Secretary of I. W. W. Is Pardoned When

The Omaha police have received information that six masked men boarded Northwestern extra train No. 250 near Craig Wednesday and at the point of firearms robbed the crew of all they possessed. The authorities further assert that their information was sufficient evidence to mark the holdups as members of the Industrial Workers of the World.

J. J. Rogers, secretary of the local organization, who was sentenced to fifteen days in the workhouse Tuesday, was pardoned with a fellow member on recommendation of Commissioner Jardine.

Other members arrested and ar-ber on recommendation of Commissioner Jardine.

Other members arrested and arraigned before Judge Kubat Tuesday afternoon were given the privilege of leaving the city or serving five days in jail. Most of them decided to leave.

away from 181 Was there ever such incredible imbecility?" But Morton was too stunned by the disaster to reply to her taunts. The imposing edifice that his imagination had erected had suddenly collapsed. With Cleo's escape ended his scheme of forcibly marrying her and thus obtaining possession of the fortune which she had inherited from Calvin Montgomery. And, as though this were not enough, the secret of the submarine, on finding which he had staked everything, had slipped through his very fingers and was now, he was convinced, in the hands of his rival, the man whom he hated more than any other—Jarvis Hope. The lavish expenditures he had made in prosecuting the search had almost in prosecuting the search had almost exhausted his means. Gerald Morton was a desperate and a dangerous man.

"Well," demanded Olga, when her anger had somewhat subsided, "what are we going to do about it? There is nothing to be gained by sulking like disappointed children."

"We are going to follow them." said Morton grimly. "I'm going to get that formula if I have to kill them both."

"That," said Olga approvingly, "is the way to talk. Let us be going."

Their mutual jealousies and suspicions forgotten in the loss of the formula, they recrossed the chasm and climbed into the aeroplane. A moment later and, with a roar from its propellers, it relled forward across the mesa and soared into the air. During their brief stay in the cabin, however, the wind, already dangerously high, had risen to a gale, and as their craft, leaving the comparatively sheltered mesa, climbed skyward, it was buffeted as a ship is buffeted by the waves. But it was impossible to return to the mesa now, and to attempt to descend elsewhere was but to invite disaster. The driving force of its powerful engines notwith-standing, the aeroplane was as helpless as a skiff in a storm. Yet so masterly was Morton's driving, so perfect his co-ordination of hand and brain, that it seemed as though his skill would triumph over the elements and that he would succeed in reaching the plain in safety. But suddenly a wind squall leaped out at them from a canyon over which they were passing; the frail machine reeled and quivered before the blow, and, despite Morton's desperate efforts, turned sideways, capsized and plunged like a wounded bird into the gulf below.

An hour or so later a party of cowpunchers, returning to their ranch

"They're still breathing, boys," pronounced one of the punchers when he and his companions had succeeded in extricating the inanimate forms. "They're in pretty bad shape. The girl's ribs are all stove in and I'm afraid the fellow's cracked his skull. Bill, you chase down to the ranch and bring up the spring wagon. Better put in a mattress and plenty of blankets, and bring along some whisky. Send one of the boys off to town for the doctor—and tell him to get a move on, too. Thuse people are hurt nighty bad."

Council to Consider

Cut in Levy Saturday

The city council will meet Saturday morning for consideration of the 1917 general levy. Butler offered a resolution proposing the following: General purpose fund, $1.375,000; sinking fund, $350,000; bond redemption funds in all probability will be reduced $50,000 each.

Injuries to His Son

Barney Kalasky, sr., 5517 South Thirty-second street, has filed two authors against the city of Omaha, each asking $2,000 damages for personal injuries alleged to have been inflicted upon his son, Barney Kalasky, ir.

Kalasky in his suit asserts that his little son fell into an open manhole near Thirty-second and U streets, breaking an arm and receiving other injuries. He asks $2,000 for the boy's injuries and $2,000 for medical streatment and for loss to him of his son's services and companionship.

The Secret of Submarine CORN STILL HAS A FEW DAYS OF GRACE

If Rain Falls Within Few More Days Nebraska Crop Will Survive Hot Spell Nicely.

NO RAIN IN SIGHT TODAY

"Corn has a few more days, and then if we don't get rain it is going to go back fast." This seems to be the general opinion of the railroad officials of Omaha.

The Northwestern office says that corn is all right as far as moisture in the ground for some time vet, but that the hot weather is having a bad effect on the fertilization of the plants, which are just now in the silk and tassle stage. Cool weather and a little rain would make a fine crop, for the plants are exceptionally well developed.

R. W. Lovelace of the Burlington. who came down through the northern and western parts of the state last Saturday, scoffs at the forebodings of injury to the corn. He says that he never saw such fine, well-developed cornstalks, and no perceptible "fring." He admits, however, that the state as a whole would be greatly benefited by a rain and cooler Hottest Day of Year at Chicago. Chicago, July 27.—A period of in-tense heat in the western plains states unequaled in continuity and ex-tremely high temperature since 1901, the year of the hot winds in Kan-sas, according to the government weather bureau here, probably will continue through the remaining days of July.

weather bureau here, probably will continue through the remaining days of July.

Chicago, which heretofore has been laved in cooling breezes from the lake, participated in the continental climate today, when the winds shifted and came over the city from the hot plains. At 7 o'clock this morning. Chicago, with a temperature of 84, was the hottest point in the United States, with the exception of Yuma. Ariz. The lowest temperature for the night here was 82, the highest minimum in the records of the local weather bureau. Throughout the day the temperature steadily mounted reaching 98 at noon, with the prediction that the thermometer would register approximately 100 at 3 o'clock.

Twice in fifteen years a higher temperature has been recorded—103 on July 21, 1901, and 102 on July 4 and 5, 1911.

The present heat wave began late

The present heat wave began late in June and has continued with an absence of rain, causing serious men-ace to crops in Kansas and Okla-homa. Portions of Illinois and Mishoma. Portions of Illinois and Missouri also have begun to show the effects of heat and drouth. Wisconsin, lowa and parts of Nebraska are in need of relief.

Raises Price of Ice.

Cleveland, July 27.—With the hot-test weather of the year being ex-perienced, the City Ice Delivery com-pany, the biggest ice concern here, announced an increase in price of 2% cents per hundred pounds to domestic and commercial trade today. Danger of an ice famine is given as one rea-son.

The Missouri Pacific would like to impress two or three hundred of the I. W. W.'s when I want to spend because they could not get the men to do the work. The only trouble with the I. W. W.'s the construction department says, is that the pay is more important than the work with them. However, any one who is willing to work will be given an opportunity.

Twenty-two years ago Friday Nebraska was plunged into a deep gloom.

For a hot wind, like a blast from a fiery furnace, had blown its devastating breath across the state and the corn crop had been burned to a crisp. The hot wind came on July 26.

"I shall never forget that day," said Colonel Welsh of the weather bureau, I rode home at noon on an open Farnam car and the wind was so hot that we had to turn our heads to get our breath. The temperature was 106.

"On May 19 of that year there were killing frosts and all the corn had to be replanted. They expected about half a crop until that hot wind came.

"With a total failure in 1894, a partial failure in 1895 and Bryan in 1896," said the colonel, "the country was almost used up.

"Today it would be possible to have such a failure and no special harm would be done the state. Farmers would say it was unfortunate and they'd order out their automobiles and have a good time until time to put in a new crop. But in those days the farmers were very poor and the crop meant everything."

"After you then," said Morton.
"The basket waits, my lady."
"Thank you, no," she replied.
"After you I'm taking no chances of having you maroon me on the ledge the way you claim to have marooned the Burke girl. You'll go first, if you please, my friend."
"You seem to be obsessed with suspicions of my motives, dear countess," sneered Morton, "but anything to please." Stepping into the basket, he slid across, whereupon Olga hauled it back and crossed in her turn. Together they approached the cabin. Morton flung open the door.

her turn. Together they approached the cabin. Morton flung open the door.

"She's escaped, the little devil!" he snarled. "I feared as much when I saw the basket. She had help from outside, of course."

"What's this?" exclaimed Olga, spying on the table the two books.

"Merciful heaven!" she cried, pointing to Patten's name on the flyleaf of one of them. "They're the very books we have been looking for! How did they get here?"

"I've no more idea than you have," said Marion, utterly stupefied. "I didn't see a sign of any books when I brought the girl here. Of all the hellish coincidences! To think that I should have stumbled on the cabin of the very man we have been trying to find and not have known it."

"You may well call it a hellish coincidence," she snapped, holding up the volume from which Hope had cut the key of the code. "This tells the story. The naval officer that you are always sneering at has been too smart for you. He has not only found his way here and rescued the girl, but he has evidently discovered the secret of the submarine. You idiot! You blockhead! You fool!" she screamed, flaring into a sudden passion. "You had the secret almost in your hands and you have let it get
