Military standards of efficiency have been maintained in the upbuilding and upkeep of the Union Pacific.

The special Act of Congress governing this railroad requires such standards and the Union Pacific has kept faith with Congress and the Nation by spending scores of millions in straightened way, reduced grades and curves, double tracks, automatic electric safety signals, superb granite-gravel road-bed and other improvements which make this railroad not only fit for war but super-fit for peace. In time of war the government reserves first right to be service of the "national railroad." But in time of peace travelers and shippers get full benefit of this extraordinary preparedness.
