STUDENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY HAVE JOLLY TIME HERE

Five Hundred Come Up to Spend Day in Omaha, and They Keep Busy Regardless of Rain That Poured Down.

TAKE TIME FOR SEEING TOWN
Festivities End With a Dance at the Auditorium, Following the Lap Lunch.

BOWLING MATCH WITH ORANGES

The climax of a big day's entertainment came last night when the visiting students of the University of Nebraska enjoyed the lap supper, followed by entertainments and a dance at the Auditorium.

Although the rain kept many away from Omaha, so that only 560 students came on the special train, it proved that many had come over on Thursday evening, and still others came on afternoon trains Friday when the rains ceased.

For an hour the students feasted on the big supper prepared by the manufacturers and jobbers of Omaha and handled by the merchants' market week committee.

And the Dance Is On.

Soon the tables were cleared and lunched out. Then dancing became general. Joe Kelley, chairman of the merchants' market week committee, stepped upon the platform and made an announcement. No matter what he said, no one heard him, for there was lots of noise, and, anyway, Kelley had not finished his supper.

Scores of students had pocketed oranges from the table and they began to roll them across the open space on the Auditorium floor. One stopped in the middle. The students then began to roll at the one for a target. The sport developed into a big game of bowling with oranges.

Engberg Restores Dignity.
Dean Engberg walked with characteristic dignity upon the floor. He began to kick the oranges out of sight and to clear the floor in general.

It was wonderful how soon the orange rolling stopped. Dean Engberg is the man who signs all the blue envelopes that "can" the boys out of school.

The Knights of Columbus Glee club rendered some lively selections. Galatea danced some of "her" noted writings and Henry Cox's Omaha Symphony Study orchestra rendered a number of selections that were highly appreciated by the students.

The dance started and continued until shortly before 9 o'clock, when the students hurried from the Auditorium down to the Burlington depot and boarded the train for Lincoln, pretty well pleased with the day's outing, even if it did rain most of the time during their stay in Omaha.

Met by High School Band.
When the Burlington train carrying the students arrived it was met at the depot by Vincent C. Hascall, Dr. Irving Cutter, W. C. Ramsey, Samuel Reese, Jr., Amos Thomas, Frank Bultin, C. E. Foster and E. V. Parrish, members of the general committee, and Sam Cotner, L. A. Higgins, L. W. Charlesworth, Dr. C. A. Meyer, Dr. R. A. Moser and C. A. Bennett, guides. As the students climbed down off the cars, a rousing cheer went up from the crowds outside the gates, and it was quickly

Omaha's importance in church circles will be greatly enlarged. Still all are in the dark as to the plans of the head of the church and have no other information than that reported in the newspaper dispatch above.

Knows the Situation.

None of the local clergy is acquainted with the archbishop, but all are satisfied that his long residence in St. Louis will make him thoroughly familiar with the problems existing here and they look for his administration to be of the greatest benefit to the Catholic church in this territory.
