

Health Hints :- Fashions :- Woman's Work :- Household Topics

Perfect Assurance is Bound to Win

By FORTUNE FREE.

"I trust." It's a queer motto for a man to take who is successful in life. I reckon him as a success, but a good many people might certainly sneer at the idea.

"You won't mind my going on with my work will you?" the wife asked me the other day when I looked in.

My friend John, the father of the other John whose legs will grow at such a rate, is a mission worker. He is always smiling. She, his wife, is always radiant. I don't know a happier home.

There is a vast amount of distrust in the world. It is often considered quite the smart thing to trust nobody.

As he was apparently absorbed in examining a timetable posted on one of the walls, his other eye seemed to be hovering around in intense interest in the people standing about.

"Look here, my man!" he exclaimed, "you may be a detective or you may not be, but I'd like you to know what I am—a man who can look after himself. I don't require anybody to look after me."

"He didn't trust me," said the detective to me, "so I left him to his fate. You should have seen him five minutes later. Oh, yes! His watch had gone, and he had collared a perfectly innocent person standing next to him when he discovered his loss.

Why Single Girls Fail Where the Widows Win

By MADGE ARTHUR.

It was Tony Weller who on one occasion gave the solemn advice to his son, the irrepressible Sam of "Pickwick" fame, "Samivel, my boy, bevar of vidders." But it is evident, judging from the number of widows who get married every year, that the average man is inclined to pay little heed to old Tony's warning.

Whatever the reason, the fact remains that widows frequently win husbands where spinsters fail, and, according to official returns, there is a growing disposition on the part of the sterner sex to share their homes and fortunes with ladies who have already had some experience of married life.

Undoubtedly men are attracted toward women who understand them, and no one knows this better than the widow herself. What widow, for instance, ever objects to smoking? She knows a man loves his cigar or a pipe of tobacco.

It is often said that widows angle, or run after men; but in five cases out of six the accusation is an unjust one, the real truth being that their popularity causes men to really run after them instead of vice versa.

She may, or may not, care to enter the bonds of wedlock once more, but having grown accustomed to a husband's comradeship, she enjoys the society of other men.

Consequently, if anything were needed to convince a man of a widow's fitness to be his wife it would be her practical and sensible views on economy.

It is, however, as a practical woman that a widow appeals most forcibly to a man.

White clothes are washed with less difficulty if lemon juice is used to soften the water in which the clothes are allowed to stand overnight.

We Were Not Too Proud to Fight When We Thought We Were Right

Drawn for The Bee by Hal Coffman

When Danger Points Are Shown

By ADA PATTERSON.

Your hair is showing a gray streak here and there. To be quite frank, those hairs are coming faster than you can pull them out in your few leisure moments on Sunday.

Stop worrying about those gray hairs and making them grayer and of greater number, I beg of you. If it be your portion to have a silver crown before you think it due, remember that a streak of soft gray hair about the face is guaranteed to give distinction to your appearance.

The flaccid facial muscles? I know a business woman who is determined not to allow what she terms an avalanche of her features to happen.

"It stands to reason that if you tie up the facial muscles for eight hours a day it will help to counteract the slipping of the other sixteen," she says.

Of friends and picture herself in the midst of strangers without the support and delight of those now dear to her.

Be stronger than the trend of things, mightier than commonplace influences in your life. This is a danger point in your life only as the guide post that marks a corner in the road and that warns "slow down" that danger point.

Most of the troubles of life come from over-emphasis. Don't emphasize either to your family or your business associates, those gray hairs or falling muscles.

There is no giving up time until death commands. There is only a gradual and slight loosening upon the reins.

Advice to Lovelorn By Beatrice Fairfax. Endeavor to be friendly. Dear Miss Fairfax, I have a right to enjoy the friendship of a girl and my neighbor has no right without my thinking of anything else.

THE ORIGINAL Horlick's Malted Milk. The Food-Drink for all Ages. Rich milk, malted grain, in powder form. For infants, invalids and growing children.

Cutting the Lemon

Do not let part of a cut lemon go to waste; with salt sprinkled on the surface, it will be found excellent for cleaning brass and other metal.

Sparkling glassware and immaculate porcelain are obtained by washing in cold water with lemon juice added.

Silverware first rubbed with lemon and then with alcohol and common whitening, mixed, will have a high lustre.

White clothes are washed with less difficulty if lemon juice is used to soften the water in which the clothes are allowed to stand overnight.

Five Great Worries of Women

Not half the horrors that women suppose are going to happen to them ever do happen.

Of friends and picture herself in the midst of strangers without the support and delight of those now dear to her.

The chief fears to which women are prone have been numbered as five and the two greatest are said, on good authority, to be, first, "the fear of being an old maid," and secondly, "that of growing old."

As to the correctness of this statement any reader may decide for himself, but there is probably a great deal of truth in the former, for girls, in spite of what is said about the emancipation of the sex, do still regard matrimony as the best and most desirable career.

It is nonsense. But it serves the self-asserting woman's purpose, and she frets and pines and looks out for "slights" and translates this into a sign of lessening ardor, and that into an indication of departing affection, to her great and endless torment.

Put into a stewpan three ounces of sugar, one ounce of finely powdered chocolate, rubbed through a wire sieve; four eggs, and whip these together over boiling water till the mixture is warm.

Put into a stewpan three ounces of sugar, one ounce of finely powdered chocolate, rubbed through a wire sieve; four eggs, and whip these together over boiling water till the mixture is warm.

little home, her own avalanche of grief sweeping her into an early tomb.

Of friends and picture herself in the midst of strangers without the support and delight of those now dear to her.

Another woman will fear the loss of friends and picture herself in the midst of strangers without the support and delight of those now dear to her.

Put into a stewpan three ounces of sugar, one ounce of finely powdered chocolate, rubbed through a wire sieve; four eggs, and whip these together over boiling water till the mixture is warm.

Put into a stewpan three ounces of sugar, one ounce of finely powdered chocolate, rubbed through a wire sieve; four eggs, and whip these together over boiling water till the mixture is warm.

Put into a stewpan three ounces of sugar, one ounce of finely powdered chocolate, rubbed through a wire sieve; four eggs, and whip these together over boiling water till the mixture is warm.

of friends and picture herself in the midst of strangers without the support and delight of those now dear to her.

Another woman will fear the loss of friends and picture herself in the midst of strangers without the support and delight of those now dear to her.

Another woman will fear the loss of friends and picture herself in the midst of strangers without the support and delight of those now dear to her.

Another woman will fear the loss of friends and picture herself in the midst of strangers without the support and delight of those now dear to her.

Another woman will fear the loss of friends and picture herself in the midst of strangers without the support and delight of those now dear to her.

Another woman will fear the loss of friends and picture herself in the midst of strangers without the support and delight of those now dear to her.

Armour's STAR HAM. "Tell your mother that Star Stockinet means not only clean ham, but best ham." "The Star Ham is smoked in this Stockinet Covering, which has kept in all the meaty juices and flavor—sound and sweet as a nut." Buy Armour Star Bacon—The National Breakfast.

TODAY'S DAINTIEST DISH "COOKERY IS BECOME A NOBLE SCIENCE" A Dainty Confection—Pastry Potatoes By CONSTANCE CLARKE. Put into a stewpan three ounces of sugar, one ounce of finely powdered chocolate, rubbed through a wire sieve; four eggs, and whip these together over boiling water till the mixture is warm.