

JOSIES HUMBLED IN SNAPPY GAME

Prince Gaskell Holds Drummers Helpless While Rourkes Get to Williams.

FORSYTHE STARTS RALLY

Held up by a vision of hope, the Josies were breezing along in nifty style yesterday afternoon at Rourke park. Honolulu John Williams was humming a low-toned Hawaiian lullaby as he whizzed the pills over the J. Williams, p plate. Then Cyrus Forsythe, who has plate. Then Cyrus Forsythe, who has no ear for music, became disturbed at Mr. Williams' bush league humming and took his spite out on the gent from Honolulu by sinking a double into center field. A few moments later the Rourkes had won the ball game, 4 to 1.

The combat yesterday was one of the classiest staged in the local bailiwick this year. It was run off in the snappy time of one hour and thirty minutes and the handful of bugs who turned out to see our heroes departed highly contented because they had seen a good ball game and would be home in time for supper.

Prince Gaskell was on the hurling mound for the de luxe Rourklets. The prince was in swell form yesterday and he easily subdued the Drummer sluggers who tried to disturb his equilibrium. He allowed only five hits and would have earned a shutout except for an error by Kewpie Kilduff.

For six innings it was 1 and 1, with neither side exhibiting any symptoms of awatting. The Rourkes had counted one in the second on hits by Kilduff and Burg and an error by Jourdan and the enemy had annexed a marker in the second on Kewpie's miscue, a sacrifice and Kirkham's single.

Win in Seventh.

It was at the start of the seventh that Forsythe entered his protest against Mr. Williams' warbling. He opened the stanza with the two-base knock against the center field boards. Kewpie Kilduff laid down a sacrifice bunt and when Honolulu tried to nip Forsythe at third both Cyrus and Kewpie were safe. Joe Burg delivered his second pinch blow of the matinee by cracking to left a single which counted the Tango Kid. Gaskell neatly sacrificed. Williams then deliberately passed Earl Smith, because Earl is a bad man in the pinch and because he wanted to fill the bases to as to make a double play possible. Marty Krug hit a grounder to Otto Williams. Smith was forced at second all right, but Keating got too anxious in at-Forsythe entered his forced the stanza with the two-base ck against the center field boards, which is a many standard with the two-base ck against the center field boards, which is a many standard with the two-base ck against the center field boards, which is a many standard with the two-base ck against the center field boards, which is a many standard with the two-base ck against the center field boards, which is a many standard with the two-base change of the matter of the center field boards, which is a second pinch blow of the matines of the passed of the pass

RAIN DELAYS THE GAME

Wayne, Neb., July 19 .-- (Special Telegram.)-By 2 o'clock this afternoon the courts were in tip-top shape and all the third round matches were completed in the state tennis tourney. By evening the doubles and many of the consolation singles were well under way. The speedist game of the day was the Partrdige-Oldham match. Both players used smashing tactics, standing close to the net and driving the balls straight from the shoulder. But the professor from Fermany.

white heat and enthusiastic crowds throng the grounds all day and eve-ning. The men enjoyed an elaborate banquet last evening. The clever banquet last evening. The clever after dinner speaches brought forth a lively play of wit. The results of the third round are as follows:
