SERVICE, or the spirit that begets it, knows no falling by the wayside because, perchance, the torrid rays of the sun beat down upon us. So it is that here and there, a woman's club continues to meet throughout the summer or else pursues its work more informally through committees.

Mothers' clubs especially seem loath to discontinue their sessions, and, for the most part, have transferred them to neighboring parks, where, under the cool shade of the trees and restful surroundings, with the children enjoying themselves in the park playgrounds, benignant schemes are hatched. Such a meeting is the one which the Miller Park Mothers' club will hold Wednesday afternoon at Miller Park pavilion. The usual meeting place is the neighborhood school house. Following the business meeting, there will be a social hour when the president, Mrs. T. P. Davis and Mrs. Florence McCurdy will be the hostesses.

Other picnic affairs arranged for the week is the annual outing and dinner-dance of Vesta chapter, No. 6, Order of the Eastern Star, which will be given Wednesday at Carter Lake club, and the first of a series of diner-dances which will be given Friday evening at Seymour Lake Country club by the Sojourners' club of the White Shrine.

The Business Women's council knows no cessation, either, during the days when the mercury flirts with the 100-degree mark. On Tuesday of this week the Rev. Ray of the Second Presbyterian church of Council Bluffs will conduct the prayer meeting, which is held in conjunction with the weekly luncheon for business girls, at the court house, between the hours of 11 and 2 o'clock. Women of the Executive committee will serve the luncheon.

Unceasing, too, in their efforts, are members of the Society of American Widows, whose president, Mrs. Bessie C. Turpin, has just announced the latest welfare activity for the husbandless. This is the manufacture, demonstrating and marketing of the products of a waterproof fabric company. While the business venture is not financed by the widows, it practically amounts to a private undertaking for them, as a contract was drawn up with the manager of the concern which provides that only widows will be employed by him.

To create an outlet for unskilled workers is indeed a great problem, and this latest venture seems a fortunate opening, as plain sewing, which any woman can manage, is about all that is required in the manufacture of these articles.

In the meantime, at their Tuesday afternoon meetings and sometimes at the Thursday evening meetings, which are now being held at the widows' headquarters in the Crouse building, the women are spending their time sewing for the bazaar and entertainment they are contemplating for September.

A monthly board meeting of the Visiting Nurse association is scheduled for Wednesday morning at the rooms in the city hall. Miss Bess Randall, the superintendent, gives her reports and the summer activities, especially in connection with The Bee's free milk and ice fund, will be discussed.

Club women all over the country will be interested in the following newspaper excerpt with regard to the "Chief Clublady of the Land":

"Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles of Los Angeles, Cal., the new president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, received the highest honor ever accorded a southern California club woman, when the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles gave a public reception for her on her return from New York, June 29. The civic organization also joined in a reception at the depot on Mrs. Cowles' arrival in Los Angeles. Few club women are aware of the great part Mrs. Cowles has been taking in the work of the federation for many years. When the biennial meeting was held in Cincinnati and when Mrs. Philip N. Moore, the then president, met with an accident and broke her ankle, Mrs. Cowles assumed the leadership at several of the meetings.

Her record as a worker in the federation shows that in 1902, when the general federation biennial met in Los Angeles, Mrs. Cowles was president of the board. She was chairman of the reception committee when the general federation met in St. Louis in 1904, and was there made a director in 1906 was elected treasurer and was first vice president from 1903 to 1912; a member of the executive committee from 1912 to 1913; chairman of finance committee from 1908 to 1912; chairman of peace committee from 1912 to 1916; chairman of biennial committee in charge of the San Francisco biennial in 1912, when she could, it is generally recognized, have been president; strong suffragist, though she worked against having suffrage a federation issue at a time when it would have meant much for California women, but would have been against the sentiment of a large number of women who since have joined the ranks. Mrs. Cowles takes time for many a weekend jaunt to the mountains north of Altadena, where she and Dr. Cowles, well-known physician for twenty years and more in Los Angeles, have a delightful rustic lodge."

Nebraska women will no doubt be well represented at a meeting fraught with much interest to women in suffrage states, though our own women will be only spectators, not partakers in the sessions of the meeting.

This is the National Council of Women Voters which will hold its national convention in Cheyenne, Wyo., July 26 to 29, in conjunction with the Frontier days celebration, when the cowboys of the plains will have their twentieth annual celebration. Women voters of the twelve suffrage states and Alaska, will attend.

SOOCIETY is calm again today after the thrill of the races yesterday. The women in the boxes and the grandstand looked their prettiest in their cool but rainbow-hued sports suits, which lent a vivid touch of color to the drab of the track. They were the first to strain forward and join in the cheer when a bold favorite shot into the lead, or to hold their breath when danger seemed to threaten. It was alive, active and intensely interesting to them all, if attitude and actions are any indication of interest.

Let us now chronicle the wedding that was and the wedding that is to be, of two beautiful Omaha girls. One was a home wedding, the other will be a church wedding, and both were blessed with the tender wishes of devoted friends.

The marriage of Miss Louise Northrup to Mr. Samuel Williams Reynolds took place last evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Jay Northrup. The ceremony was performed very quietly with only intimate friends and relatives present. Mrs. Northrup gave her daughter away. The bride's only attendants were the maid of honor, Miss Grace McBride, and the little flower girl, Miss Charlotte Troxell, her niece. The groom was accompanied by his father, Mr. J. B. Reynolds.

Four sorority sisters of Kappa Alpha Theta stretched ribbons to the place of the ceremony. They were the Misses Louise Bedwell, Lois Howard, Marguerite Marshall and Irma Jones. Members of the old Rolye society of which Miss Northrup was a member during her high school days, assisted through the rooms. The Rev. G. A. Hulbert of St. Mary's Avenue Congregational church performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. T. J. Mackay.

The bride's gown was of white net with inserts of lace, and delightfully cool and summery, and the attendants were gowned in pink.

An informal reception for the guests was held after the service. The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Troxell and family of Bancroft.

The wedding of Miss Helen Epeneter to Mr. Albert Busch will take place tomorrow evening. Last night at the Country club Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Busch entertained in honor of the young people and the wedding party at the regular dinner-dance.

The bride's only attendant will be Miss Marjorie Howland, maid of honor, and Mr. Leon Callahan will be best man. Miss Epeneter and Mr. Busch will be married at All Saints' church. Miss Alice Duval will sing at the ceremony. Four ushers have been chosen from among the friends of the young people, Mr. Frank Mead, Mr. Lloyd Smith, Mr. Clarence Sibbersen and Mr. Edwin Busch, a brother of the groom-to-be. The service will be followed by a supper at the Fontenelle for the bridal party, given by the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Epeneter, at which twenty-four guests will be present.

The biggest party for the younger set yet scheduled is the dinner-dance for next Saturday night at the Country club which Dr. and Mrs. B. B. Davis are giving for their son Herbert's guest. Mr. Wallace Shepherd is bringing home from Cornell with him a classmate and Phi Gamma fraternity brother, Mr. George Post, who will be the house guest of Mr. Herbert Davis. The two are making the trip in Mr. Post's runabout. Long motor trips are such simple things these days that it seems impossible that people should have found the same journey so tiresome in our gray-haired grandmother's days.

My grandmother came across country before the railroads did, as many other staunch old pioneers came. They cooked in picnic fashion and slept in their big prairie schooner, my young grandparent. It sounds romantic. Sundays they stopped at a farm house or lodging house along the road and when they and their team started out fresh on Monday morning they soon outdistanced the weary stragglers who had plodded along the highway all the day before. What bride of today who leaves on the midnight train for the eastern coast can have half so exciting an experience as did the brides who crossed the continent in the lumbering prairie schooners, to lose themselves and grow up with a vast new continent?

Why doesn't society live up to its reputation for doing that which is novel and bizarre? Forget your worries some day and start out to explore. Go south and seek passage over the Big Muddy in a fisherman's boat, explore abandoned quarries, come upon pretty parks with mysterious hillside caves, picnic in Mormon hollow, ferry across the river, lose yourself in No Man's land, discover an unknown lake where you may boat, fish or swim unseen—oh discover! When social affairs become pressing rest yourself with your best friend by going off into the unknown. Only a few hours from you there is field for boundless romance. The spirit which made our ancestors hardy and noble, may be yours in a milder, but just as refreshing fashion.
