MAN TO CLOTHE HERSELF CHEAPLY

Economical Person Has Figured It Down to $28.75 Per Year.

BUT NO FIFTY DOLLAR HATS

By MELLIFICIA—July 26.
My dear madame, what could you buy for $28.75? If you are a devotee of the soda fountain you might spend $28.75 in buying 144 cool raspberry limeades during the hot summer months and 144 cups of hot chocolate in the cold winter. If you are a housewife you might figure that $28.75 will buy 575 loaves of bread. If you are a peanut and popcorn eater you might purchase 287 sacks of popcorn and 288 sacks of peanuts from the old popcorn man on the corner with that amount of money. On some crisp fall evening you could buy with that sum enough roast chestnuts to keep the chestnut man busy to close him out, figuring the chestnuts at six for a dime. Such hundreds of dainties for a year round could be yours for $28.75, that I shudder to think of. The latest suggestion which a woman has made for spending that neat little sum.

This terribly practical woman has actually recommended that the amount be used for the benefit of mildy's wardrobe. Do you suppose she thought to invest it for one little hat or one second best coat? Oh, no. Her proposal was this: Clothe yourself on $28.75 a year. Imagine it, my friend of the fifty-dollar hats! This is the statement which she made to the woman the following outfit should suffice: Two pairs of shoes, three home made aprons, one summer hat, one winter hat, one summer coat, one winter coat, two home made wash dresses, two home made house dresses, one woolen skirt, two wash waists, six pairs of stockings, one pair of cotton gloves, one pair of woolen gloves, three summer union suits, two winter union suits, two corset covers, two flannellette peccoticoats, two night dresses and one pair of corsets. These articles may be purchased for $28.75.

Contends Another Was Substituted For His Daughter

Atchison, Kan., July 26.—Depositions were taken here today in a suit originating in Salt Lake City, in which John F. Greenland of that city charges that Mabel Manning, said to have been taken by the Soldiers' Orphan home here in 1909, was substituted for his own daughter. The suit is directed at James Burkhardt, a wealthy mining man of Salt Lake, and Mrs. Burkhardt, who for three years had the custody of Phyllis Mabel Greenland, their granddaughter and daughter of the plaintiff. The child was taken by the grandparents when but a few weeks old, following the death of its mother. Greenland produced witnesses here today who made affidavit that the child whom he claims was given him by the Burkhardts, when later he demanded his daughter, is Mabel Manning, formerly a charge in the orphan's home and adopted seven years ago by the Burkhardts. The girls are said to be 10 years old.

The Secret of the Submarine

By E. Alexander Powell

Author of "The End of the Trail," "Fighting in Flanders," "The Road to Glory," "Vive la France," etc.

TENTH INSTALLMENT.

Lieutenant Jarvis Hope is detailed by the United States naval board to investigate and report his findings on the invention of Dr. Baiter Burke, which serves to bring the submarine to a state of perfection. The lieutenant arrives in Vaidava and is welcomed by the inventor and his daughter, Cleo. On the trip of the inventor's boat, a Japanese helper is surprised in the act of examining the mechanism of the ventilating device. Hope reports favorably on the new device, but there are other interested in it. An attempt to burglarize Dr. Burke's laboratory fails, but later Cleo finds him murdered in his bedroom. Cleo sells her father's books to get money; later she finds a note from which she learns that they contain the secret formula. With Hope she races to the auctioneer's store only to find it in flames. Olga Ivanoff and Gerald Morton, two spies in search of the formula, attempt to capture Cleo when she calls at the house of Strophanski, the anarchist. Hope rushes to her aid; Morton shoots at him, but the bullet hits a bomb in the cellar, which explodes. Strophanski and Cleo attend a ball at Mrs. Delmar's, whose nephew has two of the missing books. Mahlin, a spy, attempts to steal the books, but is discovered. Hope reports the theft to the following the books disappear. Mahlin escapes. Hope and Cleo take a boat for an island out in the bay. The conspirators follow in other boats. Mahlin and the Japanese arrive on a strange island and die. Cleo and Hope are taken to a lonely cabin in the mountains. She finds there the book for which they search. Fortunately she gets a note to Hope, who, with book starts to their rescue. As he crosses the chasm in the swinging basket Mahlin steals up and chops at the cable with an ax.

About the time that the three were leaving the cabin on the ledge, Morton and Olga were preparing to visit the mountains in the aeroplane. And Olga was by no means a welcome passenger.

"I think that I'll fly up to the mesa this afternoon and have a talk with the Burke girl," Morton had carelessly remarked. "She's been in the cabin three days now and I fancy that by this time she won't be quite so stubborn."

"And I think that I will go with you," Olga had rejoined. "I can get more out of the girl than you can."

"Nonsense," said Morton. "You don't want to go along. It's no trip for a woman. It's a nasty place to land up there on the mesa. There's no use in taking unnecessary risks."

"I'll take any risks that you will," said Olga decisively. "I have already said that I am going with you."

"And I say that you're not," said Morton. The last thing in the world that he desired was to have Olga present during his interview with Cleo, for he knew that were the Russian woman to suspect his scheme of forcing Cleo to marry him she was quite capable of making things very unpleasant indeed. And his fears were fully justified by her next remark.

"You will either take me with you," she told him, "or I shall inform the police of your recent activities. I fancy that were it known that you are the kidnaper of the Burke girl, for whom everyone is searching you would be lucky to escape with your life. They're a hot-headed people, these Californians, and they don't take kindly to having their women stolen."

"Come, come, my friend. You can't put it over on me, as you Americans say. You're much too anxious to see the girl alone. You will find it a dangerous business to try any double dealing with me."

"Come along, then," he snarled, making the best of the situation, for he was perfectly aware that, were he
