Kirkpatrick's arrest resulted from a letter which he wrote to County Assessor E. J. Smalley, in which he referred to the death of Pettis in a manner which was considered ground for suspicion that he might have been connected with the farmer's death. There had been ill feeling between Pettis and Kirkpatrick because of the former's alleged misuse of money which the latter had loaned him for use in purchasing seed.

WATERLOO CITIZENS OBJECT TO BRIDGE

Declare Union Pacific Structure So Short That It Causes Regular Floods.

CALL FOR HARVEST HANDS

(From a Staff Correspondent.) Lincoln, July 10.—(Special.)—Complain has been made to the State Railway commission by Otto Wilson and sixteen residents of the community around Waterloo, protesting against the short length of the Union Pacific railroad bridge across the Elkhorn river at Waterloo. They want the bridge made longer, declaring that it stops the water from flowing freely and that in instances of heavy rains the grade holds the water back and it overflows the country, damaging the land. The bridge embankment is twenty-four feet high at the bridge and it is shown that since 1881 the town has been under water several times. An engineer of the commission looked into the matter some time ago and reported that the bridge was 802 feet long, while the grade extends 4,000 feet. The old piling which held the former bridge still remains and has a tendency to catch driftwood and other stuff, causing back-water, which causes some of the trouble. The commission will make an investigation of the matter. All Want Harvest Hands. State Labor Commissioner Coffey received a communication from a man in Hitchcock county this morning saying that the harvest was on and that twenty men were needed there right away. They will pay $3 a day. Fishing With Pitchforks. According to State Engineer Johnson, whom one in from the west last night the Platte river is very low, hardly any water being seen at Kearney and Grand Island, the channels being less than a foot deep. People are spearing fish with pitchforks and other utensils, the fish being unable to get away where the water has become too low for them to swim. Game Warden Ruttenback and Fish Commissioner O'Brien were discussing the matter this morning and came to the conclusion that it would be impossible to change conditions, as it was a matter of the people getting the fish or the fish getting the people. Where the smaller fish have been landlocked an attempt may be made to save them and put them in lakes nearby. Iowans for Hughes. Floyd Hamilton of Marcus, Ia., a cousin of Attorney General Reed, was visiting the latter today. He is on his way to California and may spend some time on the coast. His father runs the Marcus News and is one of the strong Hughes men of Iowa. The baby antelope captured by George Baker of Sidney, after a couple of wolves had run it down, was received yesterday by the state game warden and has been placed in the enclosure at Antelope park. It is a little fellow, weighing about fifteen pounds, and has to be fed with a bottle. Saunders County Pays. Saunders county made a remittance to the state auditor on its old tax account this morning amounting to $3,000. Saunders county was one of the two counties which owed the state something over $10,000, but has it all paid in now but $355.49. Cross Withdraws Name. H. Gordon Cross, editor of the St. Edward Sun, candidate on the progressive ticket for presidential elector, has notified Secretary of State Pool that he desires his name taken off the ballot. CORRICK THINKS POLITICS IN MOVE

Progressive National Committeeman Has This View of Calling the Guard.

SEES MOOSERS FOR HUGHES

(From a Staff Correspondent.) Lincoln, July 10.—(Special.)—The calling out of the National Guard for border patrol is a political move on the part of the president, according to Frank P. Corrick, national committeeman from Nebraska of the progressive party, and a great deal depends upon how the campaign on the border is conducted, whether the president is successful in his quest of another term. Corrick has just returned to Lincoln after several weeks stay in the east where he hobnobbed with Theodore Roosevelt, George W. Perkins and others over the attitude of the progressives in the coming campaign. Says Corrick: "The progressives of Nebraska generally speaking will be for Mr. Hughes for president. I do not think very many of the party will go to President Wilson, I do not desire to say much about what Nebraska progressives would do until after the state committee meeting to be held, but I feel quite sure that the committee will endorse Sutton as well as Hughes, but as to the rest of the ticket it will be up to the committee. No Reason for Electors. "There is no reason for the progressives to have a set of electors on the ballot this fall. I believe the committee should endorse the republican electors, although it would insure greater strength if the progressives were given about two of the electors. "As far as I am concerned, I am satisfied with the endorsement of Mr. Hughes by the progressive committee. I felt that unless Colonel Roosevelt accepted the progressive nomination for the presidency, it would be useless to nominate any other man. I do not think any other man could poll enough votes in Nebraska to make a good showing, and as I believed the country needed a good man at the head more than ever before, I felt that we were doing the patriotic thing in endorsing Mr. Hughes. Wilson in Tight Hole. "Much depends upon how President Wilson conducts affairs during the present trouble with Mexico," continued Corrick. "I find that a large number of people believe it all a political move on the part of the democrats to save themselves from defeat. At present I feel that there is much in doubt as to the outcome of the election. If the president pulls the wires rightly he may come out of it in good shape, but if he makes a failure, he will lose the election. Mrs. Anna Blohm. Columbus, Neb., July 10.—(Special Telegram.)—Mrs. Anna Blohm, aged 72, died at the home of her son, John Blohm, five miles northwest of Columbus, this morning at 10 o'clock. NEBRASKANS GIVE REASONS FOR VOTE

(Continued From Page One.) publicans to cross over and he offered the suggestion as to the verbridge of the amendment which after full conference was agreed to. Up to that time there was only one thing for the republicans to do and that was to offer amendments with a view of perfecting the measure, failing in which they would ally with the republicans, would be compelled to vote for the bill. Mr. Fordney offered his amendment today as agreed upon. Mr. Kitchin, chairman of the committee, made a point of order against the amendment, which was sustained by the chair. Minority Leader Mann appealed from the decision of the chair, whereupon Mr. Fitzgerald moved to lay the appeal on the table, and on a ye and nay vote of 197 to 181 the chair was sustained. Nebraska republicans, Messrs. Sloan, Kinkaid and Reavis, voted against laying the appeal on the table. This is equally true of the republicans of Iowa, South Dakota and Wyoming. There was a united republican party in favor of the Ford amendment. On the final passage of the bill, Messrs. Sloan, Reavis and Kinkaid voted in its favor for the reasons given above. LIFE SPENT IN THE WEST

Funeral services for Marietta Conger Stanton, widow of the late General Thaddeus H. Stanton, paymaster general of the United States army, who died in Washington last Friday, were held Saturday. There was a simple, impressive service at the Balfour apartments, Sixteenth and U streets, where she had made her home for a number of years, with her daughter, Mrs. Flora Stanton Kalk, the Washington Post relates. The service was read by Rev. Mr. Pierce, rector of All souls' church, following which the family and their intimate friends repaired to Arlington National cemetery, where the body was laid at rest beside that of her husband, General Stanton. The pallbearers were: General Frank McIntyre, Colonel Chauncey Baker, Colonel Isaac Littell, Major Herbert Lord, Colonel William Martin and Colonel Charles Walcutt, all officers of the army stationed in Washington and old friends of the family. Born in Ohio. Mrs. Stanton was born March 31, 1844, at Mansfield, O. She was married July 23, 1862, at Washington, Ia., to Thaddeus H. C., when her husband was made head of the pay corps and lived there till he retired in January, 1899. After General Stanton retired, the family moved to Omaha, where the general had been stationed many years. He died in Omaha in January, 1908. A few years after her husband's death, Mrs. Stanton returned to Washington, where she had since made her home. With her at the time of her death were her three daughters, Mrs. Maude Stanton Western and Mrs. Flora Stanton Kalk, both of Washington, and Mrs. T. F. Kennedy of Omaha, and her grandson, Stanton F.
