

MINERS' BOARDING HOUSE IS BLOWN UP

Charge of Dynamite Exploded Under Building in Which Ten Persons Are Sleeping I. W. W. MEMBER ARRESTED

Biwabik, Minn., Aug. 18.—An explosion which early today wrecked a boarding house at the Biwabik mine, location near here, in which were ten persons, is laid by the authorities at the door of the Industrial Workers of the World. No one was injured. The Industrial Workers of the World leaders, it is charged, had threatened the miners with death if they did not quit work. One member of the Industrial Workers of the World is held on suspicion.

Tony Dumont, who with his wife, two children and six boarders, occupied the house, had been told by pickets to stop work if he did not want to "wake up in hell," but he continued at work. About midnight the explosion took place. The rear portion of the house was torn off.

Matt Mollense was arrested, as the authorities were informed he had threatened to blow up the house. Industrial Workers of the World cards were found in his possession, officials say.

As the invalid wife and five children of John Smith, one of the miners who refused to strike, were about to retire late last night, dynamite tore away the entire front of their house. The room where the family had been gathered was reduced to a tangled mass. Smith had received many letters containing crepe.

Speakers Talk in Many Tongues at Adventists' Camp

Hastings, Neb., Aug. 18.—(Special.)—The Seventh Day Adventists' camp has transformed Heartwell park into a little city. An elevated choir platform has been erected in the pavilion just back of the speaker's platform to accommodate a choir of fifty singers. In the east end of the camp is a small village of Germans and another of Scandinavians. Gospel services will be conducted daily and every night in these languages in appropriate tabernacles erected near the two foreign-speaking camps.

Prof. J. I. Beardsley, who has charge of the young people's work in the conference, will be assisted by Evangelists W. W. Ruble, Young People's Missionary volunteer secretary of the Central Union conference, and C. L. Benson of Washington, D. C., general conference missionary volunteer secretary. Mrs. Olive Mantell, instructor of the Hastings intermediate school, will have charge of the work for the juniors, and Miss Florence Howell of Hastings, conference Sabbath school secretary, aided by a corps of trained teachers, will have something to interest the children in the primary and kindergarten division at 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. each day, besides outing recreations for the children at other hours of the day.

Elder R. A. Underwood of Lincoln, president of the Central Union conference; Elder J. T. Boettcher, president of the Russian Union conference; Elder F. W. Paap and D. W. Reavis, both of Washington, D. C., representing the home missionary and publishing work, all arrived at the Adventist camp today.

President D. U. Hale of the Nebraska conference gave the opening address tonight on "The Certainty of God's Promises."

Friday morning the opening business session of the conference will be held.

Booth Confesses To Firing Barn

Beatrice, Neb., Aug. 18.—(Special Telegram.)—George Booth and Harry Young were arrested here just before midnight, charged with setting fire to the barn of Sam Rinaker that burned early in the evening, entailing a loss of $1,500.

Shortly before the fire broke out Booth and Young were seen coming out of the barn. Later they appeared on the scene and helped fight the flames. After their arrest Young confessed he and Booth set the fire.

Phelps Fair Association Enlarges Territory

Holdrege, Neb., Aug. 18.—(Special.)—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Phelps County Agricultural association, held last night in the office of Dr. Collette, the rules and classifications of last year were adopted for the annual show and exhibit, September 28, 29 and 30. The territory this year has been considerably enlarged to include practically all the counties in southwestern Nebraska. Nothing north of the Platte river will be included. The premium list and classification of entries will be arranged for publication next week. Three prizes will be offered this year instead of two for stock entries. Coming on the same dates as the Harvest jubilee will insure the Phelps county organization a splendid attendance. Fred Youngquist is acting secretary.

WILSON MAY ASK RAIL DIRECTORS TO THE MEETING

(Continued From Page One.) proposal to concede the eight-hour day, regular time for over-time and have a commission appointed by congress to investigate the collateral issues.

Hale Holden, president of the Burlington, acted as spokesman for the railroad leaders. It was agreed in advance that the railroad officials would listen to President Wilson's presentation of his plan and the railroad presidents should return to their hotel to hold a meeting and decide on their action.

Roads for Arbitration. The railroad presidents want arbitration under the Newlands act with two arbitrators for roads, two for the men and two for the public. The disposition of many of them was said today to be to insist upon action of that character and not yield to President Wilson's plan for an eight-hour day unless it comes before an arbitration board. Some of the presidents are said to feel the public will support their offer to arbitrate everything in dispute. Some others, however, were of the opinion that if President Wilson chooses to exercise his power and refuses to press the men for arbitration, it will be difficult for the railroad presidents to continue opposition to his plan.

Long Discussion by Men.

After the employees' meeting had been in session for an hour one of the leaders came out and said sentiment for the president's proposal was by no means unanimous, but no organized opposition to the plan had appeared. Most of them thought the proposition good in the main, but a number objected to it.

"There are about 500 men in there clamoring for a chance to speak," said the leader who came out, "and if they are heard, as many of them doubtless will be, there is no telling when we will get a vote."

W. L. Chambers of the federal mediators went to the men's hall at the request of brotherhood officials to explain some of the features of the situation. He went into executive session with the heads of the four brotherhoods on the subject of overtime.

In the men's meeting the leading objection to President Wilson's plan was that if it were accepted without extra pay for overtime the men demanded, the railroads would contend that the sole purpose of the men was to obtain more money and not to get the eight-hour day.

Wilson Prepares Statement.

During the morning President Wilson prepared a statement reviewing the negotiations and explaining why he chose the plan of settlement based on the eight-hour day. The statement probably will be given out later.

Among the railroad executives who arrived this morning from Chicago were: R. H. Ashton, Chicago & Northwestern; C. H. Markham, Illinois Central; H. R. Kurrie, Monon; W. J. Jackson, Chicago & Eastern Illinois; M. J. Carpenter, Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern; M. W. Potter, Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio. Several other railway executives are expected to arrive from St. Louis this afternoon.

THIRTEENTH INSTALLMENT

one arm about his neck she held him firmly down while with the other she drove the long, keen blade again and again into his body. Then, her work accomplished, she flung him, dying, to the floor. Quick as thought she was kneeling beside him and, thrusting her hand within his blood-soaked vest, she drew out the long, blue-barreled automatic which he carried, gambler fashion, in a sling beneath his armpit. Cocking the weapon, she paused only long enough to pick up the book which Carrillo had tossed to the floor, and then moved on tiptoe toward the door. Tied to a tree a few rods away was Carrillo's chestnut mare, ready saddled. But as she started toward the animal a heavy hand fell upon her shoulder and she whirled about to find herself staring full into the evil countenance of Jose. And in his face she read suspicion. Without an instant's hesitation she raised the pistol and shot him through the heart. The crash of the explosion brought two other figures running toward her in mad haste; the first was the ruffian Manuel; the other was Morton. As the bandit came within range she again raised her weapon, took careful aim, and fired. The bullet struck him in the stomach and with a scream of pain he stopped, whirled about, stumbled a few paces, and fell headlong.

"What is it that you would talk of then?" she asked softly. "Of yourself," he whispered, and bent over her. Closer and closer he bent, his eyes ablaze. As though charmed by him, she put her arm about his neck and drew him down until his head rested upon her breast, while her other hand, drawing from its place of concealment the freshly whetted knife, crept slowly upward * * * up * * * up * * * until the glittering blade was poised above his broad-chested back. Then, just as he pressed his lips against hers in a burst of emotion, she brought it down with all the strength of her arm, burying the blade to the very hilt between his shoulders. "You she-devil!" he gasped, attempting to gain his feet, but with

"do you think I intend to let you get the formula?" and, striking his heels into the horse's flanks, he leaped across the little valley, leaped the brook, and, to an accompaniment of shots and oaths from the bewildered outlaws, dashed through the fissure in the rock and disappeared.

So astounded were the bandits by Morton's melodramatic escape, and so intent were they on his capture, that they failed to observe Olga, who, aided by the twilight which was now at hand, slipped from tree to tree and from rock to rocks until she gained the fissure which was the only exit from the valley. As, tottering from weariness and exhaustion, she slowly made her way down the mountainside in the gathering darkness she was spurred on by hatred and the hope for vengeance.

Does Prohibition Prohibit?

Testimony of Two Reputable Witnesses of Des Moines, Iowa

The First Witness:

Extract from an editorial which appeared in The Des Moines Evening Tribune of June 6, 1916:

"The Evening Tribune has asked a half dozen men recently who ought to know, and they agree that liquor can now be bought openly at more places than when we had saloons."

The Second Witness:

Extract from a news article, prominently displayed on the first page of The Des Moines Capital of February 19, 1916:

"Des Moines banished the saloons a year ago last Wednesday. "But Des Moines today is consuming liquor at the rate of a million dollars' worth a year—mostly whiskey. "Des Moines is receiving two carloads of liquor a day. "This is at the rate of 750 carloads a year or fifteen trainloads of fifty cars each." * * *

Here we have the testimony of two responsible Iowa newspapers that Statewide PROHIBITION does not prohibit.

In Nebraska, under our Local Option, High License Law, the people of any community are granted an opportunity to say whether or not license shall be issued governing the sale of alcoholic beverages.

In future articles we will present evidence proving that Nebraska, under that law, has made great progress from a moral as well as from an economic standpoint.
