Canada Missionary And Wife Stabbed to Death by Japanese

Tokio, July 17.-Rev. W. A. F. Campbell and his wife, Canadian missionaries, were stabbed to death by a burglar early this morning in their summer cottage at Karuzawa. The weapon used was a Japanese short sword. Karuzawa, which is an American missionary summer center, has been greatly excited by the murder.
At 2:30 o'clock this morning, according to the police accounts, a Japanese, dressed in foreign garb, entered a second story window of the cottage, and after awakening the missionaries, demanded money. This being refused, the intruder plunged a short sword into Mr. Campbell's breast, mortally wounding him. Mrs. Campbell struggled heroically with the assailant and was stabbed repeatedly, succumbing to her wounds a few hours later.
At the point of his sword, the burglar, the police say, forced the Japanese maid to disclose the cash box and then made his escape with the $10.50 which it contained. Campbell recently volunteered for service with a Canadian contingent in the European war and was about to return home.

"Sixty miles of difficult country were traversed, prisoners were taken and live stock secured. Despite opposition and considerable sniping, no casualties were sustained by either of the columns."

MOTOR RACERS WILL NOT TALK OF DEATH

Drivers Do Not Like to Discuss Tragic Fate of Mechanician on Speedway.
RATHER SHUT OUT SIGHT
How do the other speed kings of the motor race track take it when they hear of the tragic finish of one of their number?
It is a question often asked.
Yesterday afternoon at the Fontenelle hotel a group of the racers were gathered, talking over the events of Saturday.
"Too bad about Columbo, eh, Rick?" some one asked Rickenbacher.
Rick clenched his teeth. "He was a great boy. He'll be sadly missed." That's all Rick would say.
Resta simply shrugged his shoulders and sighed.
De Palma made as if to say something and then he choked it back, and like his compatriot, sighed and shrugged his shoulders.
Go to See Body.
"Where is the body?" was the answer of Billy Muller. When he was told, he motioned to his mechanic and together they walked to the undertaking shop.
"Daddy Pete" Henderson is old in race track experience, but young in years.
"My God, it's awful," he whispered, his baby eyes framed soulfully in an infantile face.
This infantile bravo whose performance yesterday was one of the hair-raising of the holiday, is young yet, or he'd be acting as do the others when death reaches out and clutches one of their number.
They simply won't talk about death, will these men. They all know that some day the same chill hand will fall upon their shoulder, if they play the game long enough. They'd rather close their eyes and shut out the sight.
Several days before the race, the writer suggested a sketch for an advertisement, wherein the drivers were to be shown racing towards a winged goddess who lured them onward with laurels of fame and fortune. Behind was to be a flying death figure, with hands outstretched, hovering over the speeders.
Would Drive Them Out of Game.
Billy Barnes, traveling representative for the American Automobile association, who was in charge of the big event held up his hands in horror. "Don't do that! You'll have every driver in the list quitting us before Saturday!"
Then he told of his experience with the temperament of the men who go smiling upon the track ready to meet their doom if it should come.
"You can discuss danger all you please with them," said Barnes. "They'll tell you of hair-breadth escapes and thrilling rides, and they'll laugh in the telling, but death—that's something they'll never talk about."

The fire in the forest around the Chateau apparently is under control, although it is still burning on the slopes of the Parnes mountains, which are covered with oaks and pines.
Paris, July 16.-Thirty-two persons lost their lives in the fire at Tatoi, forest which destroyed the Chateau of King Constantine of Greece and the crown prince, says a Havas dispatch from Athens. Twenty-eight of the victims were members of the royal guards.
The police are convinced the fire started by accident.

WEALTHY OMAHAN DIES UNDER AUTO

Charles C. Kendall, Brother-in-Law of Postmaster Wharton, Killed in Iowa.
MACHINE TURNS TURTLE

Clevius C. Kendall, aged 70, retired Omaha capitalist and brother-in-law of Postmaster J. C. Wharton, was killed Sunday afternoon near Victor, Ia., when his big automobile in which he was touring to South Haven, Mich., turned turtle, pinning him beneath. He was making the trip alone.
Information received by relatives here last night was that as he neared Victor, a farmer driving a team of horses suddenly crossed the road. Mr. Kendall turned out, narrowly missing the rig only to find himself facing another auto which was approaching at a rapid rate. He turned his car into the ditch to avoid a collision, and when he did so, it turned over throwing him out and pinning him beneath the wreckage.
Dies Almost Immediately.
All of the ribs on the left side of the body were broken and he died within half an hour.
Mr. Kendall lived in a lodging house at 524 North Seventeenth street, alone. His father built the place forty years ago, and he stayed there for sentimental reasons, in spite of the fact that he was wealthy. He was a widower and is survived by one daughter, Miss Pearl Kendall, of Chicago. Mrs. John Wharton, wife of the postmaster, is his sister. He came here from North Bend, Neb., where he was in the grain business, thirty years ago, and engaged in a similar occupation. Property which he purchased at that time increased in value so much that a dozen years ago he found himself independently wealthy and he quit working.
Wintered in California.
He spent his winters in California, shipping his big automobile there, and on returning, after spending a few months here, invariably drove to South Haven, Mich., where he spent the summer.
The body will arrive here late tonight. Funeral arrangements will be made when Miss Pearl Kendall has been located. Postmaster Wharton has telegraphed to Chicago and Portland, Ore., to find her.
Colonel L. A. Welsh of the weather bureau took a ride in Mr. Kendall's big roadster last Friday. At that time Mr. Kendall invited him to go on the trip to Chicago, but Mr. Welsh had to decline the invitation.

Montevideo, July 17.-Rioting in which the stadium was burned and in which the police were forced to drive the spectators from the ground broke up yesterday foot ball game between the Uruguayans and Argentines, that was to have decided the championship of South America. The season's play between teams representing Uruguay, Argentina, Chile and Brazil, had brought the final down to the two former teams.
Tickets for the game beyond the capacity of the field had been sold and thousands of persons broke through the gates, invaded the seats and crowded onto the field lines.
When the game started, the Uruguayans carried the ball down the field and made an attempt for a goal. The try failed and the spectators, thereupon invaded the field, making further play impossible.
The police at first were unable to cope with the mob, which set fire to the stadium on three sides, but finally charged the rioters and drove them from the grounds. Several persons were injured.
