FIRE ON AMERICANS FROM THREE SIDES

Troopers Go Up Mountain with Knives in Their Teeth in Battle of Temochic.

FIFTY BANDITS DEAD OR HURT

FIELD HEADQUARTERS, April 29. By Motor Courier to Columbus, N. M. May 1.)-There was man to man fighting and some of the Americans went up the contain side with knives in their teeth during Colonel George A. Dedd's battle "It was the devil's own play grounds." This was Colonel Dodd's description of the terrian of this battle in southwestern Chihuahua among towering mountains where 150 bandits sought refuge.

For two hours Dood's troops of the seventh cavalry, E, H, I and L, fought from an immense hollow, with bandits on three sides, charging deliberately over marked ground with bullet puffs in the dust all about their feet, where the Mexicans had their exact range. They ac counted for at least fifty bandits killed wounded against an American loss of two dead and three wounded. One Mexican woman was wounded by bandits Bandits Flee Hurriedly.

Two nights before this fight, the Amer icans evertook the bandits at the Yoquivo mine, where they were lying about campfires, telling the natives stories of how they claimed to have whipped "Los Amerleanos," at Columbus and at Guerrero They showed big lumps of gold and silver taken from Mexican towns and melted down, which they asserted were spoils of war. Shortly before midnight an outpost ran in breathless, exclaiming.

Los Americanos are coming in. Scores of dark forms leaped through the fire light, bugies blew and in ten minutes the whole bandit command had galloped out of town. When the cavalry men, a Mr. Secferth and another who had paid $2,000 ransom to the Villistas, and whose lives probably had been saved by the Seventh's arrival.

These Americans said the handits were led by Candelero Cervantes, Jesus Del Ries, Cruz Dominguez and Manuel Baca. who was killed the following Sunday after the fight by a Mexican.

Among them were followers of Julie Acosta and General Beltran. They were remnants of all the best known Villa. commanders' veterans, and all that time at least the last known band of Villista's remaining bad men whose nerve had not been shaken by defeats at Columbus Guerrero and Augua Calientes.

Saturday afternoon at 4:30, Dodd's men, arriving at the southern rim of the hills forming the cup in which the town of Temochic lies, saw the rear guard of Villistas riding out of town. Ahead of them they saw the main body of the handits waiting behind rocks to give but-A machine gun was placed to sweep this ridge while the Americans rode down into the cup in pursuit. They dis mounted in town, advancing on foot with rifles ready, led by Troop L and accompunied by the two guides.

American Trooper Hit. While still in town a trooper was hit and mortally wounded. The shot came from the flank, from a cave in a m tain everlooking Temochic. Out of a big adobe chimney the troops pulled a sniper, the only one caught in the place. Beyond the town, Troop L advanced to within range of the creats above. They crossed the range in short rushes, lying down and firing, then advancing a few yards. Colonel Dodd with his staff rode through this zone of fire, while bullets fell within a yard or two of every man until they reached a small knoll beyond the town. From here Dodd directed the fight. Another machine gun was brought up close to play on the force at the crest in front of the knoll. Out along the american line a trooper was lying on his stomach firing. His comrade saw a bullet strike forty feet ahead of him. in a moment more a third ball struck ant lying among his men, directing the Mexicana' Fire Checked.

Meanwhile the Americans had gotten the range of the Mexicans on the creat and checked their fire. Several freshly made graves on this crest, found next day, testified to the Americans' aim. One Mexican leader on a gray horse rode into sight on this sky line half a dezen times, but seemed to be a charm against His grey mount was the last living object the Americans distinguished before darkness ended the fight. This horse was found wounded next day at Santo Tomas, where Manuel Baca, the Villista leader was killed by Leondro Alvarez, a Mexican pacifico, for the price of twenty silver pesos, about $1 American The Mexicans said the horse
