

WOMEN DRAW FORTH
IRE OF MRS. RORER

Engage in Spirited Arguments Over
Potato Souffle Versus Souffle
Potatoes.

MASHED POTATOES PLEBIAN

Mutiny, rebellion, insurrection—no, not down in Mexico, but right here in Omaha among the women folks interested in Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer's cookery lectures.

Mrs. Paul Rivett of Lincoln, formerly Miss Frances Wyman, a professional from the state university, who was engaged as assistant to Mrs. Rorer, threatened to resign Monday night after only one afternoon's work with Mrs. Rorer, and retains her position only on the urgent solicitation of the women of the St. Mary's avenue Congregational church, who are sponsoring the lectures, because of the difficulty that would be encountered to replace her.

The trouble started Monday morning, it is said, when Mrs. Rorer came down to inspect the scene and arrangements for the lecture. Several things did not meet with her approval and she voiced it to the committee in charge. "But we thought she was tired from traveling and would get over it," said Mrs. J. H. Osborne.

The afternoon lecture was replete with stinging allusions to the ignorance of housewives in general and seemingly Omaha housewives in particular, which aroused the ire of a number of women present. Mrs. Rorer also frequently mentioned the fact that the program of lectures for the week was not of her choice. "If I had been following my own program," she interpolated several times.

Mrs. Osborne of the committee states that Mrs. Rorer herself outlined her course of lectures.

Quotes Fontenelle Chef.
"Some of the ladies have told me what beautiful entertaining is done here. From what I gather, their entertainings are feedings," remarked Mrs. Rorer with a shrug of disgust.

"He told me that Omaha people never send anything back, because they don't know whether the food is prepared as it should be or not," said Mrs. Rorer.

A number of women expressed their displeasure at Mrs. Rorer's frequent assertions of the superiority of European cookery and the prevailing ignorance on the part of American housewives.

"I venture to say there is a great deal Mrs. Rorer could learn, too, from the housewives of the middle-west. I'm certainly glad there are some people left to whom food is not everything in the world," exclaimed Mrs. Warren Blackwell.

At yesterday morning's class Mrs. Rorer, Mrs. Fred Loomis and another woman in the audience engaged in a spirited argument of potato souffle versus souffle potatoes.

Mrs. Rorer extolled the merits of souffle potatoes and said that no recipe for its concoction could be had in the United States. A woman in the audience declared she had received it from the State university, whereupon Mrs. Rorer challenged her statement and pronounced her recipe that for potato souffle. "All the difference in the world," exclaimed Mrs. Rorer.

Mrs. Fred Loomis had also tasted souffle potatoes at Antoine's in New Orleans, where Mrs. Rorer, too, had eaten them and had been told by him that imported spuds were necessary for this delicacy.

Women Know So Little.

"Not at all, not at all! He was only telling you that for effect," replied Mrs. Rorer. But although Mrs. Rorer would not divulge the recipe Mrs. Loomis gave it willingly to a number who asked for it. "Ladies interest me so much. They know so little," was one of the bombs Mrs. Rorer sent into her exclusively woman's audience. "Men are so much more interested in scientific housekeeping than women."

Mashed potatoes is a plebeian dish, according to Mrs. Rorer. It is likewise plebeian to use table cloths for breakfast—you should use only doilies, while a table cloth with a spot in it was characterized as "vulgar."

"Don't put a lot of silver and cut glass on the table unless you are of the nouveau rich. It is better to tell people you have money than to put so much silver on the table."

Nevertheless, Mrs. Rorer is speaking to a crowded house each morning and afternoon.

ADMINISTRATRIX SUES FOR FUNDS OF ESTATE

Elsie Randal, administratrix of the estate of John Oshy, deceased, filed suit in federal court asking $20,000 from Margaret Oshy because of alleged diversion of funds in the estate of Oshy. She alleges that Margaret Oshy induced Oshy to turn over to her a mortgage of $10,000 and $15,000 besides when he was incapable of acting for himself. She alleges that since Oshy's death she, as administratrix, has been unable to get possession of these funds for distribution among the heirs.

Applying this Paste
Actually Removes Hairs

Beauty Hint:
Merely applying the depilatory paste to a hairy surface, and leaving it on for a few minutes, will remove the hair. This paste is made by mixing a little water with some granules of the depilatory, after which it is ready to use. It is the only hair remover that does not irritate the skin, and it is the only one that does not leave a sticky residue. It is the only one that does not leave a sticky residue. It is the only one that does not leave a sticky residue.

RETURNS IN JUNE TO GET HIS HARVARD DIPLOMA.

Milton Peterson.

Milton Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Petersen, has returned to Omaha for a month's rest from his studies at Harvard, after spending three weeks in an eastern hospital. Young Petersen began his collegiate career at Harvard in the fall of 1912, after graduating from the Omaha Central High school and finished the four-year undergraduate course in three years; but decided to wait a year for his diploma in order to graduate with his classmates, in the meantime continuing his work in the Harvard graduate school of law.

In the latter part of April, Peterson's health broke down and after a three weeks' stay in a hospital he was ordered home for a month's rest. His father journeyed east and after a two weeks' stay returned with him. Mr. and Mrs. Petersen and their daughter, Miss Luella, will journey east in June to enjoy the exercises when Young Petersen will receive his diploma. In the fall he will continue his studies in the law school.

MOVIE STARS WILL COME FOR BALL

Committee is Notified That Leading Lights of the Movie World
Will Be Here.

POPULARITY WINNERS COMING

Which is most important, the sun or the stars?

Of course, you will say the sun. But ask any movie fan in Omaha and they will tell you like the "Culled Gemman" "Dat de sun shines when we don' need de light and de stars shine in de night when de light am mighty welcome. Derefore, brud-ders, de starlight am more important."

The stars—movie stars—are more important to the movie fans than the sunshine, or at least they will be Thursday, when a number of them will be in Omaha to assist in making the Movie ball a big success.

F. A. Van Husen, manager of Laemmle Film Service, received a telegram from Carl Laemmle, president, conveying the information that Mr. Laemmle would be in Omaha personally Thursday and will bring with him Lee Moran and Eddie Lyons, both well known stars on the Universal program.

Other Stars Coming.

C. W. Taylor, manager General Film exchange, received telegrams confirming the promise that Richard Travers and Bryant Washburn of the Essanay company would be here. The American Film company of Chicago is sending Dolores Costello, the brilliant actress that played opposite Francis X. Bushman in "When Soul Meets Soul."

So the movie stars are going to twinkle in Omaha Thursday.

The big cities are not alone in sending stars. Dozens of towns in Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota are going to send their most popular girl to represent their town at the movie ball.

Contests have been conducted in these communities and the people have elected their favorite and are sending her to Omaha. These contests are all closed, but the arrangements committee has not received notifications as to who is coming. The attendance from the state towns is going to be very large. From the film exchanges the following information has been secured:

Madison, Neb., sending most popular girl and party of ten people. Miller, S. D., is sending popular girl and a party of movie fans. Ten people are coming from Plattsmouth to escort their fairest daughter.

J. Peterson, Genoa, Neb., writes that twelve people accompany their popularity contest winner.

Harry Musselman, Osceola, Neb., informs the committee that not less than twenty-five people will attend from his town.

Ten people are coming in the party from Missouri Valley, Ia.

This is but a sample of the notifications that are being received at the film headquarters.

The American people Threw Away more than A Million Dollars

A big banker said:
"Almost every man of fair ability has had at least one chance to become—if not rich, at least well-to-do."
"And nine out of ten missed it for the same reason. They could not make up their minds."

That's the way lots of folks are born—to hesitate—and lose out. They buy land, they build, they buy stocks, after all these things have gone up. They always pay dear because they can't decide.

Here is a striking instance:

When the new Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica was offered the public on India paper, in light thin volumes, it was frankly an experiment. It was new. No great encyclopaedia had ever been published in such form.

So, to acquaint the public with its beauty and its advantages, the publishers offered it at an especially low price, to early buyers. This price had soon to be raised, and the fact was widely advertised. But many still hesitated.

—With this result: that nearly two-thirds of the purchasers of the Cambridge University issue have paid an average of over $30 per set more than if they had seized the first chance.

—With a total loss of over one million dollars. Yet this was no added profit to the publishers. It was just lost, swallowed up.

Identically the same thing is happening now!

We believed there was a huge public which wanted the Encyclopaedia Britannica but could not afford to pay $166 or more per set for the Cambridge University issue.

So we arranged with the publishers for a new issue of the same work, unabridged, in a smaller form. We contracted with them for an enormous printing, and so were able to offer the public a wonderful bargain—the new Eleventh Edition, unchanged by a line, at one-third the price of the larger-sized work—the whole 29 volumes, the complete work, sent upon the payment of a single dollar; and small monthly payments after you have the books to use and enjoy.

Price to be increased $11 to $19

When we made this contract we had no thought of wars and soaring prices. And we hoped to go on selling this wonderful work for years at these low prices.

Now the publishers notify us that they can supply us with no more sets at anything like present costs. The sets we contracted for are nearly all gone and it will be necessary for us to increase the price by $11 per set on the cheapest binding to $19 on the highest priced binding. And it is not at all certain that we shall be able to secure any considerable number of sets even at these prices.

Now! It is up to you. We give you this notice. Which will you do?

Are you going to be one of the people who hesitate, who put off? Do you belong to the people who can't decide—the people who always pay dear because they can't make up their minds? Are you going to wait—and pay more?

We have received to date more than 150,000 letters and inquiries regarding our offer of the new "Handy Volume" issue. Of these it is probable that at least 25,000 people will eventually purchase it—at a higher price. That means that they, too, are going to throw away from a half million to a million dollars—just by waiting. This money will not come to us—it will not go to the publishers—it will just be wasted.

Are you this kind?

Every day you let pass without the new Encyclopaedia Britannica in your home, or at your office, may mean a real loss. In its 40,000 carefully written, practical and authoritative articles, you might find one new fact which might be worth to you hundreds or even thousands of dollars. Many people have.

And you will never be able to buy it so cheaply as now.

Motor cars and such things may go down in price, because a wild craze for them is on and the companies are now making huge profits. But the new Encyclopaedia Britannica is sold on the narrowest margin of profit, both to us and to the publishers, because we wanted this year to offer to our public the greatest bargain we had ever put before them. We cannot continue this sale at these prices. Paper, leather, and all the costs in manufacture have so advanced that it is impossible.

You need this great work. Your family—your children—need it. There are few gifts which wide-awake men and women would prize more than the new Encyclopaedia Britannica.

In buying it you are absolutely sure it is the best that money can buy. The King of England or the Czar of all the Russias, or Mr. Rockefeller cannot buy a better; nor anything that is even second.

Which are you going to do? Buy now—or wait?

The Product of World-famous Men.

For near a century and a half the Encyclopaedia Britannica has been consistently the product of the foremost scholars and men of science and writers of its time—the master minds of each new generation. This is true in an especial degree of the new Eleventh Edition.

From more than 300 of the universities, law schools, medical schools, museums and institutions of learning or research, in Great Britain, America, France and Germany, it has gathered nearly 1,500 contributors, nearly every one of whom has won distinction—often the highest distinction—in his especial calling.

No other work, in any language, has the same distinguished tradition as the Encyclopaedia Britannica. No other work has ever cost such enormous sums to produce. No other work represents so high a degree of authority in every branch of human knowledge.

It is incomparably the finest of the world's encyclopaedias, and yet it may be had in the new "Handy Volume" issue, at a popular price, and for less than is actually asked for some of the most inferior reference works.

Your Last Chance Two Handsome Books Free

Picture to yourself trying to give another man some idea of this monumental book, which consists of 29 volumes, 30,000 pages, over 40,000 articles and a total of 44,000,000 words. It is very much like trying to describe the earth in a page or two. But the publishers of the Encyclopaedia Britannica have prepared a very remarkable book of 130 pages, which does attempt to give you some idea of the wonderful variety and real human interest of these volumes. It is illustrated with nearly 200 pictures directly from the Britannica itself, and gives you a hundred interesting bits of information, revealing the Encyclopaedia Britannica from a hundred different points of view. It gives you portraits of 70 or more of the celebrated scholars and men of science, travelers and explorers, who have made the new Britannica; and it tells you, too, of the long array of great men like Sir Walter Scott, DeQuincey, Macaulay and Huxley, and scores of others who have contributed to the Britannica in past days. It tells the story of the beginnings of this famous work, back in the days of King George III, and how it quickly took rank as the greatest of all encyclopaedias.

For Bright Boys and Girls

To prove that there is just as much in The Encyclopaedia Britannica for bright boys and girls as for grown people, the publishers of the Britannica have prepared a delightful little book full of pictures and interesting scraps of information, discovered by inquisitive boys and girls who know their way round in the Britannica. This handsomely illustrated book is worth owning and is yours for the asking. Some of the chapters are: "A Game Worth While," "Who's Who at the Zoo," "A Trip to the Art Museum with the Britannica Club," "The Nature Club Holds a Field Day," "How the Britannica Helped a Boy Find His Life Work."
