Y. W. C. A. May Mortgage Property—Judge A. C. Troup has granted the Young Women's Christian association license to mortgage property of the organization for $5,000 to pay loans on unsecured indebtedness. Liens or suits against Young Women's Christian association and similar property cannot be filed under the law. In granting the permit Judge Troup warned heads of the association against contracting debts and then appealing to the court for permission to pay them afterward.

Religious Society Incorporates—The Euphemia Sodality of Beatitudes, a society for the teaching of the Christian religion and for extending aid to worthy charitable cases, has filed notice of incorporation with the Douglas county clerk. Randle Leak, rector, with spiritual jurisdiction over more than six counties, is at the head of the organization. Associated with him are Dora Ballew, prophetess; Alberta Ballew, scribe, and Joe Ballew and Dennis Todd, laymen. The society may contract indebtedness of not more than $25,000.

Dogs at City Pound Treated Cruelly, Is Charge of Officer

That the method now in vogue at the city dog pound for executing canines convicted of vagrancy is terribly cruel, is the assertion made by Humane Officer Hans J. Neilsen, in a report to the Humane society.

A committee from the Humane society will confer today with Police Superintendent A. C. Kugel in an effort to remedy the condition.

Norris Says He'll Campaign In Nebraska This Fall

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, Aug. 11.—(Special Telegram.)—Senator Norris said today that he would enter heartily in the campaign in Nebraska for the republican ticket, but could not tell now when he would reach the state, as he had promised the republican committee a week or ten days in Maine.

"We ought to win handsomely in Nebraska this year," said Senator Norris.

Williams Confesses to Murdering Mrs. Stewart

Marshaltown, Ia., Aug. 11.—Robert J. Williams, the police say, has made a written confession in which he admits he murdered Mrs. Matilda C. Stewart, mother of Williams' former sweetheart, Ruby Stewart, and committed a murderous assault upon Wendell H. Foote, fiance of Miss Stewart. Jealousy was the motive for the murder.

At the Theaters

Promises of the Press Agents.

Gayety—Today at 10 o'clock the seat sale for the Gayety's opening attraction, "The Tourists," opens at the box office of the theater. People who have witnessed the performance in Chicago, where the company is appearing this week at the Columbia theater, are enthused over the production and have great tales to tell of the newness and richness of costumes and equipment, and the excellence of the big interpretive company.

Strand—Virginia Pearson is seen at the Strand Friday and Saturday in a highly dramatic offering called "A Tortured Heart." Her chief support is Stuart Holmes, who surely can be aptly billed "the world's greatest villian."

Muse—Lillian Walker is the attraction at the Muse today in "The Man Behind the Curtain." Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance," and a comedy are included in the program.

Hipp—"The House of the Golden Windows" at the Hipp today and tomorrow features Cleo Ridgely and Wallace Reid. The story is modernized in a wonderful way.

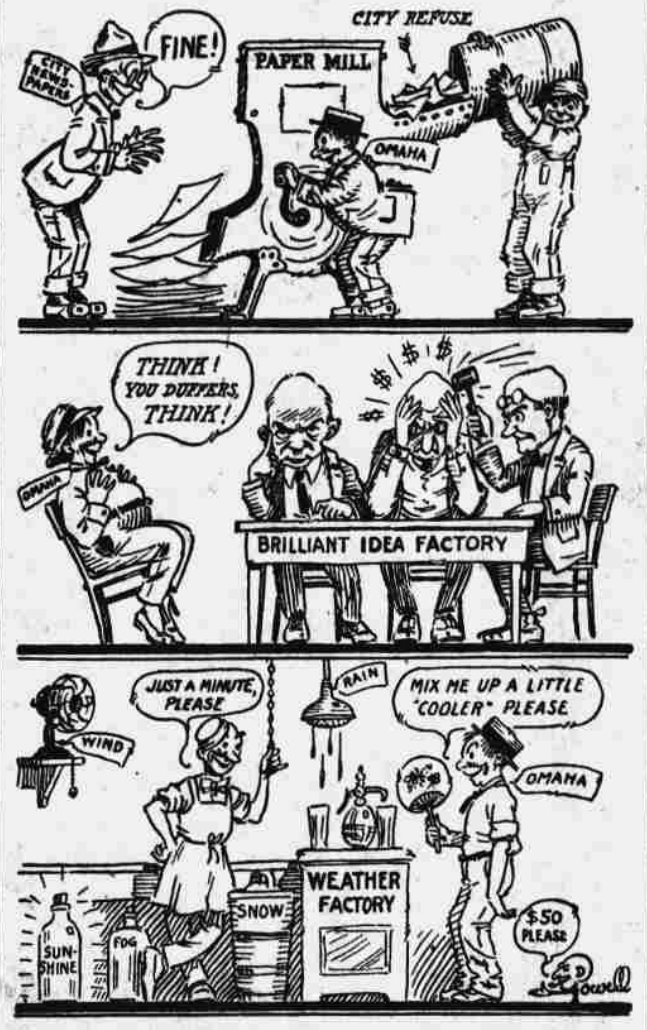
General Carranza is quoted in a newspaper of Mexico City to the effect that after the presidential election a law will be enacted giving amnesty to Mexicans who are fugitives in foreign countries.

Billboard advertising will be used in an effort to defeat the democratic party for its neglect to adopt the national woman suffrage amendment, it was announced at headquarters of hte Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage and the national woman's party.

Abbi Scott Baker, representing the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, called at the White House and told Secretary Tumulty that if President Wilson continued to oppose the suffrage constitutional amendment, it would have a serious effect on his candidacy for another term.

Some Real Ideas



SOUTH SIDE AFFAIRS

Few Men Applying Now for Work at the Various Packing Houses.

IS ENOUGH FOR ALL TO DO

Packing houses are short of labor at the present time. Where as high as 200 men used to line the gates before each of the big plants daily last winter, today there are seldom more than ten or fifteen men. Hiring bosses find it extremely difficult to secure the services of the kind of men that they have been used to employing.

War orders and other big orders for the east are keeping the working forces going at the maximum. For two years the plants have been doing capacity business.

Wyoming Hay Dries Up.

Reports from Wyoming indicate that the hay crop in several portions of the state will be far from normal this year. The extreme hot weather this summer has dried up prairie hay, according to ranchers, and the crop will be inferior.

Stockmen are getting ready for the big fall range cattle run. It is figured that the run this year will outnumber that of last year by as many as a quarter million head. Whether or not the local market will share a proportionate increase is a matter of speculation.

Feeder sheep are becoming a paying business on the range, according to reports. Ranchers and land owners have taken up this branch of the trade with vigor in the last year.

Humane Society Expands.

The Nebraska Humane society is extending its organization widely into the South Side. Since the advent of Hans Nielson, who was appointed desk sergeant for two weeks in the absence of Mike McCarthy, who was on his vacation, members of the society have increased considerably. Policemen are taking an interest.

Large bunches of tags on which are printed the chief offenses which are prosecuted by members of the society and also the city ordinance governing the punishment that will follow in case of conviction have been distributed at the police station.

The funeral of Dale Beckett, young high school student who died Wednesday morning following a two years' illness with consumption, was held Thursday afternoon at the Beckett home at Twenty-fifth and Jefferson streets. It was attended by hundreds of friends. Members of the class with which he was supposed to graduate acted as pall bearers. They were: John Swanback, Matt Maloney, Dewey Curtis, Harold Shainholtz, Merle Curtt and William Smith.

Rev. Harold Cornish of the Central Interdenominational church officited. Dale was to have graduated last June, but was taken seriously ill before the end of the school term and had to be removed to his home.

Interment was made in the Graceland Park cemetery. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Beckett, and a sister, Ada, survive.

Shackelford Elected Delegate.

W. O. Shackelford, local meat inspector, was elected as delegate to the coming meting of the national organization of the Bureau of Animal Industry to be held in New York on August 14. Most of the 175 members of the local association met and elected him as delegate after several ballots. Four or five other local men entered the election.

Democrats Take Entire Floor of Skyscraper

Chicago, Aug. 11—The democratic national committee today selected the entire sixth floor of the Karpen building, a Michigan avenue skyscraper, as its western headquarters during the campaign. The floor affords 8,500 square feet of office space.

WILSON IS GIVEN ONE MORE CHANCE

Suffragists in Convention in Denver Delay Action Looking to Endorsement.

MAY COME OUT FOR HUGHES

Colordao Springs, Colo., Aug. 11—Woman party leaders, at the opening session of a three-day national conference here today considered informally the election policy of the party during the forthcoming campaign and outlined a program of activity to be pursued in the twelve equal suffrage states.

Leaders tonight were uncertain of the form which the Woman's party announcement of policy would be officially made. Certain women, prominent in the councils of the organization, favored resolutions definitely withdrawing the supportof the party from the democratic administration, without formal endorsement of other presidential candidates or parties. Other leaders suggested formal endorsement of the parties which had endorsed the equal suffrage movement, while another element urged the endorsement of Charles E. Hughes, the republican nominee, as the best means of securing the enactments of the federal suffrage amendment.

Will Wait Until Today.

National leaders aserted that the party would await action of President Wilson, or congress, "with an open mind until late tomorrow, when formal action would be taken in executive session, following which a public announcement of policy would be made at a public mass meeting.

Few leaders expressed hope that the administration would accord the desired assurance of support for national woman's suffrage.

The Secret of the Submarine

By E. Alexander Powell

Author of "The End of the Trail," "Fighting in Flanders," "The Road to Glory," "Vive la France," etc. Copyright, 1916, by E. Alexander Powell.

TWELFTH INSTALLMENT.

SYNOPSIS.

Lieutenant Jarvis Hope is detailed by the United States naval board to investigate and report findings on the invention of Dr. Ralph Burke, which service to bring the submarine to a state of perfection. On the trial trip of the inventor's boat, a Japanese helper is surprised in the act of examining the mechanism. Hope reports favorably on the new device but there are others interested in it. Attempt to burglarize Burke's laboratory fails; later his daughter Cleo finds him murdered in his bedroom. Cleo sells her father's books; she finds a note from which she learns they contain secret formula. Olga Ivanoff and Gerald Morton, spies in search of formula, attempt to capture Cleo when she comes for books to Stephanski, the anarchist. Hope rushes to her aid; Morton shoots but bullet hits a bomb in cellar, which explodes. Hope and Cleo escape and attend ball at Mrs. Delmar's, whose nephew has two missing books. Mahlin, a spy, attempts to steal books; in excitement that follows books disappear. Mahlin escapes. Hope and Cleo take boat for an island out in the bay. Mahlin and the Jap turn out the island light. After a violent storm Hope and Cleo arrive on strange island and discover man they hunt is there. Mahlin and Japanese also reach the island. They escape from Hope but return and dynamite the shack. Hope and Cleo manage to reach Sandsboro, where Dr. Owen has one of the books. He arranges to meet Hope at the hotel with book. Morton poses as Hope and but for an earthquake would have possessed the volume. Cleo is captured by Morton and taken to cabin in the mountains. She finds there books for which they search. Fortunately she gets note to Hope, who, with Hook, starts to rescue. As he crosses chasm in swinging basket Mahlin steals up and chops at cable with an ax. Hook appears in time to save Hope. He reaches the other side and is greeted by Cleo; she swears her love to him. They are followed by Mahlin and Jap who attempt to kidnap Cleo. She swings herself over the canyon. Olga and Morton are dashed to earth in an aeroplane. Hope and Cleo are pulled from quicksands by Hook and a grape vine. Mahlin and Satsuma are called before the Black Council. On the track of another book, they find the owner has lost it. Hope receives a letter of very serious import.

"I think," said Miss Langham icily, as she rose, "that it is the most cold-blooded, shameless thing I ever heard of. I pity Lieutenant Hope from the bottom of my heart. I only wish that I were free to tell him what sort of a woman he is about to marry."

"You don't need to tell him, Miss Langham," said a voice behind them, and Hope stood in the doorway.

Both girls screamed.

"I have heard every word, Inez," he said sternly. "I thank God I have learned the truth in time."

"Eavesdropper," she sneered.

"I may be an eavesdropper," he answered, "but thank heaven I've not descended as low as you have. I only hope that I shall never set eyes on your deceitful face again."

"But you're not serious—you can't leave me now!" cried Inez hysterically. "Why, the invitations are out—the wedding is day after tomorrow. What will people say? Oh, Jarvis, you won't humiliate me so. I'm sorry, Jarvis—truly I am. I was only joking with Lucy. Surely you don't think I was serious, do you? There isn't a word of truth in what I just said. Oh, Jarvis, Jarvis," and her voice rose into a scream, "you won't leave me, will you?"

"What the devil's going on here?" broke in another voice, and Inez' brother, Larry, a young man about town, strode into the room.

"Oh, Larry, Larry," sobbed Inez, now on her knees, "don't let him leave me. He says he won't marry me—just because of some silly things he overeheard me saying to Lucy Langham."

"You'll marry my sister or I'll thrash you within an inch of your life," snarled Machin, stepping toward Hope menacingly.

"I'll do nothing of the sort," said Hope. "I begin to think that you're both blackmailers."

"Are you calling me a blackmailer?" demanded Machin, swinging up his walking stick as though to strike.

"You've guessed it," said Hope, and as the stick descended he caught it in his left hand and with his right smashed home an uppercut that caught young Machin squarely on the point of the chin and stretched him upon the floor.

"If you will be kind enough to escort me, Mr. Hope," said Miss Langham, drawing aside her skirts as she passed the cowering Inez, "I will leave this house."

As they passed out of the room Inez, with a despairing cry, threw herself on the sofa and gave way to a storm of angry tears.

Hope assisted Miss Langham into her car, which was waiting at the curb.

"Mr. Hope," she said, offering him her hand, "I congratulate you from the bottom of my heart on your escape. And you needn't worry about what people will say. I shall make it my business to see that the truth is known. Can't I give you a lift to your hotel?"

"Thanks," he replied, "but I must send a very important telegram."

Five minutes later he was leaning over a desk in a telegraph office, writing furiously. The message was addressed to Miss Cleo Burke, Valdavia, California, and the clerk behind the counter smiled happily when he read it.

When Hope, now buoyant with happiness, reached his hotel he found a yellow envelope in his box. He tore it open. The dispatch it contained was dated Washington.

"Report here without an instant's delay," it read. "Situation very grave. Your services urgetly needed."

It was signed by the chief of the bureau of intelligence of the navy.

Disfiguring Humor Spread Over Face
Used Resinol. Skin Now Beautiful

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 7, 1915.—"A small red place covered with little white scales appeared beside my nose. Then it began to spread over both sides of my face and the scales cracked open, causing a terrible itching and burning. It was horrible looking and very embarrassing. I tried many salves, but could get no relief. At last I heard of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and applied them as directed. The burning and itching sensation was relieved at once and in three weeks I was entirely cured. My face shows no sign of breaking out now, in fact, my skin is considered beautiful."
