

BURLESON FIRES NEBRASKA NASBY

Postmaster General Dismisses Bridgeport Official For Temperamental Failing.

SOUGHT TO GET MORE CLERKS

Washington, May 27.—(Special Telegram.)—J. G. Porter, postmaster at Bridgeport, Neb., has been fired by Postmaster General Burleson for inquiring why Mr. Burleson recommended an increase in the salary of First Assistant Postmaster General Roper and the three other assistant postmasters general. Porter is a close political ally of Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska and the latter is making an effort to have him retained in office.

Postmaster General Burleson has declined to keep him because he says Porter is "temperamentally unfitted" for the office and "grossly disloyal to the department."

For several months Porter tried to get an increase in the number of clerks in his office. The department here turned him down. On May 2 he wrote Mr. Roper, the first assistant: "I see the postmaster general has requested more assistants. What for? My clerk works ten and a half hours; how long does yours work? I work twelve hours; how long do you work? If your heart is sound you can grant the increase. If the shock will place you in danger I should hate to have you take such a step on my account. Please tilt to about $240."

On receipt of this letter the department suggested that Mr. Porter resign. Patrons of the Bridgeport office, it is said, regarded Mr. Porter as an efficient postmaster.

King Ak's Hustlers Attend Ball Game

Members of the Ak-Sar-Ben hustling crew attended the Omaha-Topeka game yesterday afternoon.

The slaves of Samson were guests at the game of Frank Judson, who promised to treat them to some real base ball as soon as they had signed up 1,500 subjects for his imperial majesty.

The hustlers were carded to attend a week ago, but put it off until yesterday on account of bad weather. They came in automobiles gayly decorated in Ak-Sar-Ben colors and occupied front boxes.

They cheered uproariously during the game and led the attack of the fans in the ninth when the Rourkes captured the game.
