Timely Fashion Hint

By LA RECONSTRUCT.

Fascinating lingerie frocks are shown in white net with some form of detail trimming that proves most effective as contrast. Net is undoubtedly most popular because it is so serviceable. Very often lace either in filet or cluny pattern is combined, this lending a very rich trimming note. The frock illustrated is developed in white net, bound with narrow folds of satin. The very wide underskirt is befrilled with net and fluting of ribbon. Dainty clusters of flowers here and there afford a charming color note.

JULIUS ORKIN, 1508-10 Douglas St.

We don't want to fight, but by jingo if we do,
We'll never stop 'til poor old Mex partakes of freedom too—
The red schoolhouse we'll give to them to wake them from the night—
The eagle screams, they'll find ere long, we're not too proud to fight.

ALL THE WORLD AT ARMS would seem to be fate's decree. Surely no one can accuse this nation of belligerency—we have suffered insult—our citizens have been cruelly murdered, and still a peace loving President has held war's dogs in leash—at last it would seem the die is cast, and we have crossed the Rubicon, never to stop till lasting peace is assured, and our citizens can live secure from lawlessness and guerilla attacks from brigands and bandits along our borders.

Man must work and woman weep while the harbor bar is moaning, and the business of the world must move along notwithstanding war and its alarms.

Let's dwell on pleasant things awhile—
