GOVERNOR PEARSON TAKES THE REINS

Railroad Commissioners Served With Notice That They Must Give Bonds.

DISQUIET AT THE STATE HOUSE

(From a Staff Correspondent.) Lincoln, June 13 .- (Special.)-It is now Governor James Pearson, if you

When Governor Morehead left the state last night taking with him Adjutant General Hall, head of the Ne braska army, Food Commissioner Harman, Labor Commissioner Coffey Fish Commissioner Rutenbeck, In-surance Commissioner Eastham and other deputy state house officials, he left the state in a woeful state of un-preparedness. While the head of the state and his department heads were hobnobbing in St. Loius, there was nothing to prevent the Germans or the allies sailing up Salt river and laying our beautiful and ancient state house in ruins.

But the people may now rest in peace. There is a head at the helm of the ship of state and a firm hand on the rudder. Governor Pearson will now run the state government as he ran the state senate we the last session. It is true he has no private second. sion. It is true he has no private sec-retary, Mr. Mumford having accom-panied the governor to the democratic convention, But Mr. Pearson believes he can act as his own private secre-tary and perform the duties encum-bent upon both with neatness and dis-

Some Are Worried.

However, while the people can now draw their breaths without a flutter-ing of their hearts, t he same cannot be said of certain officials in the state

What will he do," was a much cir-It will be remembered that soon after Attorney General Reed assumed the duties of his office he dug up a constitutional provision which he declared that the present members of the State Railway commission had no right to hold their offices because right to hold their offices because they had given no bond.

Mr. Reed declared that the offices were vacant and called upon Governor Morehead to appoint three new commissioners. However, the governor was slow to act. He took a squint at the constitution which Mr. Reed said showed plainly stated that all executive offices of the state should discuss the state should be a supposed to the state should be supposed to the state give a bond, declaring that the mem-bers of the Railway commission were executive offices. But the governor made haste slowly.

.... Commission Stands Pat. .. . Governor Morehead was not sure what he ought to do. Of course, he would like to appoint three tried and true democratis to the commission, to fill the places held by three republicans, but somehow he could not see his way clear and no appointments have been made. In the meantime the members of the Railway commission stood pat and declared the constitution did not require them to give bond and that the law creating the commission said nothing whatever about bonds.

The matter has dragged along until the present and the coming of lieu-tenant governor to Lincoln and as-suming the duties of the governor has set the tongues to going again and while the new governor will neither deny or affirm that he intends to ap-point three new commissioners, those who claim to be very close to Gover-nor Pearson say that he has come here for that very purpose and that he came here at the instance of At-torney General Reed.

Notice is Served.

As an indication that there is something doing, Assistant Attorney Gen-eral Ayers, acting for Mr. Reed, who is absent, served notice on the members of the Railway commission today that they would be required to give one of the commissioners this after said that they did not expect to fol-low the orders of the new governor and the attorney general. When interviewed by the newspapermen this afternoon, Governor Pearson said there was not much in

"Lieutenant Governor Pearson took "Lieutenant Governor Pearson took charge of the office at 9 a. m."

It is understood that Colonel Presson has also written the executive at St. Louis that the state house still stands and that none of his appointées have been removed and he does not think that it will be necessary for him to return home until he has been nominated for vice president.

High Price for Farm.

Stella, Neb., June 13.—(Special.)—
The Colonel M. W. Harding farm of 240 acres, located between here and Humboldt, was sold last week to Charles Avery of the same neighborhood for $50,000, or $208,33 per acre. This is probably the highest price ever paid for a farm in southeastern Nebraska. Improvements on this farm are exceptionally good.

To the Flag of the Nation

Resplendent ensign of the free, Revered, beloved, from sea to sea, Renowned and blest on every shore, Where Freedom e'er her message bore; Sublime, on high, Now float against our summer sky

Thou glory of the patriot's heart, 'Neath which the loyal tear doth start; Illustrious banner of the brave, Above our homes and temples wave! Our hearts are leal. And hail thee with the cannon peal

Our North and South; our East and West, With culture and with plenty blest—A clime, the fairest of the fair, Bequeaths to thee her balmy air, And bids thee quaff Its nectar from thy stately staff.

Yea, far above our loftiest trees Float high, on every loyal breeze,
And crown each dome throughout the Land
Where light and progress hold command;
And, mounting higher,
Full many a patriot thought inspire.

Inflame our millions, brave and free, With new-born zeal in loyalty; And call our States from sun to sun, To stand in glorious might as one—Each State as true

As thy own star-emblazoned blue.

Thy peerless beauty in the sun, Unveils thy splendors matched by none; Thy proud appeal to Freedom's soul, Leads onward still to honor's goal; And calls each man To live a true American!

The stars upon thy field of blue,
Flash forth from that most loyal hue—
And speak of Freedom, firm and great,
That makes of many, one proud State—
A Nation strong
In love of right, and hate of wrong.

Thy stripes of snowy white that lie
Like streams of light athwart the sky,
But emblems are of that pure ray
That cheers the Land where Mind holds sway—
Where knowledge lifts
The Lamp of Truth, and all her gifts.

Thy stripes bid darkness to be gone; They welcome in the world's glad Dawn Yea superstition's chains they break, And man's divinest powers awake. O Flag of Light, Where thou dost rule, there is no night!

Nay, more; through thee, proud thoughts arise, Of Freedom's sons' glad sacrifice-Thy crimson speaking of our dead, And symboling the blood they shed. O Flag of State, 'Neath thee OUR blood we consecrate.

We hail thee—one united throng: We greet thee with the patriot song We raise thee high; we bend the knee, We strike our swords in loyalty: For thou dost stand For all the grandeur of our Land.

And though our souls must e'er abhor The hell-begotten scourge of war— Yet nerve thy sons to stand no less

Alert in sane preparedness— And swift to fight For justice, freedom, truth and right!

Our Fathers' God, whose watch and care, Have lent thee glory everywhere— Uplift to larger liberty
And make our Nation worthier thee;
Yea, every State,
In Freedom's holy virtue, great!

And distant lands, whose iron thrones
Have cursed with war their blighted zones,
Catch gleams of hope at sight of thee
Unfurled in pride o'er every sea;
And in thy school,
Demand in might THE PEOPLE'S RULE!

And by thy stars that shine as one From Golden Gate to Washington;
That bless, from gulf to northern lake—
Call Earth to Peace, for Loye's dear sake,
Till-crimson blade
Be sheathed, and flow of blood, be stayed!

And speed the day, when every clime Shall hail the light of truth sublime; And when some Ensign of the Free, Shall float o'er every land and sea; And all that's good Be man's, with Peace and Brotherhood! Fremont, Neb., June 14, 1916.
