BODY BLOW FOR MY LADY NICOTINE

Prominent Business Man Passes Up a Perfecto and Tells Why He Did It.

RULES ON UNRULY HUBBIES

By MELLIFICIA—MAY 19.

At a recent men's dinner in Omaha a well-known manufacturer and man prominent in western commercial life was noticed to pass by the cigars and sit without smoking.

"I've given up smoking all together," he said to the man on his right. "On account of doctor's orders?" he was asked.

"No, on account of my wife." The man on the right smiled, as he was a bachelor. "Women do fuss terribly about it," he said slowly, as if strengthening previous resolutions.

Follows Own Rules. "But mine didn't fuss," said the manufacturer. "You see, I did not permit smoking in the factory and had to follow my own rule, I smoked when I got home and all day Sunday, twenty, thirty cigars. I don't know how long it had been when I discovered that my wife collected all the stumps the last night at night to put them on the back porch and that she always aired the living rooms just before going to bed. Then it dawned suddenly upon me what an unfit partner I was for a dainty woman. My wife never said a word, but she stopped my smoking."

Then It Happened. The bomb burst when the fish course was reached, the host doubted the freshness of the fish, the wife took a carving knife and declared she'd run over to the market and kill the meat man and the grocer, that they were both in conspiracy to poison her husband; that they had sent nothing he could eat in two months and his health was failing. She quoted his own complaints at every meal as proof of the conspiracy and struggled to get away to be about her killing.

The guests, forewarned, sat quietly in their seats, rather enjoying the "melodrama," while the husband begged and pleaded and implored his wife to come to her senses, telling her that his own nasty temper had driven her to madness.

It worked—the banker is one of the mildest of men in his very happy home today. It all proves how very many different tacks must be taken with the different men in this queer world.

Charming combinations are evident in the new sport sweaters and the general details are more attractive than ever. A vivid green silk sweater is shown with trimming of white, this forming the deep rever collar and border. The detail at the waistline, in the form of a double belt, is unique and interesting, as are the small metal buckles that afford unusual trimming.

Odd bone ringed buttons are arranged in clusters down the front, serving to fasten the coat. sult with specialists. Mrs. Moran is slightly improved in health. Junior Quinlan is convalescent from a sick spell of several weeks.

A Sinn Feiner's Sale Saturday And It's at KILPATRICK'S

Looking through a Gaelic dictionary for the meaning of the words "Sinn Fein," now in such general use, the best interpretation seemed to be "We Selfish" and I take it, that, as applied to the recent participants in the Irish unpleasantness, to be a Sinn Fein means to be for Ireland first, last and all the time. "We Selfish," with the addition of three words, and you have "We Are Selfish for Ireland." If this is to be accepted as the literal meaning, are we not all SINN FEINERS?

This sale of ours for Saturday, then, is one which should appeal to the Sinn Feiners, for in the last analysis we are all selfish—and isn't this as it should be? You owe it to yourself to expend your money to the best possible advantage. Along this line and in keeping with this idea, our sales are "SO DIFFERENT" and "DISTINCTIVE."

$15 Suit Sale Saturday Here you get the choice of some very desirable garments, including Navy Blues, Black and White Checks, etc. You will recognize at once many which sold up to $27.50.

$10.00 for Novelty and Staple Coats, some made from Jersey weaves and other seasonable wool fabrics. The jaunty, the sedate, the sober or the sport styles, Navys and Blacks included—many similar have been favorites at $18.50.

Last Year and This Year, perhaps, the most popular of all garments was and is the FIBRE SWEATER COAT. We'll have a stirring sale on Sweaters. One division at $3.95—colors, Rose, Emerald, Gold, etc.; $5.00 to $6.50 former prices. Another division at $5.00—colors, Rose, Cadet, Reseda, White, etc.; were $7.50 and $8.50.

FEW STORES SHOW SUCH A BLOUSE STOCK. Saturday on one table, Blouses of Organdy and Voile; new styles which cannot help appealing to you—the price, $1.98. Blouses of Silk, Milanaisé and Crepe de Chine—many embroidered—White, Flesh color and the other wanted shades—Saturday, $3.00 each.

Suits for Juniors $15.00 Day Saturday—Suit by suit we took them off the hangers; one by one the new ones, priced, if you please, up to $27.50. Suited to the larger girl or the small woman—some just the thing for lithe maidens and trim, small figures. You got the price? $15.00 Saturday.

COATS FOR THE WEE ONES 2 to 4 years; some of medium weight; splendid coats, sold up to $12.00—Saturday, $6.75 each. Girls of larger growth and older years will find Plain Coats, Check Coats, short, long, light or medium. Here, too, the little women can be fitted. LISTEN—Coats in the lot were $18.00, and the selling price Saturday—$10.00. SILK PETTICOATS. There is no garment for women so satisfactory and, indeed, so necessary as a Silk Petticoat. Taffetas, of course, are the ideal fabric. We were lucky in placing orders early—long before the prices soared skyward and long before the dye question became acute. A stroke of good fortune for you—IF you are wise enough to profit by it. We doubt if, during this whole year of disgrace, any such value will be found for $5. The wanted shades, ruffled and wide.

We will all be glad, perhaps, later, for we scarcely ever get too much rain in Nebraska.
