Evangelist Bernstein To Hold Meetings Here

Evangelist O. O. Bernstein of New York City will give a series of lectures of Bible prophecies in the large canvas pavilion that has been pitched on the Billy Sunday Tabernacle ground, Fourteenth St. and Capitol Ave. The meetings will begin Sunday night July 2 with a lecture on the subject: "War Mad Europe in Prophecy—The Crash of Empires—Will Kaiser Wilhelm Become King Over All?"

Mr. Bernstein will have a corps of assistants, who will help make the meetings attractive. The music will be under the direction of H. I. Pettis of Minneapolis. Prof. Engle, violinist, will assist with his instrument. The meetings will be held every evening except Saturday, beginning with the song service at 7:45 o'clock. Evangelist Bernstein has just arrived in Omaha after giving a series of lectures at Rocky Mountain Park in Denver.

His subjects for the remaining nights of the first week will be as follows: Monday, July 3—"The Coming Conflict—The Battle of Armageddon—Who will win?" Tuesday, July 4. No meeting. Wednesday, July 5—"The Coming King." Program of events connected with His glorious appearing. Who shall be able to stand? Thursday, July 6—"Knowledge shall be increased." Daniel 12:4. Friday, July 7—"Christ's Wonderful Prophecy." Matthew 24.

Many of the lectures would be very illustrated.

Hundreds Watch Lewis at Work as Movie Man Nails Him for Screen

By "SERK." "All right now, Lewis! Let's have a 'close-up' of you!"

A busy movie director briskly pushed "Strangler" Ed. Lewis out into the ring to be filmed. Nearly 500 persons who journeyed out to the Dietz club training camp for the dual purpose of getting in the picture, too, and piping off the only man, who ever gave Joe Stecher a hard tussle, crowded up closer. They wanted a 'close-up' of the Strangler, who will try the Dodge champion's mettle again on next Tuesday afternoon.

"Move around! Smile! Wave your hands! Do something!" exploded the director. Lewis twiddled his thumbs and winked foolishly at Mrs. Billy Sandow. The crowd snickered. "Let's see you walk like Charley Chaplin!" somebody yelled. Lewis Lewis laughed with the crowd, and the camera man ground the laughter into mat history.

A killjoy in the background caught the pause after the laugh. "He'll do that when Joe Stecher gets in the ring with him." Once more the crowd laughed, but Lewis didn't, this time. His jaw shot forward and his eyes narrowed. "Come on, now Lewis, let's have a little workout," commanded the director. Lewis went to work with a vim that was agonizing to the crowd. It was a hot day and the sun beat down upon his bare flesh unmercifully. Big beads of perspiration stood out upon him as he tussled with a heavyweight or pulled at the ropes. He pulled until the muscle cords in his bull-like neck stood out like carvings, though every movement was as graceful and lithe as a fawn's.

"That'll do, now, for today, Ed," decided his manager, Billy Sandow, after Lewis had put in a couple of hours going through his routine stunts. "That'll look mighty good in the films," was the prophecy of Jule Rachman, the director. Lewis could hardly be described accurately as being in the 'pink' of condition. A sort of dark iodine color would hit it closer. He has been training in the open beneath a glaring sun, until every inch of his skin is as tanned as a piece of shoeleather. He's as healthy as a six figure bank account, and as strong as a lion.

The big crowd that watched him yesterday, which was made up of many dyed-in-the-wool wrestling fans, were highly pleased with him. In the crowd that watched the workout and the filming of the training camp routine were Mayor Dahlman, Sheriff Felix McShane, jr., Fred Wagner, official starter for the American Automobile association, and many other well-known personages.

Money at City Hall to Bet Hughes is Elected

A city hall man announces he has $1,000 to bet that Hughes will be elected this fall. He prefers to place this money in $100 bets. This is a bona fide proposition and prospective takers may make themselves known to the elevator conductors. This Hughes man does not want his name used in this connection for obvious reasons. He is a city official and does not wish to allow politics to interfere with his business. He does, however, feel that he would be neglecting his family if he failed to pick up some of the Wilson money said to be floating around.

Whist and Bowling Clubs to Hold "Basket Picnic" Sunday

The members of the Paramount Whist club and the Carter Lake Ladies' Bowling club will stage their annual "basket picnic" next Sunday. Their husbands are to be the guests. The start for the picnic grounds at near Louisville is to be made from the residence of H. B. Whitehouse, 4808 Douglas street, at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning, weather permitting. The picnicers will wear old clothes.

Stock Pens Being Constructed On Missouri River "Levee"

Receiving pens for stock shipped by steamboat from Decatur to Omaha are being constructed by the Omaha Commercial club, in co-operation with the South Side stock yard interests. These pens will facilitate the handling of stock coming to Omaha via the river route. The pens are being constructed near the stock chutes at the foot of Douglas street.

Warmer Weather in the State Sets Corn Popping

Railroad officials all report that today the weather is very much warmer in Nebraska and that crops are making wonderful growth. Tuesday night there were some scattered showers, but not enough rain in any locality to interfere with farm work. Railroad men assert that while corn is late, it has made rapid growth during the last few days and that with normal summer weather by the middle of July it will be in normal condition.

City Taxes Must Be Paid Before Saturday

Only two days more remain for the payment of city taxes before penalty time sets in. Taxes are due May 1, and are declared delinquent July 1. After that time the penalty is a 10 per cent increase.

Sues Telephone Company To Have Number in Book

COMES TO SAY GOOD-BYE TO GUARDSMEN

St. Louis Rotarian Speaks Before Local Club Upon His Idea of Mexico.

FRIENDS IN STATE TROOPS

Enroute to Lincoln to bid goodbye to several members of the Nebraska National Guard, with whom he served in the Philippines, before they are called to the border, Jesse Tompsett of St. Louis, formerly of Omaha, past president of the Rotary club in the fourth city and an international director, a guest at the local club's weekly luncheon at noon at the Henshaw rathskellar, remarked, with a touch of sadness in his voice, that he made the trip because he was confident he would never see some of them again, if they entered Mexico.

There are several of Mr. Tompsett's old friends numbered among the Nebraska guardsmen—soldiers with whom he shared quarters on many a campaign against the treacherous Moros. The Mexican situation, in Mr. Tompsett's estimation, could not be more serious. "Not to Fight a Country."

He told Omaha Rotarians that it was a different proposition than if the United States soldiers were going down to fight a country. "Those guardsmen, in case they are called to defend the country's honor against the Mexicans, are not going to fight a country; they're going to fight a swarm of bandits. If my old soldier comrades enter Mexico, I never expect to see many of them again—that's why I am making this trip up here to say goodbye before they leave."

Mr. Tompsett's presence at the luncheon was a welcome surprise to the Omaha Rotarians. His remarks were enthusiastically received by the local men. The other speaker at the meeting was J. J. Bruner, who talked on the subject, "Wholesale Jewelry." G. E. Banister acted as chairman. A new member, Frank C. Bestor, was introduced.
