MRS. FITZGERALD AT COMMERCIAL CLUB

Large Affair Given by Omaha Suffragists in Honor of Former Recording Secretary.

OSTESS FOR EACH TABLE

By MELLIFICIA—June 2.

Omaha suffragists gave the largest fair of the day, a luncheon of eighty tables at the Commercial club, in honor of Mrs. Susan Fitzgerald of Boston, formerly recording secretary of the National Woman Suffrage association, and Mrs. Leonard Everett, who is directing the suffrage campaign in Council Bluffs.

At the speaker's table were also state officers living in Omaha and presidents of clubs, including Messrs. E. L. Burke, E. S. Rood, W. H. Hatteroth, George F. Cooper, C. Hartwick, E. M. Fairfield, J. M. Metcalf and Mrs. Draper Smith.

Complimentary to Mrs. Fitzgerald, who is a Bryn Mawr graduate, was a table of Bryn Mawr girls, at which Miss Ida Darlow was hostess. Mrs. Alfred Darlow, Mrs. George Cassel Smith, and the Misses Carol Howard, Helen Patterson, Helen Sorenson, Agnes Russel and Alice Woodworth made up the table.

A graceful feature of the luncheon was the hostess presiding at each table. Among these were Miss Daisy Doane and Mesdames Charles W. Russell, Joseph Polcar, H. C. Sumner, Arthur Draper Smith, James Richardson, George W. Covell and Mrs. Z. T. Lindsey.

Because of a scarcity of yellow flowers, the suffragists were compelled to forego the usual suffrage decoration scheme and used pink and white peonies instead. The Bryn Mawr girls, however, had yellow and white flowers, the college colors, decorating their table.

The children meet at 4 at the parish house and play games, with a prize for the winner in each contest. At 6, dinner will be served, after which the younger ones will dance until 8 o'clock, when their elders come to spend the evening at cards or dancing, or both. Mr. Lee and Mr. Morley H. Young are in charge of the arrangements.

News of the Clubs. The Cheopian club holds a dance and buffet supper at the Field club this evening.

Timely Fashion Hint

By La Raconteuse.

The three-piece tailored suit is especially smart this season, and practical too, because as the warm weather comes, the coat may be discarded and one can feel well dressed in the frock. Illustrated is an outfit shown in navy serge combined with georgette crepe. The peasant basque is a charming detail, as are the fichu collar and cuffs of white georgette crepe.

BAKERS' EXHIBIT TO BE STAGED IN OMAHA

Displays by Manufacturing Concerns Will Be Feature of Big Convention Here.

SPACE HAS BEEN ENGAGED

More than forty large manufacturers engaged in the manufacture of bakers' machinery, equipment and supplies have already engaged space at the Master Bakers' exhibit in the Auditorium. These exhibits will come from New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Battle Creek, Mich.; Troy, O.; Juit, Ill.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Kansas City, Milwaukee, La Fayette, Ind., and Syracuse, N. Y.

The immense factories represented by these exhibits have invested more than $10,000,000 in their plants, and many of them sell bakers' machinery all over this continent and, in fact, in every civilized country on earth. Some of this machinery is already here and it will be coming right along now up to the opening day of the convention—June 12. Mr. Gillan, manager of the exhibit, has secured permission of the Auditorium management to store the machinery, which arrives in advance of the convention date, in the basement of the Auditorium until time for installing it in the proper booths on the arena floor.

Entertainment to Be Provided. The committee on entertainment estimates the attendance of master bakers at the convention at from 600 to 800, and factory and salesmen about 200. The territory embraced in this association includes the states of Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska. The demand for rooms at the hotels is already in evidence.

The Omaha Master Bakers' club will show the visitors a good time while they are in Omaha. There will be athletics, vaudeville, music and motion pictures every night at the Auditorium, with orchestral music and dancing at the close of every evening's entertainment. There will also be a trip to the packing houses, to the lake and a special trip to Seymour Lake club for the ladies who will accompany their husbands to the convention. The convention program will embrace many interesting discussions and addresses by able and well informed men in the commercial baking business.

Omaha Alumni of Nebraska Uni Are Going to Lincoln

"On to Lincoln" is the watchword of the Omaha Nebraska Alumni association.

The Omaha alumni of the university met Thursday evening and decided to follow the line of the Commercial club and Ak-Sar-Ben and put a shoulder to the wheel in boosting the annual Lincoln pageant which will be held Monday and Tuesday. Tuesday will also be alumni day at the university and all local alumni are urged to attend.

Frank M. Woodland of Omaha will be the candidate of the local association for president of the state alumni association. The fair co-ed was given a ranking by the Omaha association at its Thursday evening meeting. Heretofore the Alumni association has been somewhat of a closed corporation to which only male grads were admitted. But the doors have now been thrown wide open and the co-ed is eligible to be a member of the association, too.

Woman Tries to Kill Self in Court House

A well dressed woman of middle age attempted to end her life shortly before noon, by flinging herself over the railing of the fourth balcony in the court house. She had one leg over the railing when Deputy Sheriff Larry Flynn and Frank Moore seized her. She struggled furiously for a while and would have accomplished her purpose had not Deputy P. J. O'Connor arrived at the critical moment and assisted the others. The woman was pulled back to safety and she promptly fainted. When she revived she refused to tell her name or address.

"I'm just in trouble; that's all. It's no one's business but my own," was her only statement. She left the building without revealing her identity.

Following up a Fable. "Of course, you remember the fable of the thrifty ant and the mendicant grasshopper." "Yes, the grasshopper, having sang all summer, was invited to dance." "And then what happened?" "Well, if the grasshopper was any good as a dancer, it ought to have made enough money to make the ant feel like small change."—Washington Star.
