, is turning from the self-complacent prisoner to the complicated question of the division of the reward of $5,000, which will become payable by the Union Pacific upon a conviction of the robbery on Overland Limited No. 1. There are so many persons who expect to share in this reward, and such a variance of opinion regarding an equitable division of the money, that it appears virtually certain that litigation will arise.

Many May Share. The actual, on-the-ground-at-the-instant captors of Carlisle are George Bachus and Charles Herndon of Laramie, but the Union Pacific's reward offer did not relate to the mere capture of the fugitive, but to any person who in any way assisted in running Carlisle down, will have ground for claim to a portion of the blood money. They reward offer, which was issued the day after the robbery on the Overland Limited, reads:

Upon conviction of the person, who on April 4, 1916, held up and robbed passengers on train No. 1 of the Union Pacific Railroad company between Cheyenne, Wyo., and Corlett Junction, Wyo., and returned to Cheyenne, Wyo., a reward of five thousand dollars ($5,000) in the aggregate to be shared in by all those who assist in bringing to justice such person or persons convicted either by participating in his arrest, or furnishing information leading to such arrest.

General Manager, Union Pacific Railroad Company.

Others Gave Information. At the time of the arrest of Carlisle by Bachus and Herndon, there were in the field scores of persons who had been searching for the fugitive and who, in one way or another, may have supplied bits of information eventually leading to his capture.

Therefore the matter of apportioning the Union Pacific reward, and the Laramie county reward of $500, as well as, highly complicated. Actual peccate of floors, such as Rivers, are not entitled to share in the Laramie county reward, according to a ruling by the attorney general's office in another case, while employees of the Union Pacific special service department are not under the rules of the company, entitled to share in the Union Pacific reward.

WAR CHIEFTAINS OF TWO NATIONS MEET IN JUAREZ

Open co-operation of the Carranza troops with Americans. Extension of the American line into Mexico at least as far south as Casas Grandes and probably further.

Telegation to the American military the duty of policing a "northern zone," consisting of the territory directly south of the international boundary.

Pointing of the remainder of the territory—a "southern zone," by the Carranzas.

The co-operation in handling of supplies for American troops.

Granting of the use of the Mexican railroads to the expeditionary force.

On the acceptance of these conditions it was believed that the Americans would agree not to penetrate farther south than a line to be agreed on and that they would consent to withdrawal as soon as they would receive assurance that the Villista and other bands had been eradicated.

Summer School to Continue at Omaha

The construction of the $50,000 science building for the University of Omaha will not interfere with the work of the summer school session. Redick hall, in which the larger number of the classes are to be held, will not be torn down until the completion of the new structure.

From present indications the summer school enrollment promises to surpass that of the attendance at present. Because of the expected increase, the studies offered this summer, will have a much wider range than the curriculum of former seasons. The pedagogical department, in which the largest increase is expected, will be enlarged by the addition of several new instructors. The chemistry and biology departments will also be increased.

While college work is in the feature of the summer school, academic work is by no means to be dropped. A special department under the supervision of Dean Haley embracing a course of instruction similar to that of the local high schools is to be offered.

With the exception of Miss Gordon of the English department all the present faculty will remain for the summer period.

Washington Affairs

Administration senate leaders have been asked to pass for early passage of the House bill to further regulate and limit expenditures contribution to presidential, senatorial and congressional elections.

The House voted into the annual agricultural bill provision for uniform grading of grain and for a permanent system of warehouses under federal supervision, but it did not reach a vote on the bill itself.

A three-year improvement and bond issue for the Mississippi and Mississippi river valleys has been reported by the House. The bill is reported by the House committee on irrigation.

The committee estimated that the proposed improvement will cost $100,000,000 and that the government will receive $100,000,000 annually for levee construction.

Wife Tips Off to Her Husband, Highwayman Has No Weapon

"Run! He hasn't any gun," cried Mrs. P. M. Pritchard, 143 North Thirty-first avenue, last night, when a man tried to hold her up. Mr. Pritchard up in the vicinity of their own home. Following his wife's advice, Mr. Pritchard ran in zig-zag fashion for nearly a block finally reaching his own door just as the would-be hold-up man disappeared in the bushes on the east side of the street.

Mr. Pritchard told the police that at first he thought the hold-up merely a joke, but when it turned out to a reality he so startled him that for the time he was helpless. His family had been

KAISER WILHELM RECEIVES GERARD

American Ambassador Confers with Emperor and Other German Leaders.

NOT KNOWN WHEN REPLY SENT

BERLIN, April 30.—United States Ambassador Gerard was received in audience by Emperor William last night and conferred with other leaders of the empire. No intimation has been given as to when the German reply to the American note will be ready, except a hint contained in a Berlin dispatch to the Cologne Gazette, which said:

"The consultations at great headquarters probably are near a conclusion. * * * The visit of the American ambassador was designed to permit him to consult with persons in authority there over the situation. It is assumed their final decision also will be communicated to him there."

Statement Misunderstood. The Tagblatt explains this morning that its statement that the basic features of the answer already have been settled was misunderstood. The paper asserts it meant only "say that a draft of the answer had been made, but that a decision had not yet been reached. The wording of this morning's statement indicates clearly, however, that there was no misunderstanding on the part of the readers, but that the Tagblatt made an error yesterday. There is virtually no comment in the press upon the situation except from the pen of Count Erbat von Renwick, who still appears to be a lieve a break with the United States is inevitable.

Sees Situation Grave. The official organ of the Hansabund, the organ of the commercial interest, refers to the gravity of the decision to be reached. It says the representatives of commerce, industry and trade belonging to the Hansabund are certain the question will be decided with the dispassionate care which the situation demands, but are equally certain that Germany's dignity as a nation and its freedom to use all weapons of defense would be fully regarded.

Distinction Between Navy and Army. The distinction between navy and army is based upon a comparison of their equipment rather than their strategic importance.

LANSING DISCUSSES INTERNATIONAL LAW

Secretary of State Says After War Application of Principles Must Be Readjusted.

RESULT OF NEW CONDITIONS

WASHINGTON, April 30.—"The present titanic struggle of the great empires of Europe has shaken international law to its foundation," Secretary Lansing declared here tonight at the dinner of the American society of International Law.

"There is coming a time, a time which will begin with the restoration of peace to this suffering and war-torn world, when we will have to readjust our ideas as to the rules of international law. I do not mean the principles of that law, for they are immutable, founded as they are on justice, righteousness and humanity.

"I mean that the application of these principles to new conditions will give us new rules which have never before been recognized or even conceived by the nations of the world and which cannot, therefore, be now invoked by belligerent or neutral.

The Chief Cause. "If I was asked what was the chief cause of the new conditions and changed methods of land and naval warfare, I would unhesitatingly answer the invention of the internal combustion engine. It has made practicable the automobile, the submarine, the aeroplane and the dirigible. It has made surprise almost impossible on land and it has vastly increased the possibility of surprise at sea. The change of conditions which this invention, aided by the telephone, the wireless and the camera, has brought about is comparable only with that which was wrought by the invention and use of gunpowder. These new conditions offer to the student of international law a field of speculation which is at once attractive and difficult.

"I mean by 'difficult' that, however ardent the student may be, he must go very slowly or he will lose his bearings. He must be a philosopher rather than a lawyer. He must scrap-heap a lot of the old ideas embodied in layers of precedent and return for light and inspiration to those eternal principles which must guide nations in their relations with one another if liberty and justice are to be exalted in the earth.

The Unchangeable Standard. "It is the unchangeable standard of these fundamental principles which is the rock of salvation of international law and whatever code of rules as to the conduct of war may in the future be formulated by the nations of the world must find a sure foundation on that rock which is imbedded deep in the consciousness of modern civilization."

In conclusion Secretary Lansing paid this tribute to former Secretary Root, president of the society:

"In the new field to which we will turn our attention and which I pray God may soon be open to us, I hope that the society may continue to have as its president the wise statesman and profound thinker who for the last ten years has given so much of himself to the society and to whom in very large measure our present prosperity is due. With his commanding intellect and lofty ideals to guide us, we can advance with the full assurance that we are treading the path which will lead us to the height."

GERMAN PRISONERS DIG WAY OUT OF CAMP

LETSBRIDGE, Alberta, April 30.—Six German prisoners, it was learned today, escaped from the detention camp here by tunneling a passage four feet under ground and 150 feet long, leading from the bunk house, under the compound fence, to the center of the city nurseries adjoining the camp.

The men used implements stolen from the kitchen for tunneling.

Further details regarding the escape and the charges against the prisoners were not permitted by the censor.

OMAHA IS FASHION CENTER OF WEST

City Takes Rank with World's Metropolises as Home of Smart Styles.

EASTERN WOMAN AMAZED

A woman writes from New York: "If the Omaha measure any in the publicity given to it, surely your city is one of the most fashion-favored in this country."

It doesn't take an expert to see that the publicity given to style is extremely conservative in its estimate. Much has been said about New York's Fifth avenue, Michigan boulevard and State street in Chicago and various other streets in other cities, but Sixteenth street in Omaha today mirrors as many of fashion's newest fads in proportion to the population as any other city in the world. In the restaurants and hotels, and gathered about the evening costume boards, the smartest gowns, dresses, waists and wraps find such a full presentation of the newest styles that fashion, in its most critical mood, looks on and smiles.

Rivals World Capitals. A visit recently by a millinery expert to the various show rooms and hat shops of this city prompted her to make this statement: "I have been through the ateliers of Paris and the continent; it has been my privilege to see the resultant efforts of the master milliners of this country, in New York and Chicago, and I have traveled the country over gathering the inspiration here and there for new ideas in millinery; my first visit to Omaha was productive of one great big surprise.

"I looked for an assemblage and displays correlating with those of the smaller towns in the United States. I found some of the most superb examples of millinery I have ever seen by my privilege to look upon. Not only has the inspiration of the master designers of the world been reproduced, but greatly to my surprise I found a greater number of brilliant, original conceptions that would do credit to the master milliners even of the old world than I have ever seen in any town with the population approximating that of Omaha. I can, with perfect honesty, place this memorandum in my notebook, 'Omaha, the central city of the middle west, and the city centralizing more brilliant millinery ideas than any other town of its size in the United States.'"

Ultra-Fashionable Styles. Shoes, in the estimation of many people, simply convey the idea of practicality, but Omaha engages the attention of manufacturers, designers and style experts all over the country, because of the surprisingly great amount of the very finest shoes sold here. When the newest buckles and the snappiest designs make their first appearance anywhere in this country, they are seen in Omaha immediately. Style does not stop at the door of New York or Chicago—it hastens to this wonderful city of the middle west with the speed of a "Mercury."

There is every valid reason why the women of Omaha should buy everything they need in Omaha. The day has long since passed when a trip to any other city is anything but superfluous. The very best that the world produces is shown in its wonderful shops. The fact that rentals are lower than those of the larger cities enables merchants to sell the best of everything at lower prices than would prevail in the smartest shops in any of the larger cities. "Buy in Omaha" is a slogan which every woman should tie to. It means perfect satisfaction and great economies.
