Alliance, Neb., June 20.—(Special Telegram.)—For the fourth time this year Alliance today opened its gates to a convention and with welcome signs on every hand greeted the delegates to the twenty-second annual meeting of the Nebraska Stock Growers' association.

Contrary to the usual custom, there are no side shows, carnivals or other amusements for the convention days which would attract crowds from the surrounding country. Nevertheless hundreds of stockmen who have been regular attendants at these annual conventions are present and with large delegations from South Omaha and Sioux City combine to make the convention equal in force of numbers to any ever held here.

At 9 this morning the executive committee met in closed session in the First National bank building and transacted the financial business of the convention, examining the books of the secretary and treasurer and auditing the accounts.
