WILSON TELLS OF PRESSURE FOR PEACE

President Says He Will Not Countenance War With Mexico Save as Last Resort.

PEOPLE APPEAL TO HIM

New York, July 1.—President Wilson made it plain in his speech at the New York Press club banquet tonight that he will not countenance a war with Mexico until there is no other alternative for settling the border troubles.

Again he declared that he was ready to sacrifice his own political fortunes in order to carry out his convictions as to what would be the just course to pursue in the situation.

The president's audience, composed of newspaper men, state and municipal political leaders and others prominent in public life, signified their endorsement of his position by repeated outbursts of applause.

They Cry "No, No."

When he asked if the glory of America would be enhanced by a war of conquest in Mexico, shouts of "no" came from all parts of the banquet hall. A similar response was made to his query whether it is America's duty to "carry self-defense to the point of dictation into the affairs of another people."

The president dwelt also on his efforts to serve the whole people, thousands of whom, he said, are appealing to him to maintain peace as long as possible.

"I have constantly to remind myself," he said, "that I am not the servant of those who wish to enhance the value of their Mexican investments, but that I am the servant of the rank and file of the people of the United States."

Colby Lauds Wilson.

Bainbridge Colby, who placed Theodore Roosevelt in nomination for the presidency at the progressive convention at Chicago, paid President Wilson high tribute, but did not declare unqualifiedly that he would support him in the coming campaign, as it was reported he would do.

President Wilson said he had received many letters from property owners in Mexico, but that he had been many others from persons whose names never would be known, saying to him:

"For God's sake don't start war with Mexico unless it is absolutely necessary."

What Engineer Said.

"I get a great many letters, my fellow citizens," the president said, "from important and influential men in this country, but I get a great many other letters. I get letters from unknown men, from humble men, from people whose names have never been heard and never will be recorded, and there is but one prayer in all of these letters: 'Mr. President, do not allow anybody to persuade you that the people of this country want war with anybody.'"

"I got off a train yesterday, and as I was bidding good-bye to the engineer, he said in an undertone, 'Mr. President, keep out of Mexico.' And if one man has said that to me, a thousand have said it to me, as I have moved about the country."

Confer Over Proposed Advance in Rates

Railroad men and Omaha shippers held a conference at the Commercial club rooms with regard to the proposed advance in freight rates from Omaha to points in Kansas west of Manhattan. The traffic bureau of the club represents the shippers in the case.

The increase proposed averages 16 per cent on the Union Pacific road. The traffic bureau has succeeded in getting the Interstate Commerce commission to suspend the rates, which would normally have gone into effect April 1. Deposition in the case is to be taken in the federal court room in Omaha July 10 by a special examiner of the Interstate Commerce commission.

NO GALLERY PLAY FOR GENERAL HAIG

British Commander-in-Chief in France Fighting Man on Job Both Day and Night.

NO TIME FOR LONG STORIES

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) British Headquarters, France, June 20.—No military leader is more averse to publicity or works more silently than Sir Douglas Haig, the British commander-in-chief in France. To those who are importunate for the offensive his answer is patience and yet again patience while the new munition factories begin to produce, and he continues his building. His generals say that he never tells them his plans; only what they are to do.

Probably not one man out of ten of the 1,000,000 or more under his command would recognize him if they saw him. Not given to reviews or any kind of display, this quiet and studious Scotsman was the choice of the progressive, practical, driving element of the army as the one fit by equipment, training and experience to succeed Sir John French. At 55 he is nine years younger than Sir John and ten years younger than Joffre or von Hindenburg. There is a story that he entered the army as the result of a boyish wager. He went through Oxford with distinction before he went to the military school at Sandhurst. His choice of arm was the cavalry, which has had so little to do so far in this war. But no sooner had he received his commission, later in life than most officers because of the time that he had spent at Oxford, than he set out with the thoroughness of the student to master every branch of his profession.

Struck by His Industry. "It was in Berlin in the 90s that I met a Captain Haig who was studying German and the German army," said an Englishman. "I was struck by his industry—not a brilliant man, perhaps, but a sound and well-balanced one. A little hesitant of speech, what he did say went to the heart of things."

He studied the French army, too, and the history of all campaigns with the systematic thoroughness that he applied to everything. It was the same with his pastimes as his profession. Whether he had talent for it or not he made himself a first-class golf player, though the form which he developed did not excite the envy of professionals.

At the British Army Staff college, where officers learn organization, Captain Haig was a marked man before he acted as chief of staff to General French in South Africa in the operations that made French's reputation. He was a soldier's soldier who had won solid professional esteem, though the public had hardly heard of this reserved, unadorned worker.

Of the men of command rank in the British army in August, 1914, the general and Sir William Robertson, another studious man who had risen from the ranks and is now chief of staff in London, were the two who were appraised by the generation of officers who had developed since South Africa as having prepared themselves for the direction of large bodies of troops on the scale of continental warfare. They were not the magnetic, dashing type, but organizers.

Going out in the command of the first army of the British expeditionary force, Sir Douglas had seventeen months' experience, Mons, Ypres and Loos, of the warfare of the western front—which all agree is the toughest school any soldier has ever known.

There was no doubt who commanded the first army. It was Haig. He was no figurehead for the work of an able chief of staff. London gossip did not bandy his name about; he was not a personality to the public, though he was to the army. When anyone asked at the front who was the best man to take Sir John's place the answer was almost invariably: "Haig." He had not captured the army's imagination, but his reason. The tribute was one to brains.

Much Is Expected.

The new army was arriving in great numbers from its English drill grounds when Haig took over command. His country expects him to make it an instrument which will execute a successful offensive on the western front, where the four months' effort of the Germans at Verdun, the French effort in Champagne and the British effort at Neuve Chapelle and Loos convince many military circles that the feat is impossible. His first operation, carried out without a hitch and unknown to the Germans, was the taking over of the trenches occupied in the Arras sector by General Petain's army, which was released for Verdun. This gave the British an intact front of about 100 miles, and was decided upon by the allied commanders as wiser than a premature British offensive in the mire and bog of the flat country of Flanders and northern France.

Date is Set for the One-Day Trade Trip

Friday of this week, July 7, has been selected as the day for conducting the one-day automobile trade trip from Omaha to David City and returning. This is the trip which was postponed some days ago on account of a heavy rain, which put the roads in bad condition. About fifteen or twenty automobiles are to take part in this trip. The crowd is to start from the Commercial club corner at Fourteenth and Farnam streets at 7 o'clock in the morning.

TAFT AND HUGHES HAVE CONFERENCE

Former President and Republican Nominee Discuss Campaign Plans.

WILLING TO TAKE STUMP

Bridgehampton, N. Y., July 1.—Charles E. Hughes discussed the coming political campaign for two hours today with William H. Taft. Over a luncheon at the republican presidential nominee's temporary summer home here, the former president and Mr. Hughes took up the chief issues of the day and went over the tentative campaign plans. Mrs. Hughes presided at the luncheon and participated in the discussion.

Apparently the time was too short for a full exchange of opinions, for after the conference was over and Mr. Taft stood waiting at the railroad station for his train, Mr. Hughes drew him aside for a final word. They walked out of carshot of the little group that had surrounded them and continued in confidential conversation emphasized by earnest gestures until the train pulled in.

Taft in Good Humor.

Mr. Taft appeared to be in excellent humor as he alighted from the automobile in which the nominee had accompanied him to the station. "I am for Judge Hughes," he said. "I want to see him elected, and shall do all I can to assist him." "Will you take the stump for him?" some one asked. "I shall obey orders," he replied. "Monday I shall go to Murray Bay, Canada, for three months. When I return I shall help all I can." "After Mr. Taft's train had left, Mr. Hughes dictated this statement: 'I have wanted for some time to meet Judge Taft and have an opportunity of going over matters with him. He was kind enough to come down here and we have had a very full talk and I enjoyed it very much.'

CARRANZA DEFI ALARMS BORDER

Military Officials Redouble Precautions to Guard the Boundary.

FURTHER CLASHES FEARED

El Paso, Tex., July 1.—General Carranza's memorandum, issued at Mexico City today, inflated again tonight the border war scare bubble which in the last twenty-four hours had shown signs of bursting. Military officials everywhere redoubled their vigilance and the fear grew that when the text of the memorandum reached the south side of the border more clashes might result.

in which the civilian population would suffer.

The arrival of detachments of the National Guard, expected here by tomorrow, was expected to bring a feeling of security.

The Guard will be spread out as soon as possible, in points where the border is not now well protected. The release of the cavalry troops taken by Carranza soldiers in the Carrizal encounter, will not interrupt the movement of National Guard troops to the border, Major General Leonard Wood, commanding the department of the east, was informed today by the War department.

Secretary Is Ordered.

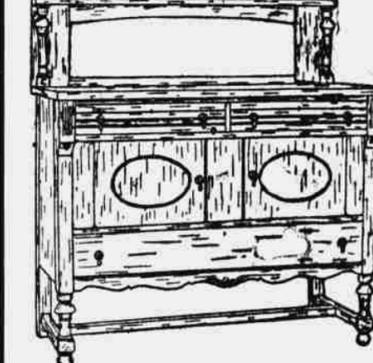

Washington, July 1.—Advices from San Antonio told of the arrival of the first train bearing troops of the Illinois National Guard. Information was also received that the first section of the Missouri guardsmen had left their camp for the border. Secretary Baker announced that all department army commanders had been ordered to keep troop movements secret.
