"A number of our fellows are members of the boat club and it was at their invitation we came up, partly," volunteered Ralph Vinton, Glenwood shoe merchant, one of the party.

Mrs. Monnell and Mrs. August Beresheim, neither of them members of the club, were the judges. As was expected, the first prize was unhesitatingly awarded to Mrs. Montgomery, whose gardens are full of the most beautiful roses, and whose peonies are generally conceded to be the most beautiful in town. She entered a large variety of roses, the finest being the Frau Karl Druschki, although her American beauties, La France, Jacqueminot, Baroness Rothschild and Rambler's of several varieties were all especially gorgeous. Miss Mollie Rice received the second prize for her bunch of Mrs. John Laing roses, which were greatly admired. Nearly all of the club members are growing one or more varieties of roses and compared blooms and methods with enthusiasm. The prizes were simple and afforded merely to stimulate interest in the contest. Mrs. Montgomery received a pretty basket of flowers and Miss Rice, a Japanese coaster for a vase. Mrs. A. P. Hanchett gave a most interesting paper on "The Growing of Roses," which was generally discussed. Tea was served late in the afternoon.
