(Constinued from Page 1.) Stecher dropped to his knees on the mat and gave Lewis the chance to get behind. Outside of these gifts of Stecher, neither wrestler got behind, for the first four hours of tusseling. They head hauled and arm pulled, but to no avail. Lewis was pust strong length, so that the Dodge county lad was not able to twist behind or to grab Lewis 'legs for an advantage. The crowd was good natured all as though it might turn to the ad-vantage of either wrestler. The mul-titude, and there wrestler. Tonight Mr. Hughes will attend a Fourth of July celebration here.

Hughes will attend a Fourth of July celebration here. Enthusiasts marched up the road to the nominee's home about 1 o'clock this morning and fired the village can-non, a weapon that has had no active service since the revolutionary war. The roar awakened the village, but the nominee, fatigued by a long day's work, apparently slept through it.

 New Orleons, La., July 4.—In a telegram sent today to the third con-gressional committee of the progres-sive party in Louisiana, John M. Par-ker, the progressive vice presidential nominee, urged the progressives to continue the fight against the demo-crats and to stand by their convic-tions "unterrified by desertion and

Crats and to stand by their convictions "unterrified by descriton and featers of any opposition."
 "We should demand immediate the should strictly adhere to our principles and ask the support and co-operation of all parties working for national good and human welfare. We are not seeking to get into the bandwagon. Our principles are either right or wrong, and as long as we firmly believe we are right, let us continue the fight."
 Asked if this telegram indicated he would not support either the republican on the progrestives keeping a ticket in the field. Mr. Parker said "he presumed it did."

Spokane, Wash., July 4.—Officials of four principal railway employes' brotherhoods made public today reso-lutions adopted at a mass meeting last night, which declared that the managers of the railroads of the United States had misrepresented the men before the public at recent con-ferences at New York City. Speak-ers at the meeting declared that their chief demand was an eight-hour day and not an increase of wages. Keso-lutions were also adopted condemn-ing newspapers, which the men claim have misrepresented them in the con-troversy. The employes declared their patriotism to the United States, and pledged the organizations of workers to man all trains that may be necessary in the event of war. The meeting was attended by mem-bers of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Order of Railway Conduct-ors, Brotherhood of Locomotive En-gineers, Brotherbood of Firemen and Enginemen and unorganized switch-men.
