STUDENTS LOOK AHEAD TO SCHOOL

Parents' Duty to Prepare Them With Wise Counsel for Their College Life.

NEED OF RIGHT SCHOOL

The hand on the clock of the year has moved close to that point, where the hour will strike for the opening of the schools and colleges and universities throughout the land.

It is a portentous time. And upon the choices that are made by parents and children at this time very much depends.

A wise choice backed by good judgment, thorough analysis of the characteristics and tastes and needs of the young man or young woman will bear its good fruits through a successful and satisfactory year.

Up to this time, in the first place, the years of life have been preparatory, as it were, and John and Julius and Mary and Mabel seem to be little more than the children they were when they first started to school.

But now comes a great change, the most portentous step that has yet been taken in the life of your budding man and woman. They are going away from home.

They are going, moreover, to a school where very likely they will see many of their unfamiliar faces. They are going to be thrown into an institution filled with people they have never seen before.

It is a situation that calls for the best that is in the young man and woman. Homesickness is pretty sure to come. How will they endure it? Bravely and sensitively and hopefully, knowing and realizing that the strong character of the best man or woman is developed? Or weakly and waveringly?

Duty of Parents. Parents can do much to guarantee the brave endurance of the first few unpleasant weeks at the college or university.
