The Secret of the Submarine

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT. Lieutenant Jarvis Hope is detailed by the United States naval board to investigate and report his findings on the invention of the submarine to a state of perfection.

"I'll take the Jap!" Hope shouted to Fitzmaurice. "He's got the books I'm after. You attend to the other fellow."

The chase which followed led across a country broken by unexpected outcroppings of rocks, by stretches of loose stones, by enormous crags and boulders; it led across furze-covered hillsides and other hillsides carpeted with wild wiregrass.

Having filled their pockets with the small store of food which Fitzmaurice had remaining, they were leaving the shack when Morissey hailed them. He explained that he had followed the line of the cliffs without seeing anyone.

"That's Cleo's voice," said Hope in surprise, "but who on earth can she be talking to?"

"You'll never get the books," snarled the Japanese, and with the words he flung them into the abyss.

BANKS OF OMAHA

ISSUE STATEMENTS

Deposits Show Large Increase Over Year Ago, But Loss Since the Last Call

While the banks of Greater Omaha show a large increase in deposits over a year ago, according to statements issued today for the close of business June 30, in response to the call of the comptroller of currency, they show some loss in deposits since the last call, nearly two months ago.

This is only a normal loss for the time of year. This draming of deposits always occurs about this time of year, just before the new crop begins to move and to bring money back into the banks.

The deposits are over $15,000,000 ahead of a year ago, while the loans show nearly a $12,000,000 gain.

At the same time the deposits are over $1,500,000 less than they were two months ago, and the loans amounting more than $2,000,000 greater.

The comparative statements are as follows: DEPOSITS. June 30, 1916, June 30, 1915.

First National, $13,800,000, $13,800,000. Omaha National, $12,100,000, $12,100,000.

Omaha National, $12,100,000, $12,100,000. First National, $13,800,000, $13,800,000.
