EXECUTIONS STIR UP IRISH PEOPLE

British Government Alarmed as Severity of Policy Arouses Land to Reaction Against Crown.

DILLON FLAYS HARSH SWAY

LONDON, May 12.—The most dangerous factor in Ireland's situation, which had been recognized, since the brief rising flashed in the pan, was that the punishment of the rebels would cause a reaction of sympathy among the warm-hearted and emotional people. This threatened danger appears to be fast materializing.

John Dillon, one of the most respected of the nationalists, but often one of the bitterest antagonists of British rule, attacked the government today in the House of Commons in a speech which for bitter denunciation has not been surpassed at Westminster since Parnell's day.

Asquith Goes to Dublin. Premier Asquith has personally stepped into the breach and is taking the unprecedented course of journeying to Dublin to investigate the situation on the spot and doubtless to give instructions to General Sir John Maxwell regarding the policy which the military government must pursue, now that the chief civil administrators, Lord Wimborne, Augustine Birrell and Sir Matthew Nathan, have retired from office.

The premier left here tonight by the Irish mail train on his way to that city. He announced that he was going to consult with the authorities in order to arrive at some arrangement satisfactory to Irishmen of all parties. He frankly declared that the present situation could not continue. He said thirteen men had been shot for taking part in the revolt. Many of the newspapers, particularly the liberal organs, call upon the Irish factions to seize the present opportunity for settling their long-standing differences.

May Diarmid All Ireland. The marquis of Lansdowne intimated to the House of Lords that the disarmament of all Ireland will be undertaken. This would mean the disarmament of the Ulster and nationalist volunteers, and whether that can be done depends on Sir Edward Carson and John Redmond more than on any other individuals.

The house negatived Mr. Dillon's motion demanding that the government should immediately declare its intention. The House of Lords adopted without division Lord Lansdowne's motion expressing dissatisfaction with the government's management of Ireland.

At present everything conceivable, said Mr. Dillon, was being done to spread disaffection throughout the country. Limerick, Clare and Mayo counties were not in a disturbed condition, and their reward was the sending of troops to quell arrests.

"If Ireland were governed by men of the Bedlam," shouted Mr. Dillon, "they could not pursue a more insane policy. You are letting loose a river of blood between two races, which after three hundred years of hatred, we had nearly succeeded in bringing together. You are washing out our whole life work in a sea of blood."

This and other telling points in his speech were received with loud cheers from the nationalist benches.

After declaring that the primary object of his amendment was to put an absolute and final stop to the executions, Mr. Dillon proceeded:

"In my opinion the present government of Ireland is largely in the hands of Dublin clubs. What is the use of telling me that the executive authorities acted in close consultation with the civil executive officers of the Irish government? Who are these officers? There are none. They have all disappeared. There is no government in Ireland except Maxwell and the Dublin clubs. Everybody in Dublin knows that."

"Before the civil officers took flight the military officers treated them with undisguised contempt; and from the day martial law was proclaimed the civil government came absolutely to an end. The men of the old 'ascendancy' party are going about the streets of Dublin, openly glorying in the rebellion; they claim that it brought martial law and real government into the country. That is what makes the situation so terrible."

"If that program is to be enforced in Ireland, you had better get ready 100,000 men to garrison the country. And then what sort of an appearance will you make as the champions of small nationalities?"

Threatened With Death. Mr. Dillon charged that men had been threatened with death unless they gave evidence against comrades. In one case a boy of 15 was ordered to give evidence. He said, "I won't," and the officer said "You will be shot." The boy replied "Shoot away."

The boy was then blindfolded and taken away, and was again asked to inform, but replied, "No." He was then made to hear the click of the rifles, afterward the handcuffs were taken from his eyes and he was sent home. After describing this incident, Mr. Dillon said: "I call that damnable and intolerable."

"Another man said: 'Shoot me, for I have killed three of your soldiers.' That may horrify some of the honorable members here, but I am proud of these men." This remark met with loud cries of "Shame!" but the speaker went on: "I am proud of their courage, and if the English people were not so dense they would have these people fighting for them."

Dillon contrasted the deterrent of

washing out our whole life work in a sea of blood."

Dillon contrasted the deterrent of which you can trample into dust without consideration.

There was a lively incident at the conclusion of Mr. Dillon's speech. He was saying that the insurgents had made a good, clean fight, however misguided. He was interrupted by a member, and retorted:

"It would be a good thing if your soldiers were able to put up as good a fight, 3,000 against 30,000 with machine guns and artillery."

Cause of Attack. The chief cause of the attack on the government in the House of Commons today was a revelation that another execution had occurred—that of a Fermoyle man named Kent—which was the first military execution outside of Dublin.

The summary shooting of the Irish editor, P. Sheehy Skeffington, has aroused increased protest as the details have become known.

Scribe Starts Fight for Property Left by Relative

In an effort to force a redistribution of property left by his grandfather, who died last December, Miles Greenleaf, an Omaha newspaperman, is plaintiff in a suit filed yesterday at Waukegan, Ill.

The suit was filed for Mr. Greenleaf by a Chicago attorney. Samuel Smith Greenleaf, an Illinois pioneer, died at Waukegan at the age of 84 years, leaving, according to the Omaha man, three legal heirs—Samuel Frank Greenleaf of Waukegan, a son; Charles Greenleaf, professor of modern languages at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, a grandson, and himself, a grandson.

Miles Greenleaf claims that his uncle, Samuel Frank Greenleaf, in 1911 got his grandfather to deed the property to him, (S. F. Greenleaf) who subsequently decided it to a trustee. The Omaha scribe contends that his grandfather, who was 91 years old when he deeded the property to S. F. Greenleaf, was not competent to make a conveyance of the real estate in question.

Mr. Greenleaf, averring that he has waited a reasonable length of time, wants the deed made by his grandfather set aside and the property, which is located in Waukegan, divided equally three ways. In the suit filed yesterday his uncle, cousin and several other members of the family are named as defendants.

Three Places Raided By the Morals Squad

Three raids were credited to the work of the morals squad of the police department last night, the first being the house operated by Mrs. E. H. Williams, at 1523 Leavenworth street. From this place May Miller and Helen Burns were taken as inmates.

Next came the raid on the place owned and run by Nelly Lyons, 1590 Leavenworth street, where Mrs. Lyons, the owner, Lily Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. George Holloway and P. J. Ryan were taken and charged as inmates.

The squad then finished their evening's work by closing the place operated by May Eaters, 219 Paul street, from which Anna Gray, Ernest Walker and E. Corington were held as inmates.

MAN'S SOUL NEVER RETURNS TO BODY OF AN ANIMAL

A large audience which taxed the capacity of the Theosophical hall in The Bee building came out last night to hear Irving S. Cooper, the national lecturer of the Theosophical society, on "Reincarnation the Master Key."

"One of the current misconceptions about reincarnation," said Mr. Cooper, "which prevents a consideration of the idea by thoughtful people is that it teaches the return of the human soul in the body of an animal. This point of view is obviously as absurd as it seems foolish even to mention it."

"Progress is forward, not backward," so as we advance we always come back in human bodies, each one a little better than the previous one. Not a single event can happen to us which does not offer something of value for growth. Mrs. Tolson gave two vocal numbers. Mr. Cooper speaks tonight at 8 o'clock on "The Supreme of Theosophy." The lecture is free to the public.

REICHSTAG RULES KARL LIEBKNECHT FACE TRIAL

AMSTERDAM, May 12.—(Via London.) NEW DISAGREEMENT OVER THE GREATER ARMY MEASURE

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Disagreement over the method of organization of the regular army is again increasing the army bill in contention. The conference of the senate and the house had a second and fruitless session for several hours today, the senate members believing that the method in the house bill must be changed so there would be no such a disagreement reported by congress.

England Agrees to Let the Poles Eat On American Plan

LONDON, May 12.—The British government has just announced its acceptance of the plan submitted by Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador, last February, for feeding the civilian population of Poland by an American commission.

The acceptance carries, however, certain rather difficult stipulations for the central powers, namely, that the relief must be applied to that portion of Poland in Austrian occupation and not confined, as Germany desires, to that part occupied by Germany. It is stipulated that the food is to be shipped from the United States in German ships under a neutral flag and that Germany and Austria agree as part of the scheme to care properly for the population of Serbia, Albania and Montenegro.

Club Members Given Nifty Program by The 2,000 Committee

Members of the All Saints Athletic club treated members of the Omaha Commercial club last evening, to say an assortment of athletic events as could possibly be evolved during one evening's entertainment.

Wrestling, real battles royal, boxing contests and some fine exhibitions of the tug-of-war, formed the program. Besides this, Pinkard's Saxophone orchestra, a colored aggregation of real harmonists, dispensed ragtime, with the aid of the "alikest lil' ol' trap drummah" in captivity.

All, including tables laden with the choicest of viands, was the treat of the 2,000 club of the Commercial club, who are pledged to increase the latter's membership from 1,000 to the number designated in their title, before January 1, 1917. They donated this smoker to the parent club in order to tell just what was being accomplished and to persuade the big crowd to work with them, all the time. Among those who addressed the members were: J. W. Gamble, Burt Hoel, L. W. Nicholson, O. T. Eastman, of the entertainment committee, and L. V. Nicholas, president of The 2,000 club.
