War is Reflected in Display of Fireworks For Sale for Fourth

Johnny's fear that warring powers might burn up the available supply of gunpowder and doom him to an absolutely noiseless Fourth is groundless.

Fireworks are plentiful, dealers say, and while the variety is perhaps not as large as in former years, the small boy will be able to make life hideous as long as his pocket holds out.

Yesterday was the first big day of sales for the fireworks dealers. Most of the purchases were being made by children ranging from 6 to 12 years old, and the girls were almost as numerous as the boys.

The novelty which seems meeting widest sale is a pastboard dreadnaught about twelve inches long, and which is equipped to hold eight firecrackers, all of which are exploded at once, with disastrous results to the ship.

One of the newer ideas is a model airship, the largest size offered being seventy-five inches long, and which is inflated in the same manner as the ordinary hot-air balloon. These cost $1 each, and not many are in stock.

The war is reflected in the nature of many of the fireworks and noise producers offered. A small cannon, modeled after the famous French seventy-five millimeter gun, will replace the cap pistol in the hearts of many youngsters.

The usual line of firecrackers, Roman candles, rockets, torpedoes, balloons, sparklers and other devices is offered at prices about the same as last year.

It is very difficult to obtain cannon crackers larger than the three and one-half-inch limit. Dealers say there is no longer much demand for the giant variety, prohibited by law. Blank cartridge pistols, dynamite caps and canes are also not prominent on the market, their use being prohibited by both state law and city ordinance.

Perhaps the widest development during the year is in the way of cap pistols. Several varieties of automatic and repeating pistols are offered, including one modeled along the lines of the familiar automatic pistol, and which fires caps as fast as the owner of the toy can pull the trigger.

BRITISH TAKE A STRIP

Campaign in Darfur Adds 160,000 Square Miles to the Domain of the Lion.

'BULL OF BULLS' LOSES OUT

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) Khartoum, Sudan, June 15.—The brilliant little campaign in Darfur which ended with the defeat by the British troops of Sultan Ali Dinar on May 22, will bring under British domain about 160,000 square miles of territory inhabited by a population estimated at between 2,000,000 and 4,000,000.

Descendants of the Sultan Mohammed have ruled in the country for approximately 400 years. Until 1874 Darfur was entirely independent, but then it was conquered by the notorious slave-dealer Zobeir Pasha, who carried on a savagely-cruel rule of terror over the natives under the nominal suzerainty of Egypt for ten years until he was ousted by the Mahdi. At that time Slatin Pasha, the Austrian-Egyptian, was the official representative of the Egyptian government.

When the Anglo-British forces later subdued the Mahdi and brought the Sudan back into Egyptian possession Sultan Ali Dinar, who had been confined for several years in one of the Mahdi's loathsome jails, was placed on the throne and he governed his people with all the savagery of an uncivilized eastern potentate, at the same time maintaining friendly relations with the Anglo-Egyptian authorities at Cairo.

Bull of Bulls.

The "Bull of Bulls," which is one of the titles of the sultan of Darfur, apparently thought the time had come when the world war broke out to display his strength, and he gathered a considerable army of tribesmen on the frontier of his territory with the intention, it was understood, of advancing on Egypt, which he had heard was weakly defended and at his mercy.

This assemblage of warriors soon came to the notice of the Anglo-Egyptian staff, and a mobile column was immediately organized to meet any advance. The British officer in command eventually came to the conclusion, when he discovered how well-armed the native forces were, that it would be advisable to strike the first blow. The British column thereupon took the offensive with the result that the natives were put to flight after a severe engagement in which they lost thousands of killed and wounded. A fighting aeroplane took part in the engagement and afterwards scattered the fugitives fleeing with their sultan to the hills.

Considerable discussion is proceeding here as to the future government of Darfur, in which subject the French also are interested, as the territory adjoins their Sudanese possessions. The prevalent idea is that a British resident will be appointed and that a member of the former ruling family may be placed on the throne as nominal ruler.

Most of the inhabitants of Darfur are of mixed Arab and negro race, but there are numerous pure Arabs and pure negroes and a liberal infusion of tribesmen from other parts of Africa. Many of the people are quite peaceful camel and cattle owners and there is considerable commercial intercourse between them and the immediately adjacent countries.

Stolen Trousers Found Before Owner Knew They Were Gone When Officer Herbolich was on his way to the police station to report for duty, a little before midnight last night, he spied a man sleeping on the sidewalk before a picture show near Thirteenth and William streets. He noticed that the man wore a pair of trousers with a tag on them, and on the tag was the name of John Orth.

Herbolich on investigation found that a suit Orth had just brought home from the pressing room was gone. He identified the trousers, but no trace of the coat was to be found.

The prisoner gave his name as John Glavin, 804 South Fourteenth street.

FAREWELL SAID TO WALTER MAYER

Influential Citizen of Manila Guest at Banquet to Retiring Secretary.

ON WAY TO PHILIPPINES

Theodore Yangco, wealthy and influential citizen of the Philippines, was a guest of honor at a farewell dinner tendered to Walter Mayer, retiring business secretary of the Omaha Young Men's Christian association, who will accompany Mr. Yangco on his return home to take up his duties as general secretary of the three Manila branches of the association. About 100 men braved the stifling heat to greet Mr. Yangco and to say goodbye to Mr. Mayer.

Mr. Yangco said: "Before this I have always taken my vacations in Europe. This time I intended to stay in the United States for one month, and I have stayed six. We always had an idea of the people of America as a nation of money chasers, but I have found them very interesting. It is the people of America that symbolize its greatness, not its skyscrapers and factories."

He told of the commencement of the Young Men's Christian association work among the natives in Manila. As one of the leading men of the islands he was approached to help raise a fund of $40,000 in two months to start the work. He doubted whether it could be done in less than two years, but to his surprise the people were anxious to see the work done and $50,000 was raised in four days. One of the contributors was the notorious rebel chief, Aguinaldo, who gave a check for $25 from a small income.

W. A. Tener, former general secretary at Manila, who did much of the organization work, also spoke, saying that the association was fortunate in getting a man so well equipped as Mr. Mayer to take over the work.

ALLIES TRIUMPH ON THREE FRONTS

Successes Chronicled for Entente in France, in Italy and Galicia.

THIAUMONT WORK IS TAKEN

London, July 1.—Successes for the entente allies on the three most important European fronts, in France, in the Italian theater and in East Galicia, are chronicled in the latest official communications.

The French and British continue their raids against the Germans in France, the French having captured the Thiaumont works northeast of Verdun and the British having kept up their bombardments of German trenches and their incursions into German positions by raiding parties. The Russians have taken Kolomea.

an important railway junction leading to Lemberg, in Galicia, and the Italians continue to advance against the Austrians in the Trentino region.

Struggle Is Severe.

The struggle for the possession of the Thiaumont work, taken by the German crown prince's forces from the French a week ago, was most severe, the position changing hands several times.

Violent bombardments have marked the fighting on the remainder of the front around Verdun, particularly on the sector of Hill 304.

The British are keeping up their tactics of destroying by artillery fire German first and second line trenches from Ypres to the Somme. Unofficially it is reported that the British are expending more than a million shells a day in this work.

In addition to the capture of Kolomea, the Russians also have taken the town of Obertine, northeast of Kolomea, and several other villages north and south of that point.

On the front in Russia, from the Galician border to the region of Riga, there have been battles at various points, but with no decisive results.
